Parley Fails To Effect Compromise On Filibuster

Senate Leaders To Try Again Today; Plan Round-Clock Sessions Otherwise

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

An extraordinary Sunday conference of leaders of three disputing Senate factions failed yesterday to bring an immediate end to the filibuster fight but hope was held out for agreement today.

Pending such agreement the Senate will continue the 15-day-old Dixie talkathon which is blocking action on everything from rent control and housing to funds for the Economic Cooperation Administration.

If no agreement is reached, Administration forces plan to stage all-out, round-the-clock sessions in an effort to wear out the Southern filibusterers but it is generally conceded that rent control and other programs will go by the board if they do.

The Sunday peace parley with Republicans and Southern Democrats was called by Senate Majority Leader Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) with the express approval of President Truman.

Members of the leadership group said they were pledged to secrecy on the exact terms of yesterday's discussions, but several admitted that the whole plan had been outlined in the Sunday issue of The Washington Post anyway.

Present at the closed-door session in Lucas' office were Senate Democratic Whip Francis J. Myers of Pennsylvania, Chairman Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.) of the Senate Rules Committee, Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry of Nebraska, Republican Whip Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Senator William Knowland (R., Calif.) of the Rules Committee, and Senators Richard B. Russell of Georgia and Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, representing the Southern Democrats.

The group discussed for two hours a compromise offered by Wherry which would permit filibusters to be cut off by a certain percentage of the Senate membership on everything but a further change in the Senate rules.

Leaders of all three factions voiced hope of reaching an agreement and putting an end to the present impasse.

There is one major sticking point, however. Even when leaders of each of the three factions—Administration, Republican and Southern Democrats—reach an agreement among themselves—each still must convince every member of his own group of the wisdom of the compromise.

Strayer Report

School Plan Would Make Congress Act

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

When Dr. George D. Strayer filed his lengthy report on the District school system, he asked, in effect, that Congress take eight major legislative actions.

Involved are requests for passage of measures already pending, modification of at least one major measure and introduction and passage of others not now before Congress.

The eight measures which would cover needs highlighted in the survey by Strayer and a staff of 22 educators:

1. Authorization of a Federal bond issue to underwrite a 38-million-dollar school building program.

2. Reorganization of the school administrative setup to eliminate duplication in administration growing out of the dual school system.

3. Immediate grant of $330 pay raises to school teachers and a stepping up of the pay progression system to higher brackets.

4. Paid sick leave for teachers.

5. Appropriation of five to six million dollars more a year than allowed in the proposed school budget to cover amortization of the proposed Federal loan and proposed increases in operating costs.

6. Transfer of personnel control from the Board of Education to the Superintendant of Schools.

7. Elimination of teacher examinations for appointments.

8. Making the two teacher colleges five-year institutions qualified to grant master of arts degrees.

Currently school construction is financed through annual appropriations. The result, according to Dr. Strayer, is a great backlog of needs that can be met only by a major building program.

Dr. Strayer recommends that the Hero Saves Five From Fire Before Fall Into Flames

Baltimore, March 13 (AP).—Working desperately against time, a man at nearby Essex plucked four women and a boy from a flaming house before tumbling into the burning wreckage himself.

The 32-year-old hero, Allain Johns, stood on a fire-licked porch roof, lifted five trapped persons from a second-story window, and lowered them one by one to the ground.

As he completed the fifth rescue, the roof collapsed under him, plunging him into a mass of flaming boards.

Johns has been taken to the Baltimore City hospital, where his condition is reported as critical.

One person was killed in the fire. He was Richard Coosenberry, 58. Three others besides Johns were injured, but their condition was not listed as critical.

Other fires in this area today took one life and did heavy damage to a building occupied by a pharmaceutical concern.

Senator Wagner Should Resign, Curran Declares

New York, March 13 (NYHT).—Thomas J. Curran, New York secretary of state and New York County Republican chairman, today called for the resignation of Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.). The incumbent senator should resign, said Curran, because his continued illness deprives the State of its proper quota of two members in the United States Senate.

"One reads reports in the press and elsewhere," said Curran," asking the question: 'Should Senator Wagner resign?' There is no question. It should be made in a simple statement—he should resign."

Senate records show that Wagner has been absent from the Senate since May 27, 1947, and was absent for periods before that time.

Commodity Prices Stage Comeback

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

About a month ago the Nation was stirred by a break in commodity markets — grains going down on February 8, the full limit allowed in one day of trading, and livestock crashing into new recent lows.

Economists went into huddles, some of them wearing such dark glasses that all they could say was to repeat over and over: "This is it."

But gradually since February 8, prices have moved back to where they were. Some commodities have remained about the same.

Here in general are the recoveries made:

	Prices are for May futures unless noted
	February 8	Now
Wheat	$2.06¼	$2.15⅞
Corn	1.16¾	1.31⅞
Oats	.60¾	.67¼
Soybeans	2.11½	2.32¾
Cotton, lb.	.31¼	.32⅛
Cottonseed oil, lb.	14.08	14.58
Lard, 100 lbs.	11.00	12.46
Butter, lb. (March)	.59.05	.59.5
Eggs, doz. (Oct.)	.45.65	.47.25
Grease wool, lb.	1.41½	1.34½
Wool tops	1.67	1.58
Choice steers, 100 lbs. Chicago	24.75	27.30
Hogs, choice, Chicago	20.00	22.25
Lambs, Chicago	24.60	*28.75

Of course these prices, in spite of the recovery, are far below recent tops; such as wheat at $3.06¾ on November 28, 1947; corn at $2.70¾ on January 16, 1948; cotton at 39 cents a pound; cattle at $40 a hundred, and hogs at $34.

A month ago the corridors of the Capitol were ringing with demands by farm bloc Congressmen that an investigation be made to discover speculators who, by selling short, had cleaned up in the breaking market.

Such an investigation was launched by the Commodity Exchange Authority. CEA discovered, at once, that transactions had increased greatly in the week of the big break. But further probing has failed to unearth any spectacular maneuvering by short sellers. No speculator made the high profits on the short side this year such as were uncovered a year ago in the first big market break. Transactions increased because the longs were caught and had to sell.

Rumors are that a lot of small operators—many country elevator managers, etc., who ordinarily hedge their operations, took a whipping. In recent years failure to hedge by such dealers meant more profits for them, although it always is a dangerous operation for a grain dealer. Losses this year among such operators are reported to have been extremely widespread and extraordinarily heavy.

The extent of the break in livestock prices was shown in the Bureau of Agricultural Economics livestock and meat situation report issued last night.

"In mid-February," it states, "prices of good grade steers at Chicago were about 40 per cent lower than their record of last summer and the lowest in around two years.

Two Navy Planes Crash; Pilots Fly To 'Safe' Landings

Norfolk, Va., March 13 (AP).—Two Navy fighter planes today collided 6000 feet in the air over Franklin but were flown 35 miles to safe landings.

The planes, Grumman Hellcats, were piloted by reservist students at the University of North Carolina, Lieut. Winston B. Gunnels and Ensign Kenneth F. Muse.

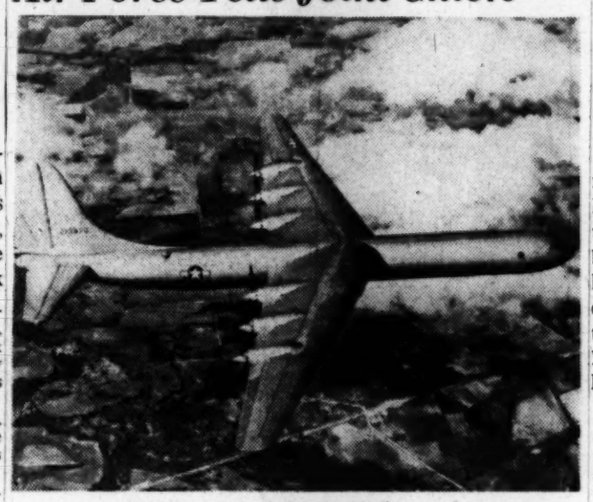
Britain Agrees To Trade Treaty Talk With Soviet

London, March 13 (AP).—The British Board of Trade tonight said Britain has accepted a Russian suggestion to open talks on a proposed new one-year trade pact.

Harold Wilson, board president, and A. I. Mikoyan, former Soviet foreign trade minister, agreed in Moscow on the previous one-year pact. Last May talks were opened on a proposed long-term trade treaty, but broke down.

The spokesman said that under the previous agreement, goods exchanged between Britain and the USSR were valued at between 160 million dollars and 180 million dollars for each country.

Russia Cannot Fight Off B-36, Air Force Tells Joint Chiefs



B-36, monarch of the air, 8 miles up

By the United Press

The joint chiefs of staff have been handed a U. S. Air Force "Finding" that Russia has no adequate defense against the B-36 Superbomber, it was revealed yesterday.

Furthermore, she may not have a defense for several years, at least.

The finding is based on tests under combat conditions and it underscores Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington's description of the B-36 as an "intercontinental bomber."

The Air Force's information, plus corollary interviews with Air Force officers, stresses:

1. That the superbomber—quite capable of carrying an atomic bomb—is the only military aircraft that can perform efficiently at an altitude of more than 8 miles. That, plus its armaments, makes it almost immune to interception or anti-aircraft fire.

2. It is the only bomber in the world that doesn't have to be altered so it can carry special bombs. Its capacity is two 42,000 pounders.

3. Russia faces two major defensive problems—building interceptors that could waylay the big planes and ringing her vast terrain with a radar warning system that would get the interceptors into the air in time.

4. Even the Air Force's jet fighters, rated as good as any in the world, are 600-mile-an-hour demons at 30,000 feet but are unwieldy in the thinner air at 40,000 feet. Tests at Elgin Air Force Base, Fla., show they lose power and their small wings will not support them in the thin air.

5. The B-36 soon will be equipped with four jet engines to

Ryan Blasts O'Dwyer in Wiretap Case

New York, March 13 (U.P.).—Multimillionaire Clendenin Ryan charged tonight that Mayor William O'Dwyer is a "political punk" and is hiding the No. 1 witness in a bizarre plot to tap the telephone wires of officials in New York and several Midwestern cities.

Ryan blasted the mayor in a telegram a few hours after he was subpenaed to appear Monday before a grand jury for questioning about the wire-tapping plot.

In this wire and in another sent earlier today the "good government" crusader implied that O'Dwyer had consorted for political reasons with gambling king Frank Costello and leftist Congressman Vito Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.).

"I demand in the name of all good citizens of this city that you produce Detective Ryan because you, more than anyone else, know where he is this very moment," Ryan's wire said.

Ryan referred to former city detective Kenneth Ryan (no relation), who was arrested early Saturday after police found "a $10,000 wire-tapping arsenal" in his Yonkers home, and a list of 75 persons here and in Chicago and Detroit whose phones allegedly were slated to be tapped.

Police said Ryan talked freely of his part in the scheme before he escaped from City Hall through a washroom window. He had not yet been located despite a five-State search.

"You know that Detective Kenneth Ryan made recordings of your telephone calls to Marcantonio in which you begged Marcantonio to

Man's Satellite Circling Earth Seen in Decade

Downey Calif., March 13 (AP).—In five to ten years there will be created a satellite that will whirl endlessly around the earth," Dr. Walther Reidel said today.

Reidel, who perfected Germany's V-2 rocket, is helping the American Air Force build more deadly missiles.

"Space," he said, "will be conquered in definite stages." After creation of the satellite, within a quarter of a century, it will become a space station where man can properly study the myriad problems of space travel," he said. "Finally will come interplanetary flight—as sure as the 'amen' in church."

Speaking of the weapon with which he blasted London, Reidel said "we called the stratosphere rocket the A-4. V-2 in a propaganda name.

"It was started as early as 1937 while the rest of the world was still dreaming of such missiles. By the end of the war Germany was turning out 30 of these a day. Some 2000 were launched against England.

"Their thrust lasted only 63 seconds, but contrary to general belief they could be controlled during that period, and their target fixed to an area within 1.8 miles by 1.5 miles.

"Take 39 locomotives, each weighing 110 tons. Put them in company front and roll them at 68 m.p.h. Ram them simultaneously into a concrete wall. That is the impact force of the V-2."

He said the impact was so great that 70 per cent of its 8800 pounds of metal "vaporized into a silver mist that covered the leaves of trees."

Living in Fools' Purgatory, Churchill Says of Britons

Sowerby, Yorkshire, England, March 13 (AP).—Winston Churchill said today the Labor Government was making the British people "live in a fools' purgatory upon the generous grants of free enterprise capitalist America."

In a letter to Councillor Paul Bryan, Conservative candidate in the Sowerby parliamentary bi-election scheduled for Wednesday, the leader of the Tory Party said Socialist nationalization had failed wherever it had been enforced.

One great industry after another, Churchill said, had been turned into a losing business.

"Now the Socialists, to brazen out their failure, are assaulting our most successful exporter, the steel industry," Churchill said. "This can only make us a poorer and weaker country."

Churchill said the Socialists "boast they have cured unemployment and at the same time admit that but for the immense American subsidy there would be between one and two million unemployed today."

"Our British island, with its immense population, will never be able to maintain its prewar standard of living under a Socialist system of society," the letter added.

"If we are to earn our daily bread in the world, it can only be through the strongest possible individual effort and ingenuity arising from conditions of freedom and fair play."

Turning to the government's foreign policy, Churchill said 400,000 people have been killed in India in the last two years and Burma "has become a foreign country and is in anarchy."

He described the state of Britain's defenses as "lamentable."

"Never before was so much manpower and money used for so little result in security," he said.

The Sowerby by-election was caused by the resignation of John Belcher, parliamentary secretary to the Board of Trade, who figured prominently in the recent investigations into alleged bribes of government officials.

The Labor government has not lost a single Commons seat in 32 byelections since it took office in 1945.

In the 1945 election, Labor had a majority of 6933 votes at Sowerby in a three-cornered fight against a Tory and a Liberal.

Mission Here From Iceland For Pact Talk

By Coleman B. Jones
NYHT News Service

A high-ranking Icelandic mission arrived in Washington last night for discussions with the State Department on the basis of which that strategically situated island republic will decide whether it wants to join the impending non-Communist North Atlantic Security Alliance.

The Icelanders, who flew to Washington by way of New York, were headed by Foreign Minister Bjarni Benediktsson and included that government's Ministers of Trade and Education. They are expected to have their first conference with Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson today to begin finding out what they would gain by signing the North Atlantic pact and what their obligations would be.

Benediktsson explained their purpose briefly during the pause in their flight at LaGuardia Field.

"We have not decided if we will take part in it (the North Atlantic pact)," he said. "When we find out if there is a place for Iceland in the pact and if her special position is considered, we will report to Parliament, where the decision will be made."

The "special position" he mentioned apparently had to do chiefly with defense bases in his country. He emphasized that his government would not turn over to "foreign states" any military bases in Iceland in peacetime. Nevertheless, he made it clear that "the overwhelming majority of the (Icelandic) people are for close cooperation with the democratic nations if we can find a suitable place for Iceland for such cooperation."

Despite the fact that Communists have 20 per cent of the vote in Iceland, he said that his government had received no counter-proposals from Russia.

The status of strategic bases in the North Atlantic also has figured in similar discussions now under way between the State Department and a fact-finding cabinet delegation from Denmark, which has sovereignty over Greenland and obviously is under greater pressure from Moscow than Iceland is to stay out of the North Atlantic pact.

The Danish foreign minister, Gustav Rasmussen, is scheduled for further conferences at the State Department today and Tuesday before returning to Copenhagen to present his fact-finding conclusions to the Danish Parliament. He is expected to present a list of arms and military equipment that his nation needs for home defenses before his departure.

Diplomatic circles are convinced that the Danish Parliament will take the same action that the Norwegian Parliament took after similar exploratory talks here, which brought that nation into the con-

One Out of Six Virginia Brides Married Before

Richmond, Va., March 13 (AP). About one in six of all Virginia brides has been married before, according to figures furnished by the State Bureau of Vital Statistics today.

Actually, their chances of leading a man to the altar for a second trip figure out to be about one in 5.55, the bureau's marriage license statistics for 1947 indicate.

Last year's figures have not been completely compiled, but bureau statisticians believe the statistical percentage will not vary greatly.

The percentage of men who remarry is slightly higher. Bridegrooms who have walked to the tune of the wedding march two or more times accounted for one out of 5.75 of all 1947 marriages.

Blast Starts Berwyn Blaze; 3 Injured

The block-long Town Hall Shopping Center on Washington-Baltimore blvd. between College Park and Berwyn, Md., was destroyed early today by fire which set off an area-wide alarm.

At least three persons suffered minor injuries and were treated at Leland Memorial Hospital at Riverdale, police said.

The center, a rambling frame structure, housed a hand laundry, a grocery, a drug store, a barber shop, a florist shop and a restaurant.

The fire was discovered shortly after 12:30 a. m. and within minutes flames were shooting as high as 80 feet, attracting hundreds to the scene.

At one time during the fire, the structure was rocked by an explosion which shattered windows and blew wood from the burning building.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined. There was also no immediate estimate of damage. The shopping center is located about a half-mile north of the University of Maryland.

Reds Repeat Claims on Antarctica

London, March 13 (U.P.).—Russia in a statement broadcast by Moscow Radio restated its claims to rights in the Antarctic tonight and reminded Norway that it might claim Peter I Island off the coast.

It was pointed out here that the Moscow broadcast might have some significance after Norway's decision to join Atlantic pact talks and to refuse a treaty with Russia.

Russia cited the expedition to the Antarctic in 1819-1821 of Russian explorer Fabian Bellingshausen. Bellingshausen is credited with first sighting Peter I Island, which he named after Czar Peter.

Moscow's broadcast tonight was in the form of a statement by Prof. L. S. Berg, chairman of the All-Union Geographical Society.

"In 1931 and again in 1939 Norway claimed Island Peter I, first discovered by Russians in 1821," the statement said.

"On January 27, 1939, the Soviet government informed Norway that it could not consider Norway's action lawful and would reserve its point of view on ownership.

"It should be noted that at the same time the United States also reserved its viewpoint regarding sovereign rights.

"Thus this question remained unsolved in view of the statements of the two great powers.

"All attempts to solve the question without the participation of the Soviet government do not have justification. The question of the Antarctic must be dealt with by states which have historical rights to the Antarctic.

Bellingshausen was the first explorer to sight land within the Antarctic Circle but he did not discover the Antarctic continent. He first sighted tiny Peter I Island in what is now called the Bellingshausen Sea. He then proceeded nearer what was later found to be a continent, and discovered the larger Alexander Island just off the coast.

Girl, 9, Suffers Burns to Body From Coal Stove

A 9-year-old girl was seriously burned yesterday when her clothes caught fire as she brushed against a coal stove.

She is Veronica Redmond of 9 Portorico ave. ne., who was admitted to Children's Hospital suffering first and second degree burns to her arms, legs and body.

Police said she was saved from burns which may have proved fatal when her grandmother, Mrs. Lottie Hattie, tore the flaming dress from her.

425,000 Quit Coal Mines; Railways Lay Off 57,425

Stockpile of Coal Biggest Since '42 As Diggers Obey Call-Out by Lewis

Pittsburgh (Monday), March 14 (AP).—John L. Lewis' coal miners east of the Mississippi obeyed their chief today—they stayed at home.

Some 425,000 hard and soft coal diggers began the two-week work stoppage ordered by the president of the United Mine Workers. He says they'll stay out of the pits until March 28.

Lewis calls the work stoppage a memorial to miners killed and injured last year. He also terms it a protest against appointment of Dr. James Boyd as head of the United States Bureau of Mines. The Senate still has to approve President Truman's nomination of Boyd.

There's a huge coal stockpile above ground. It totals some 70 million tons, the biggest springtime stockpile since 1942. Consequently, steel and other coal-dependent industries do not expect to be affected immediately.

However, 11 railroads already have ordered 57,425 workers furloughed. Coal is a vital freight item for these roads. The payroll loss to the railroaders, alone, will be at least 5 million dollars for two weeks of idleness.

The miners, themselves, stand to lose at least $68,000,000 in wages. In at least two States, steps have been taken to file unemployment compensation claims to take up the slack.

The big question is whether the States will recognize such action. John P. Busarello, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers, says he thinks Pennsylvania will approve the claims he's told his 27,000 miners to file. If the Keystone State officials "don't come through, we'll fight it to the State Supreme Court," Busarello said.

In Pennsylvania, an unemployed person is entitled to $20 a week for 24 consecutive weeks. The payments begin in the second week of idleness.

Hugh White, president of UMW District 12, which has jurisdiction of all 24,000 Illinois members of the union, said his members will be instructed to seek unemployment compensation from the State. A Superior Court judge in Chicago recently ruled the miners are not eligible for compensation for time lost in a 1947 pension dispute. White says the ruling probably will be appealed to higher courts.

In Washington, Senator Byrd (D., Va.) called on the Senate to "promptly confirm" Dr. Boyd's appointment "as a reply" to the mine shutdown.

"John Lewis has called a strike

Truman Assailed As a 'Fugitive From Filibuster'

Hugh L. Scott, jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee, bitterly attacked the Democratic Eighty-first Congress yesterday and called vacationing President Truman a "fugitive from a filibuster."

Scott took Mr. Truman to task for "running off" to Florida while the Administration antifilibuster battle rages in the Senate.

"He chooses warm sun in preference to hot air," Scott said.

Scott, recovering from a back injury in a Washington hospital, sent a scorching message to GOP State chairmen meeting in Chicago to map strategy for the congressional elections of 1950.

Scott stuck the label "promise everything and do nothing" on the Eighty-first Congress. He charged that since it convened January 3 not a single Democratic campaign promise has been translated into law.

He said the public was beginning to understand the difference between the Eightieth Republican Congress, "which kept every important promise made during the 1946 campaign," and the present Congress.

Pulpit Talk Stirs Protests

Pastor Slips Wallace on Air, Starts Connecticut Tempest

Norwalk, Conn., March 13 (NYHT).—The Rev. Charles W. Lee, pastor of the South Norwalk Methodist Church, stirred up a hornet's nest here today by slipping Henry A. Wallace, without previous announcement, into a broadcast which was supposed to be devoted entirely to religious services.

Wallace, who delivered his speech from the church pulpit, was broadcast from 11:30 a. m. to noon. In the 10 minutes following his speech Station WNLK, according to its president, Dr. Benjamin Ginzberg, received 100 telephone calls of protest. Some, he said, came from Roman Catholic priests and the rest from Catholic and Protestant laymen.

Dr. Ginzberg, who called the proceeding "Trojan horse tactics with a vengeance," accused the minister of "smuggling in" a political speech. He said he was withdrawing the 55 minutes of free time allotted the church each Sunday in March.

The Rev. Mr. Lee had made preparations for Wallace's appearance, although there was no announcement of it. At the conclusion of the church service, printed copies of Wallace's 11 pages of text were handed out to the congregation.

The affair apparently stemmed from the withdrawal of Wallace, who was the Progressive candidate for President in the last election, as a speaker last month at a Lions Club luncheon in Danbury. The club canceled his speech because of protests from the pastors of Danbury's six Catholic churches.

Today's broadcast opened con-

Talks Gravely Complicated

Aqaba Troop Movements Seen Violation of Palestine Truce

Rhodes, March 13 (U.P.).—Acting United Nations Mediator Dr. Ralph J. Bunche declared tonight that Israeli and Trans-Jordan troop movements along the Gulf of Aqaba appeared to be violations of the Palestine truce.

Bunche said the Israeli advance to the Elath coastal strip may be a "serious breach of the truce."

Already it has resulted in "grave complications" in the delicate Israel-Trans-Jordan armistice negotiations, other sources said.

Technically, Bunche said, Trans-Jordan's maneuvers in the area were a truce violation also.

The acting mediator stressed, however, that he will not draw a final conclusion until he has received reports from United Nations observers ordered to Aqaba, Trans-Jordan's Red Sea port.

Reliable sources said the Security Council is pressing Bunche for a full report on the crisis.

If Trans-Jordan's complaint against Israeli troop movements is upheld by United Nations observers, authoritative sources said Bunche may recommend that the Council take "firm action" to force Israel to evacuate the strip bordering the gulf at the southern tip of the Negev desert.

(In Tel Aviv, official military spokesman Lieut. Col. Moshe Perlman confirmed that Jewish forces are "physically holding the entire frontier" less than two miles from Aqaba. Tel Aviv papers hailed it as a "definite end to all Arab Legion claims on the Negev.")

Senate Food Price Probe 'Ready to Go'

In House Tuesday

Close Test On Rents Expected

By the United Press

House Democratic leaders, waging a nip-and-tuck battle to extend rent controls for 15 months, voiced optimism yesterday that their bill would be passed Tuesday without "crippling amendments."

But Democrats and Republicans alike agreed that the showdown would be one of the closest legislative tests in years.

Administration forces, badly frightened by the narrow squeak their bill suffered in the first amending session Friday, spent the weekend trying to woo votes of "borderline" Representatives.

While the results of their "persuasion" campaign were hard to measure, supporters of the bill were noticeably more confident yesterday and foes were correspondingly more guarded in their predictions.

But Representative J. Percy Priest (D., Tenn.), House Democratic whip, said flatly yesterday that the bill is "out of the woods."

"There's no danger about final passage," he said. "That's assured."

He forecast that the "closest test" will come on an amendment to give States and local governments final authority to veto controls in their jurisdictions.

Representative Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.), a leader of the GOP floor fight against the bill, expects the crucial test to come on a motion to send the measure back to the Banking Committee with instructions to trim the extension down to 90 days.

A GOP floor move to amend the bill in that way was defeated Friday, 178-163.

Housing Chief's Ouster Demanded by Amvets

Des Moines, March 13 (AP).—The "immediate replacement" of Raymond Foley as administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, was urged today by Amvets, national organization of World War II veterans.

A resolution listed nine points on which the Amvets based the demand for Foley's recall. It also urged the immediate enactment by Congress of the Veterans Home Loan Act of 1949, introduced in the House by Representative Chet Holifield of California and in the Senate by Senator Elbert D. Thomas, Utah.

Truman, Vinson Attend Services At Post Chapel

Key West, Fla., March 13 (AP). President Truman and Chief Justice Vinson worshiped today with officers and enlisted men in the little post chapel at this naval submarine station.

The two walked the half-mile from Mr. Truman's quarters in the commandant's house with six members of the President's staff and secret service men.

They heard a sermon by the Methodist chaplain, Lieut. C. C. Hartung of Lombard, Ill. The young chaplain spoke on "The Coming Kingdom," taking his text from the Lord's Prayer.

"The Kingdom of God," he said, "is spiritual, not material. It is a matter of the transformation of the human heart rather than something to look forward to when you die."

Young GOP Convention Announced for June

Plans for a Young Republican convention in June at which youthful GOP members will be asked for their views on the party's future were announced yesterday by the Republican National Committee.

The convention will be held at Salt Lake City beginning June 23, with Fred L. Finlinson of Salt Lake City as chairman and Mrs. Ruth Stockton of Denver co-chairman.

A broad Senate investigation into prices of bread and other food, soap and many other items in the cost of living is "all ready to go," Senator Maybank (D., S. C.) said yesterday.

As chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, he has called on Government agencies for latest spread between prices consumers pay and those farmers get for their products.

The inquiry, he said, awaited the end of the Senate battle over the filibuster "to give us a little time for committee work."

The chairman said the price investigation wants to know:

Why are bread prices at their level in view of the wheat and flour price drops?

Why haven't lard, soap and shortening prices fallen off more? He cited declines in prices for tallow, hogs, cottonseed and soybeans that go into these products.

Maybank said he can't understand why some prices of farm products "have skidded down 50 per cent and more while retail prices for things made from them remain about as high as ever."

Both Maybank and Senator Tobey (R., N. H.), former Banking chairman under GOP control, said recent lowering of some prices probably has weakened support for President Truman's request for standby authority to fix prices and wages to halt inflation.

"But I'm not certain the recent declines are other than seasonal," Tobey told a reporter. "We may find prices climbing again later."

Tobey said Republicans on the Banking Committee had not been consulted about the general price probe.

Many Senators see little chance for the anti-inflation controls urged by President Truman.

"I don't think there is a chance to return to anything even similar to the O. P. A. control system," said Senator Millikin (R., Colo.).

Maybank said it might be possible to open his price hearings next week if the filibuster and rent control extension issues are settled in the Senate.

Commodities Up Again

were down about 35 per cent and were nearly as low as at any time since price controls were removed. Prices of most other classes of livestock have declined less. Cows, bulls and lower grades of steers have held up better in price than have better grade steers.

"Veal calves set a new record price in January."

As pointed out above, lamb prices are the highest in history for this time of year. The outlook is even more dismal. The Agriculture Department predicts the early lamb crop will be 6 per cent below last year—the smallest on record. In addition, the sheep and lamb numbers in the country are at the lowest since the Civil War.

The meat supply will begin to better itself when hogs will first be marketed from last fall's larger pig crop. In addition, BAE states:

"This year there will be more beef of the better grades that come from grain-fed cattle, and more pork, but less of other kinds of meat."

General Electric Cuts Prices on Many Lines

New York, March 13 (AP).—The General Electric Company today announced price reductions in many of its major lines of home appliances.

The price changes, effective immediately, will cover several refrigerator models, home freezers and electric ranges.

The company said the new prices will represent savings to the consumer on these items of up to $20 per model.

General Electric President Charles E. Wilson said that at the same time new models of several major consumer products would be introduced at prices "substantially below" those of the models they replace.

Included in the new items, Wilson said, would be a table model television set priced at $239, as compared to $325 for the lowest price formerly set for a similar receiver.

Filibuster Compromise Fails

TRY AGAIN—Spokesmen for key Senators who met yesterday in an attempt to work out a compromise reported afterward that "we have reached no understanding but we believe we are making progress." They will try again today. Shown left to right are: Scott Lucas (D., Ill.), Democratic leader; Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), leader of the Southern filibusterers, and Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.), Republican leader as they made the announcement that adoption of the compromise will require the unanimous consent of the Senate.

Thus one Republican or Administration Democrat who believes the cloture change should go further, or one Southern Democrat who thinks it goes too far, can hold up the whole works.

Then the nine working leaders will meet again in the afternoon to see if all differences can be compromised.

The proposals advanced yesterday were briefly that cloture (limitation of debate) could be invoked on any matter pending before the Senate, with one exception only—any further change in the rules. (Techanically the present unlimited debate is on a motion to change the rules, and not on the civil rights issues itself.)

The nine discussed cloture by (1) a two-thirds vote of those present and voting; (2) "constitutional" two-thirds—or two-thirds of the full membership of the Senate, and (3) a three-fourths cloture—or limitation by vote of three-fourths of those present.

Any of these three proposals would mean that any motion to call up additional changes in Senate rules would be subject to unlimited debate—just as the Senate can now debate without limit any motion to call up a bill.

Under any of the three proposals, fear of the imposition of majority vote cloture, which is favored by President Truman, would be removed. Rules Chairman Hayden and Wherry are known to have believed right along that fear of majority vote cloture, enabling a simple majority of a quorum to impose a senatorial gag, was behind much of the Southern opposition.

Includes "Die-Hards"

Actually only about 10 Democrats in the Senate and only 4 Republicans are all out for simple majority cloture. But this group includes some "die-hards" as does the Southern group which really wants no cloture at all.

The present Senate impasse came about when Administration forces, with GOP support, introduced an amendment to the Senate rules February 28 to permit two-thirds of the senators present to choke off debate on any issue. The Senate now is technical considering a motion to bring up the rules change.

Twenty-three Southerners, aided by 23 Republicans, defeated an Administration effort Friday night to permit a "gag" to be applied to the current filibuster against the motion.

The "constitutional two thirds" provision would mean that 64 Senators would have to vote to limit debate. A rule permitting cloture by three-fourths of those present would mean that if all 96 Senators were present, 72 would have to vote to shut off debate.

The Southern bloc is usually assured of 20 votes—more or less—and its members can usually count on a dozen votes or more from those Senators who believe that unlimited debate should always prevail.

Text of Compromise Resolution

Text of Senator Wherry's compromise resolution to end the filibuster impasse follows:

Resolved, that Subsection II of Rule XXII of Standing Rules of the Senate relating to cloture be and the same is hereby, amended (A) by inserting immediately after the words "pending measure" the words "involving any proposal for any change in any of the standing rules of the Senate" and (B) by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "As used in this subsection, the term 'pending measure' shall not include a motion to proceed to the consideration of such measure, or to a motion to amend or correct the journal."

Sec. 2, Rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, relating to cloture be, and the same is hereby, amended by adding at the end thereof, the following new subsection:

"3. If at any time, not withstanding the provisions of Rule III or Rule VI or any other rule of the Senate a motion, signed by 16 Senators to bring to a close the debate upon any measure, motion or other matter pending before the Senate or the unfinished business (exclusive of any proposal for any change in any of the Standing Rules of the Senate, is presented to the Senate, the presiding officer shall at once state the motion to the Senate and one hour after the Senate meets on the following calendar day but one, he shall lay the motion before the Senate and direct that the secretary call the roll, and, upon the ascertainment that a quorum is present the presiding officer shall, without debate, submit to the Senate by a yea-and-nay vote the questions:

"'Is it the sense of the Senate that the debate shall be brought to a close?'

"And if that question shall be decided in the affirmative by a three-quarters vote of those voting, then said measure, motion, or other matter pending before the Senate, or the unfinished business, shall be the unfinished business to the exclusion of all other business until disposed of.

"Therefater no Senator shall be entitled to speak in all more than one hour, on the measure, motion, or other matter pending before the Senate, or the unfinished business, the amendments thereto and motions affecting the same, and it shall be the duty of the presiding officer to keep the time of each Senator who speaks. Except by unanimous consent, no amendment shall be in order after the vote to bring the debate to a close, unless the same has been presented and read prior to that time. No dilatory motion, or dilatory amendment or amendment not germane shall be in order. Points of order, including questions of relevancy and appeals from the decision of the presiding officer, shall be decided without debate."

Medical Program Attacked, Backed By Congressmen

By The Associated Press

President Truman's prepaid medical insurance idea was both denounced and defended by congressional figures yesterday.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) called it a "nationalization of medicine" which would lead to "Federal bureaucrats going into every home."

But Representative Dingell (D., Mich.) called the Administration plan "the only sound and substantial method" likely to achieve success.

Those two were among participants in a radio and television "Meet Your Congress" broadcast here. The others were Senator Smith (R., N. J.) and Representative Biemiller (D., Wis.).

"Practically 80 per cent of the American people are able to meet their medical care," Taft said. He urged more cooperation between the Federal Government and States toward improvement of existing medical service.

In another broadcast, Senator Hunt (D., Wyo.), himself a dentist, said the Administration's health plans are likely to lead to a lower quality of dental and doctor care.

Fight Pressed On Nomination Of Wallgren

By The Associated Press

The Administration yesterday was reported applying heavy pressure on Senators in a desperate effort to salvage the nomination of Mon C. Wallgren to head the National Security Resources Board.

Wallgren, former Governor of Washington, and vacation trip crony of President Truman, has been accused of incompetency by Senator Cain (R., Wash.), a long-time political foe. President Truman praised Wallgren's ability in naming his former Senate associate.

The issue may come to a showdown Tuesday before the Senate Armed Services Committee. Unless some Senators change their minds before that time, a majority may vote to pigeonhole Wallgren's nomination.

It is against that possibility that Administration leaders are reported working hardest. They were said to be willing to accept an unfavorable report of the committee—if that is the best they can get—but are striving to prevent a tabling vote.

Even if the nomination were reported unfavorably, it could be brought before the Senate without trouble, and the issue threshed out there.

But a committee vote to table the nomination would force the Administration to resort to the seldom used, and seldom successful device of trying to discharge the committee's consideration of the nomination by a majority Senate vote.

As the matter stands in the committee now, the six Republican members are reported lined up solidly against letting Wallgren have the $14,000-a-year job. They need only one Democratic vote on the 13-member committee to put his nomination in cold storage and seem likely to get it.

A Republican Senator who asked not to be named publicly said he had been approached by Administration lieutenants with the plea that he cast his opposition vote only against approval of the nomination, and not to table it.

He was reminded, he said, that if the committee votes to table that might set a precedent for action when some Republican later is named to a Federal job He said he rejected the proposal.

Reorganization Veto Power To Be Asked for Both Houses

By the United Press

The Senate Executive Expenditures Committee is prepared to recommend that either house of Congress be given power to veto President Truman's Government reorganization plans, it was revealed yesterday.

If the Senate refuses to accept the plan the committee may offer a substitute flatly exempting the Army engineers and many other Government agencies from overall reorganization.

Each plan is sharply at variance with the recommendations of the President and the bipartisan Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization, headed by former Republican President Herbert Hoover.

Mr. Truman and the commission are backing a bill to give the President broad, permanent authority to reorganize the executive branch, subject to a veto of both houses within 60 days after a revamping program if offered.

The House has already passed such a measure, but it requires "single package" reorganization of several Federal agencies, including the Defense Department.

Hoover has objected to special treatment for the Defense Department, but not to others on the House list. They are the Federal Reserve System, Interstate Commerce Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, Railroad Retirement Board, National Mediation Board and Railroad Adjustment Board.

A coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats on the Senate committee, now considering the House bill, reportedly has reached informal agreement to wipe out the special treatment list but extend the veto power to either house.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), ranking committee Republican who sponsored the move, told a reporter he believes "there should be no bureau or agency exempt but either house should have the right to disapprove any reorganization plan."

"The only way for the President intelligently to set his house in order is to include all agencies," he said.

McCarthy believes the committee will eliminate the House preferred list, "but our bill will differ from theirs in that either house will have the right to upset any presidential plan."

ventionally with hymns and prayers. Then the pastor announced Wallace as the speaker, calling him "an earnest and devout Christian gentleman" whose "name alone is enough to strike fear into the hearts of people who do not know him except through the suspicious remarks of reporters and commentators."

Wallace recalled how he had sought in 1928 to persuade Iowans to vote for the late Alfred E. Smith for President. Although they had no enthusiasm, they listened politely, he said.

"In this connection," he said, "I cannot help contrasting the tactics used by the six priests to prevent me from speaking in Danbury."

He read a quotation which he said came from a 1946 copy of the American Ecclesiastical Review, which stressed the obligation of Catholics to believe that theirs was the only true religion and that every other was false and "opposed to God's plan for man's salvation."

"Of course," said Wallace, "you and I know that our Catholic neighbors do not hold views of this sort. They don't believe that we are heretics because we are not Catholic. They belong to our service clubs and we have the heartiest goodwill to them as neighbors. But we are concerned when the effort is made to identify Protestantism, Judaism, the YMCA, the YWCA and communism."

Wallace then launched into an exposition of his customary attacks on the Truman Doctrine, the Atlantic pact, universal military training and threats against Russia.

Dr. Ginzberg subsequently accused Wallace of having delivered an "attack on the Catholic Church."

Soviet Bread Grain Yield Tops U.S., 3-2

Russia harvested almost three bushels of bread grains (wheat and rye) last year for every two bushels raised in the United States, the Agriculture Department's Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations reported last night.

OFAR's annual estimates on world bread grain production showed Russia easily maintained her position as the greatest producer of bread grains, although her lead over the nearest rival, the United States, is only about half of what it was before the war.

Russia harvested 1025 million bushels of wheat and 925 million bushels of rye in 1948 for a total of 1950 million bushels.

Last year the United States raised more wheat than Russia, 1288 million bushels, but only 7[illegible] million bushels of rye, for a total of 1314 million bushels.

636 Million More

Thus Russia raised 636 million bushels more of the grains used for bread for human consumption than the United States.

However, in the prewar period, 1935-39, Russia raised an average of 1322 million more bushels of bread grains than the United States.

Russia's harvests in the prewar period averaged 1240 million bushels of wheat and 885 million bushels of rye for a total of 2125 million bushels. The United States at that time averaged 758 million bushels of wheat and 45 million bushels of rye for a total of 803 million. This was almost three times our yield.

The cut in the differential between the two countries was due to:

1. Steady but still incomplete recovery of Russian cropland from the ravages of war.
2. Greater production of wheat per acre in the United States, although Russian rye yields were slightly larger.
3. Lack of fertilizer in Russia.

The total wheat and rye harvests of Russia were raised on 168 million acres (95 million for wheat, 73 million for rye). The United States raised its crop on 74 million acres (72 for wheat, 2 for rye).

U. S. Yield Ahead

The yield per acre for wheat in the United States was 17.9; Russia raised only 10.8 bushels per acre. But Russia raised 12.7 bushels of rye per acre; the United States 12.6 bushels. Before the war Russia averaged 11.9 bushels of wheat to the acre; owing to war ravages and lack of fertilizer, etc., that dropped to 10.8 last year.

In the meantime the United States yields per acre went up from 13.2 prewar to 17.9 last year. (In 1947 this country harvested 18.4 bushels of wheat per acre.)

The United States was far down the list among the nations in the acreage yields of wheat. The top was Denmark with 54.6 bushels per acre; the Netherlands had 46; Belgium 41½ bushels.

The world's total crop of bread grains was 239 million short tons, OFAR estimated.

Slain Greek Priests Are Honored

Athens, March 13 (AP).—Prayers were recited in every Greek Orthodox church today in memory of 250 priests "butchered, hanged or crucified" by guerillas. The Holy Synod of Greece held a memorial service in Athens Cathedral.

Archbishop Damaskinos referred in an encyclical to "Greek-speaking Slav bandits" and said:

"These monstrous butchers, who became allies of dark forces of Greece's enemies, who destroyed churches, who desecrated altars and icons, who turned churches into places of orgy, who hang and crucify priests—about 250 of them so far—swore to conquer by force, fire and iron our sorely tried country."

A government communique reported the capture of a guerilla leader described as one of the Communists' most able and shrewd chieftains. The general staff communique said 22 guerillas were slain and 27 captured in the last 24 hours in the current Peloponnesus campaign.

Among the prisoners was 32-year-old guerilla leader Constantin Brettacos, who the government said was notorious for mass executions and ferocity.

Alliance Sets London Parley

London, March 13 (AP).—Representatives of the Brussels Alliance countries arrived tonight to discuss drawing other nations into the growing defense system for western Europe.

It was understood that the aim of a two-day conference to start Monday will be to bring into the defense arrangements for the Western Europe Union all countries on this side of the ocean which will join the North Atlantic pact.

The ministerial council will study the completed draft of the proposed North Atlantic treaty, one clause of which provides for setting up a consultative council, which in turn will appoint a defense committee.

Radio Moscow Assails West On 'Untrammeled Arms Race'

London, March 13 (U.P.)—Assertions of Russia's growing strength and the progressively aggressive policies of the United States and other Western countries are being emphasized at the meeting of the Russian Supreme Soviet, Moscow Radio said today.

Delegate Nikolai Firyubin, at Saturday's meeting, described the budgets of capitalist countries as "budgets of war," Moscow said, and added:

"Military expenditure is growing inordinately in the United States, Britain and other capitalist countries where an untrammeled armaments race is in progress.

"Under the guise of allegedly defensive alliances new aggressive blocs are being built up and pacts concluded which aim at unleashing war against the Soviet Union."

Deputy Jan Ostrov of the Latvian Republic was quoted:

"The Soviet people are a nation of victors. They won Russia from the capitalists . . . They can fight. Let this not be forgotten by the instigators of a new war."

Radio Moscow broadcast lengthy statements from various Soviet groups pledging their support for a proposed "World Council for Peace" in April, 1949.

The Women's International Democratic Association proposed the council, the broadcast said.

Alps Bore Part Of Road Plan

Geneva, Switzerland (Monday), March 14 (U.P.)—Plans for a tunnel through the Alps and a network of superhighways across the Continent were announced today by officials of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe.

ECE said a group of experts representing the United States, western Germany and 12 eastern and western European countries had recognized the "major advantages" of the tunnel and had agreed upon the road system.

Approving in principle the planned Alps tunnel, they said the French and Italian governments were negotiating possible routes

Benelux States To Abolish All Trade Barriers

The Hague, Netherlands, March 13.—(U.P.)—Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg announced tonight that all trade barriers among the three countries will be abolished by July 1, 1950.

The announcement was a first dramatic result of the Marshall Plan's drive to free the flow of goods to help European recovery. Many Western diplomats also hoped it would be the first step to tearing down trade restrictions all across Europe.

Sixty-three officials and experts of the Benelux states worked out the program during four days here. They announced that by July 1 of next year:

1. All economic frontiers among the countries, such as government control of exports, will be abolished.
2. Benelux currencies will be freely convertible.
3. Belgium and Luxembourg will grant loans to the Netherlands, which in turn will de-ration all commodities except coal. This will tend to open new markets for goods from Belgium and Luxembourg.

In reaching agreements with the rest of the world, Benelux will negotiate as a single nation.

Java Guerillas Raid City, Burn 18 Shops

Soekaboemi, Java (Monday), March 14 (AP).—Strong Republican guerilla forces early today drove into the center of this West Java city and burned to the ground 18 shops before withdrawing under Dutch army fire.

Soekaboemi, 60 miles south of Batavia, is not in recently captured Republican territory. It has been under Dutch control since the first Dutch "police action" of 1947.

Italy Faces Anti-Alliance Strike Threat

Rome, March 13 (U.P.)—Communist labor leaders threatened the government today with a nation-wide general strike if it draws Italy into the Atlantic pact. The Communists called out paid agitators to work up opinion against the alliance.

The executive council of the Communist-controlled National Federation of Labor called a special meeting for 7 p. m. Monday (1 p. m. EST) to discuss "the question of a general strike."

"Flash strikes" already have been called as a protest in industrial north Italy.

The Communists plastered posters throughout Rome and other large cities proclaiming: "Peace! Peace! The Atlantic Pact is a War Pact."

Offsetting the Communist posters were Christian Democratic Party placards denouncing Russian foreign policy.

Because a scheduled Sunday meeting of Parliament was postponed late Saturday night the Communists had no time to organize large demonstrations. Small protest meetings were held throughout the country, however.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi had called an unusual Sunday session in a move to speed debate on the Atlantic pact and rush a vote before the Communists could swing their propaganda weapons into line. The plan fell through when bitter debate held the meeting far into the night.

Vatican City, March 13 (U.P.)—Adeodato Cardinal Piazza told the Palatine honor guard today to be alert against possible "horrendous" crimes by Communists against Pope Pius XII.

25 Soviet Expatriates in U. S. Organize to 'Liberate' Russia

New York, March 13 (AP). — A group of 25 Russian expatriates, including Alexander F. Kerensky, organized today a committee for the announced purpose of "liberating Russia from the Communist dictatorship."

The group adopted the name "Union for the Liberation of the People of Russia," and said it seeks the establishment of "a free and genuinely democratic Russia."

Members of the group include Kerensky, premier of the provisional government of Russia following the overthrow of the Czar in 1917; Victor Chernov, president of the constituent assembly dissolved by Lenin in February, 1913, and Raphael Abramovitch, expatriate leader of the Socialist Party, now outlawed in the Soviet Union.

The committee said its objectives would include:

1. Abolition of the Communist Party and of "all organs of dictatorship and terror."
2. Annihilation of all concentration camps and the liberation of all political prisoners.
3. "A foreign policy based on law and justice, barring all forms of aggression and arbitrary interference in the internal affairs of other States; permanent and active participation in international organizations aiming at the prevention of war, and the establishment of the rule of law in international relations."

Tortoises Move Fast

London, March 13 (U.P.)—One hundred tortorises arrived by plane, 31 hours after leaving Johannesburg, South Africa. Air officials figured it would have taken the fastest tortoise some 26 years to have covered the 5850 miles in the old hare-racing days.

Pact Seen as Check To German Threat

A picture of the North Atlantic defense pact, backed by military force, as a strong deterrent to a renewed German aggression was given in a report of the Foreign Policy Association yesterday.

The report, entitled "Germany Today: Security versus Recovery," was written by Dr. Jane Perry Clark Carey, assistant professor of government, Barnard College, and consultant to the Office of Military Government for Germany last summer.

"French anxiety about a resurgent Germany is real and cannot be dismissed," Dr. Carey wrote, but she noted that the "security safeguards" set up by Western Allies of the United States, Britain and France to prevent a new German war of aggression are "greater than ever before."

"The Military Security Board has been set up to exercise military and industrial controls," she said. "The International Ruhr Authority has been created, although its establishment does not satisfy the French and has aroused opposition on the part of the Germans who find the agreement acceptable to them only if international control of heavy industry is also imposed on other industrial areas of Europe.

"The proposed North Atlantic defense pact, backed by military force, would perhaps be the most important security arrangement contemplated thus far."

The report recommended that at least the three Western powers taking part with the Soviet Union in the occupation of Germany clarify their aims to show how they intend to help Germany once more stand on her own feet, "prosperous and free, but not dangerous."

"In the construction of the economy and government of the western zones, there are marked differences between Britain and the United States on one side, and France on the other," Dr. Carey said.

She warned that France's anxious fear of an aggressive Germany "may be causing what may ultimately prove a greater danger—the rebirth of an embittered Germany determined on revenge . . .

The report declared that "western Germany is on its way to recovery" but that "there is reason to believe economic conditions are deteriorating in the Soviet zone." The report said:

"Soviet reparations and dismantling practice, high demands of the occupation on the economy, and lack of foreign credits have made economic improvement difficult if not impossible in the Soviet zone.

"Allied economic policy concerning Germany has come to be a crazy quilt in which the various pieces do not fit or match. The basic difference between the Eastern and Western allied powers has become so great that two different economies have been developed, scarcely capable of reconciliation with each other in either industry or agriculture."

that was moved into Aqaba at the height of the Palestine war.

(The British-controlled radio at Cyprus, heard in Tel Aviv, warned that "any incident at Aqaba easily could lead to war." The broadcast was in Arabic.)

Officials said the situation in the Negev is complicated because there have been no front lines, only patrol activity. However, it appears the Jews moved into the Elath strip in force, they said.

Trans-Jordan sources said Israeli troops drove south inside Palestine in two columns. One column was stopped by the Arab Legion, which crossed into Palestine north of Umm Rashrash, but the other slipped into Egypt and from there into Umm Rashrash, they said.

cluding phases of the treaty negotiations.

The draft of the agreement was completed Saturday.

That publication of the treaty's terms on Friday will provide several weeks for general discussion before it is actually signed by the participants at a ceremony in Washington early in April. It also is expected to be the signal for acceleration of the Soviet government's short-of-war efforts to frighten as many non-Communist nations as possible away from participation in the pact.

At present, eight nations are lined up to sign the pact—the United States, Canada, Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and Norway. Participation in the signing by Portugal, which controls the strategic Azores, appears to be in greater doubt than that of Denmark, Iceland and Italy.

Not until after the signing will the treaty be presented to the United States Senate and the parliaments of the other nations for ratification. Senate Foreign Relations Committee leaders already have indicated that they would favor ratification of the agreement, which will declare that an act of aggression against any signer will be recognized as an attack on all and that the others then shall consider what action, including the use of armed force, they may wish to take to insure the security of all of them.

Meanwhile, despite the powerful sentiment in Congress for United States ratification of the pact, demands for a strong policy to resist the encroachment of Communists in the Far East are threatening trouble for supplementary legislation that Congress will be called upon to enact to back up the North Atlantic alliance.

This centers about a letter signed last week by 50 Senators in support of a bill by Senator Pat McCarran, (D., Nev.) to authorize a $1,500,000,000 program of economic and military aid to the Nationalist government of China.

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, has forwarded the letter to Secretary Acheson with a request for his comment on the demand for "an affirmative policy . . . with respect to Asia." He has been represented as having told a group of House Republicans recently that the State Department preferred to follow a "wait and see" course with respect to China "until the dust settles" there and its situation becomes less "fluid."

Senator McCarran and other signers of the letter have indicated that they would await Secretary Acheson's comment on their position before deciding how far to go in holding up an expected request for legislation to authorize a two billion dollar military aid program for western Europe.

Danish Minister Refuses To Hold Pact Referendum

Odense, Denmark, March 13 (AP).—Danish Prime Minister Hans Hedtoft tonight dismissed opposition demands that the government hold a referendum on whether Denmark should join the proposed North Atlantic alliance.

"As far as I know, no free country in the world has held a referendum on a matter like this and in my opinion the most correct thing to do in our situation is to let Parliament make the decision," Hedtoft told a trade union meeting here.

The Liberal Party recently demanded a referendum. The Communists supported the demand.

China Reds Tighten Yangtze Pressure

Nanking, March 13 (U.P.).—New Premier Ho Ying-chin prepared to come here Monday from Hangchow to form a new cabinet as ominous Communist troop movements north of the Yangtze River indicated the Reds were ready to apply more pressure to force an early government surrender.

The Communists already have tightened their pressure on the Yangtze defense line by stationing from 200,000 to 500,000 troops across the river just east of Nanking and massing thousands of small boats.

Chinese reports today said from three to five columns (from 60,000 to 100,000) of Communist Manchurian Commander Lin Piao's troops had arrived at the Hsuchow rail hub, 250 miles north of Nanking, where main government forces defending Nanking were defeated early this year.

Provisional People's Government Set Up

San Francisco, March 13 (AP).—The Chinese Communist radio announced today that a "provisional people's government" had been organized in the area directly north of the Yangtze River—the last region captured from the Nationalists.

One-eyed Communist Gen. Liu Po-cheng was listed as one of 21 government councilmen.

give his full supprt to your brother Paul in the last congressional election," Clendenin Ryan's telegram said.

Asked by reporters if he thought Detective Ryan's escape from City Hall was "fixed," Ryan replied replied: "I think O'Dwyer can answer that better than I can. He has the biggest police force in the world and it shouldn't be hard to find one little detective."

Ryan was served with a subpena only a few hours after he had sent a caustic telegram to O'Dwyer saying he would be on hand for questioning Monday and did not need to be subpenaed.

"Dear Costello O'Dwyer," his wire read. "The newspapers report that you plan to subpena me upon my return to the city. This will not be necessary. I suggest that you save a bit of the city's money, since I will gladly call on District Attorney (Frank) Hogan of my own free will, without subpena, if he desires to question me (despite the fact it is generally known his office is dominated by Tammany Hall.)"

Ryan listed an hour-by-hour schedule of his planned activities for today and Monday, for the Mayor's convenience, and signed his wire "Please remind your gang—beware the Ides of March. Delenda este Costello." (In Latin, Costello must be destroyed.)

Ryan, a former secretary to the late Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia and an outspoken leader of a "good government" movement opposing O'Dwyer, has denied any knowledge of the wire-tapping plot. The district attorney's office has not made clear what Ryan's connection with the case, if any, might be. But Hogan had threatened to subpena him.

Three others in the bizarre case have been subpenaed to appear before the New York County grand jury at 11 a. m. Monday. They are John G. Broady, one of Ryan's attorneys; his secretary, Mrs. Rose Coughlin, and Edward Jones, a former Treasury Department agent. Jones is alleged to be an accomplice of the missing Kenneth Ryan, former city detective who admitted he was tapping the wires of city officials.

In his wire to O'Dwyer, Clendenin Ryan warned he planned to "call on 'Your Honor' at City Hall at 11 a. m. and will ask you one or more additional questions." (On the O'Dwyer administration.) "At that time won't you please give me the answer to the 11 questions I put to you during the past week?"

Burmese Battle Karen Rebels In Mandalay for City Control

Rangoon, March 13 (AP).—The Burma government said today "heavy fighting" is going on in Mandalay, a part of which already is in the hands of Karen rebels.

The Karens drove into Mandalay, Burma's second largest city, Friday night after spearing through the government defense line at Hotonbo, 13 miles away.

Mandalay, 500 miles north of Rangoon, has a normal population of about 200,000.

Today's military bulletin said a large-scale offensive is to be launched soon against the Karen tribesmen, who are fighting for creation of their own separate state of Karenistan. They have been aided in some places by Communists.

The announcement said the offensive—along a 180-mile front—would aim at recapturing rebel-occupied postions between Toungoo and Kyaukse. The rebels also hold Toungoo itself.

Gvernment planes raided Karen headquarters at Insein, 10 miles north of here, the communique said. It added that food and ammunition dumps were blown up and the water station badly damaged.

Too High A Price

Compromise is in the air on Capitol Hill. Apparently the leaders of the Senate have concluded that they must pay a price for the right of pressing their program, including several emergency measures, to a vote. The necessity of action this month for extension of rent control authority is generally recognized. The real question is what the price of ending the filibuster will be. If we are correctly informed as to the compromise that came to the front in yesterday's closed conferences, the price would be excessively high.

Senate leaders are said to be contemplating acceptance of an amendment to the Hayden resolution. As reported out of the Rules and Administration Committees, that resolution would permit the closing of debate on any kind of motion, measure or other items of business before the Senate by a two-thirds vote. The amendment now brought forward, however, would attempt to preclude any future change in the cloture rule itself, except by an affirmative vote of a three-fourths majority. Obviously the purpose is to assure the Southerners that President Truman's proposal for closing debate by a simple majority vote will not be pressed.

It is clear that there is no chance of inducing the Senate to accept majority cloture at present. But this suggested compromise seeks to close the door to the adoption of a more liberal rule on the limitation of debate. That would unreasonably mortgage the future. The time may come when it will be imperative for the Senate to limit debate by majority vote to transact its ever increasing load of business. The only thing to be said for the proposed amendment is that it probably could not be made effective. For any future Senate may change its rules regardless of what the present Senate decides. Even so, this proposal seems to us shortsighted, and by no means the best way of ending the filibuster.

Behind The Times

President Truman recently told a news conference that the only drop in prices had been in farm products, while lead, zinc, iron and so forth, are on the same old upward spiral. Evidently the President does not keep abreast of price developments. For if he did, he would have known that the prices of many metals have recently been declining. When he made his mistaken pronouncement, the price of heavy steel scrap was 10 per cent lower than at the beginning of the year and it dropped again a few days ago. This decline will reduce the steel industry's production costs and probably result in declines in prices of finished steel products. Lead prices, too, are down 2 cents per pound. Moreover, premium prices for iron, steel, lead and copper, which are not shown in market quotations, are declining or disappearing as supplies become more abundant, with the result that the production costs of industrial consumers of these metals have decreased.

Prices are also declining in other nonagricultural production lines. For instance, a large coal mining company has just announced a reduction in industrial coal prices. The downward trend in textile prices was reflected last week in the bids received by the Army from textile manufacturers on uniform cloth. Retail clearance sales are another significant sign of the relaxation of buying pressures that warrant a forecast of lower prices for a wide range of articles.

In face of the evidence the President's stubborn insistence that the country is still endangered by spiraling inflation may be regarded as a tactical move to gain support for his anti-inflation program. His failure to face the facts is more likely to alienate supporters than gain adherents. For when the head of the Government shows such poor judgment in appraising business trends, the public will not be inclined to trust him with the extensive powers of control over prices and production for which he has asked.

Public mistrust will be heightened, moreover, by the kind of advice that is being handed out so liberally by Leon Keyserling, one of the members of the President's Advisory Council, who loses no opportunity to expound and defend the Administration's anti-inflation program. Mr. Keyserling's record in helping to shape and administer regulatory legislation indicates a bias in favor of Government intervention that is reflected in his current speech-making. He perceives a failure of some basic industries, such as steel, aluminum, and power, to increase their productive capacities. Economists who base their forecasts on an objective study of current business developments will not be deceived by Mr. Keyserling's unrealistic analysis of present trends, which is obviously designed to support demands for imposition of price controls and Government-financed expansion of basic industries. Nor is it likely that his warnings will convince Congress that the way to avoid a depression is to put ceilings on prices of commodities such as metals, fuels, and house furnishings and force expansion of productive facilities by industries that are already cutting prices as supplies become more abundant and sales resistance increases.

Lag On Point IV

Unless the State Department and ECA bestir themselves, the world will soon conclude that President Truman really does not want "a bold new program" for raising production in undeveloped areas. If there has been any effort to carry out Point IV of the President's inaugural address, it has moved with glacial speed. More than six weeks have gone by since the President asked the State Department to work out a "plan of action" with other agencies of the Government. Within the same space of time after Secretary Marshall's speech at Harvard in 1947, the President had set up three committees, one of them a citizens' group of superb ability, to study the problem; officials of sixteen European countries had met in Paris to set up a permanent organization, and working parties had been formed here and in Paris to translate the Harvard speech into action.

The same air of energy and conviction is not discernible now in meeting the challenge of Point IV. A working group of eight Government agencies here, under State Department chairmanship, has met for weeks in an effort to find the right answers; so far it has done little more than ask some of the right questions. The ECA still has almost six million dollars to spend on technical assistance to other countries, but its officers here and in Paris seem to regard this sum as untouchable while other issues have priority. Only two significant steps have been taken in recent weeks to make the dream of Point IV come true. The first is the President's decision to extend the life of the Institute of Inter-American Affairs, and to double the American contribution to its work of public health, agricultural development and teaching in cooperation with sixteen Latin-American republics. The second step, taken under strong urging from the State Department, was passage of a resolution by the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations, calling upon the secretariat to draw up a long-range program of technical assistance and financing for development projects.

Ultimately the U. N. secretariat may produce an excellent program, but the United States is not thereby relieved of the need to take leadership in this field. No other country has the energy or the technical resources or the present-day experience or, in time, the reserves of private capital that can be put to work in the undeveloped areas. The problem involves technical assistance first, and financing later; its solution will be hastened if those who are drawing up the American "plan of action" put first things first. There is no need to wait until a complete plan, involving both technical assistance and financing can be tied in pink ribbon and submitted to President Truman for the approval of Congress. The technical resources of this country can be put to work quickly, with comparatively little new legislation and at modest cost. We have pointed out already that there is nothing mysterious or unworkable about showing others how to reclaim swamps or irrigate deserts or dredge harbors. The technical agencies of the Government have been doing just this on a small scale for years; they are bursting with energy and with willingness to do more.

Nobody expects to see productive enterprises springing up quickly in remote and impoverished areas; the project is bound to ripen more slowly than the European Recovery Program. But a start must be made, and soon. It will help if it is tackled by a few officials giving it their full time rather than by many harassed officials trying to deal with a dozen other pressing problems at the same time. It will help, too, if there can be leadership of the same driving, resourceful quality that Paul Hoffman has given to ECA in the past year. Five years from now, this attack on the undeveloped areas may be more important to the future of the American people than the outcome of the Cold War. It can win us partners in India, in Latin America, in dozens of other areas that now are backwaters of American interest and concern. It can become the most important single undertaking of American foreign policy. There is no time to lose in getting it under way.

Closed Aviation

The Civil Aeronautics Board is in a devil's dilemma in trying to decide what to do about the nonscheduled air carriers. If it cracks down on the irregulars, as the certificated airlines wish, it will drive most if not all the nonscheduled outfits out of business. If it continues the present confusion, it will sanction an evasion of the spirit of the Civil Aeronautics Act that may harm the regular carriers.

To some extent the CAB is the victim of its own lack of foresight—though it is questionable whether anyone could have predicted just how the irregular traffic would develop. As far back as 1938 the board issued an order exempting irregular operators from the Civil Aeronautics provision requiring a certificate of public convenience and necessity. At the end of the war this exemption was a precedent for a great expansion of nonscheduled traffic. More than 100 letters of registration were issued to new companies, many of them staffed by veterans and using war surplus aircraft.

Unquestionably these lines have shown initiative in developing lower-cost markets for passengers and freight. The hitch is that flights have in fact become regular and standardized. This is a clear violation of the purpose of the exemption. Moreover, the old-line carriers complain, with considerable justification, that the newcomers do not meet the safety and maintenance requirements of the certificated lines.

In bringing pressure on the CAB, the older lines have argued that the irregular carriers have been skimming the cream off the lucrative long-haul business between large cities, whereas the certificated lines must maintain less profitable service to smaller cities. The irregulars retort that they actually have tapped new markets for aircoach service and that they have taken little if any luxury business away from the older lines. Obviously this is a question that can be settled only through an objective survey.

Another more fundamental problem is involved. Congress, in the Civil Aeronautics Act, decided that the public interest was not served by unlimited competition in aviation. Clearly this implies an obligation to protect the lines which have met the requirements for certificates. It does not imply, however, that aviation is a closed cartel. Just as the CAB should be vigorous in insisting on efficient operations, so it should appreciate the need to expand aviation potentials through infusions of new blood. Perhaps the answer is to certificate certain of the irregulars if a survey justifies their operations. Whatever is done, however, should be done with the full understanding that regulations will be enforced. No law or rule can be effective when, as in the case of the present exemption order, it is honored largely in the breach.

Trouble Ahead

The Lewis order to suspend mining east of the Mississippi for a two-week memorial period will distress miners who will be deprived of their pay and result in loss of revenue and layoffs by coal-carrying railroads. But with coal stockpiles at the highest level reached since 1942, demands for coal slackening and prices slipping, many coal operators will welcome the shutdown, while industrial activity in general will not be seriously affected. Nevertheless, this strike, which Mr. Lewis, by a distorted interpretation of the UMW wage contract, insists is an authorized stoppage, constitutes a threat to the national welfare. For it is a demonstration aimed at coercion of the Senate of the United States—the latest move in the long fight waged by the mine leader to block confirmation of the appointment of Dr. James Boyd as director of the Federal Bureau of Mines.

We hope Senator O'Mahoney is right in his belief that this arrogant attempt to dictate to the Senate will insure favorable action on the nomination by the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, of which he is chairman. But, regardless of the fate of Dr. Boyd, this latest move of Mr. Lewis is a reminder of the dangerous consequences of depriving the Government of the right to resort to injunctive relief in case of national emergency strikes. For the strike just called is only a preliminary skirmish serving the dual purpose of a demonstration against Dr. Boyd and a means of strengthening Mr. Lewis' bargaining power when the negotiation of a new contract gets under way this spring. By reducing the size of coal stockpiles, and possibly preventing further reductions in coal prices, the UMW would be in a better position to press for another round of wage increases and benefits and to enforce its demands by calling another strike that would really create a national emergency.

At present the injunction weapon makes it possible for the Administration to delay a strike for at least 80 days. But the pending labor bill with its feeble provision for a 30-day cooling-off period while a presidential fact-finding board is investigating the dispute, would not put any compulsion on unions to refrain from striking during the 30 days, and the recommendations of such boards would be purely advisory. If he were freed from the restraints of the Taft-Hartley emergency strike provisions, Mr. Lewis could close the mines until transportation tieups and industrial shutdowns either forced the mine operators to sign a new contract on his terms or else compelled the Government to intervene as a last resort to protect the public interest.

CITY VIGNETTE—SNOWSCAPE

From a white bridge
In the silvered silence
Here now at last we see
An Arctic tableau
At a temperate curtain-call . . .

Good and evil both lie boldly
In laminated scenes of black and white—
A kind of metropolitan allegory
Fashioned on a huge woodcut
Found in an old portfolio of winter . . .

The stark contrast of earth and snow
Is a pattern of question and answer—
A winter catechism memorized each year
By pious winds and clouds and sky . . .

And here is the world's cold logic:
Each white premise
Italicized against the leafless trees
With all of man's insignificant syllogisms
Buried under the supreme reasoning
Of a winter snowfall.

After The Pact

THE ATLANTIC PACT'S last dot and comma are now in place. But work has not been completed on the Atlantic Pact's Siamese twin, the measure to give the pact meaning by helping western Europe to rearm. Major decisions, including final estimates of the first year's cost, remain to be taken, and must be taken very shortly. However, the main outlines of the rearmament program are now emerging, as a result of endless, hurried conferences in the State Department, the Pentagon and General Montgomery's Western Union staff headquarters in Paris.

If—and it is a much bigger if than most people realize—the Congress approves the program, it will consist of two main phases. The first phase is to be completed during the first year after Congress appropriates the necessary money for the American share.

This phase is designed to assure the internal security of the western European countries. To this end, 12 existing divisions will be re-equipped with modern armaments, including tanks, armored cars, artillery, and above all good transport. These existing divisions are now so poorly equipped that they do not provide complete security against Communist disorders, especially since the Communists are known to have very large stocks of hidden arms.

When these divisions are rearmed, and internal security assured, the second phase will begin, at the start of the second year. This phase, designed to provide external security, will be much more difficult than the first. The aim is to provide sufficient military force so that in case of war most or all of western Europe could be denied to the Red army. In the second year, tenative plans call for eight new divisions; for a total of 20, and in the third year 10 more, for a total of 30. No detailed planning has been done beyond the third year.

THERE is one question which has not been answered. How great a force is needed to take, and stop, the initial assault of the Red army in case of war? The strategic planners in the Pentagon and on General Montgomery's staff in Paris are wrestling with this problem, and have yet to agree on an answer.

The question cannot be answered, of course, merely in terms of numbers of divisions. All are agreed that the western European force, of however many divisions, must consist of elite troops, and must be superbly equipped, with much armor and artillery, a big armored reserve, and above all unquestioned tactical air superiority, if it is to hold the vast Red army until help can arrive. Given such troops and equipment, there is some opinion that even at the end of the second year, with 20 superior divisions, much of western Europe could be held in case of war.

General Dwight Eisenhower, who as temporary chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has of course been occupied with the problem, is said to share this opinion. No doubt Eisenhower has in mind the primitive supply methods of the Red army, which he saw at first hand. Other strategic planners place the minimum at 40 divisions. Obviously much will depend on the great Soviet armament effort now under way. Under any circumstances, external security for Western Europe will not be easily or cheaply attained.

THE OVER-ALL COST of the program to this country cannot possibly be accurately estimated. It will depend largely on the degree of European recovery, which will in turn measure the Europeans' ability to help themselves. Final estimates for the first year's cost are still being hammered out. The figure will probably be decided very shortly. The best guess is now in the neighborhood of a billion and a half dollars. If the figure falls below a billion it can be taken as fairly certain that the policy-makers have succumbed to fear of Congress and cut the figure below what will be required to do the job.

It is important to understand the nature of the job to be done. By no stretch of the imagination can the program outlined above be considered a preparation for aggression against the Soviet Union. No one can be sure whether 20, or 30, or 40 divisions could hold the immense Red army temporarily at bay in case of war. But even 40 divisions could not conceivably drive through 500 divisions of the Red army to Moscow and beyond.

Instead, the intention is to provide, first, that sense of security which western Europe now disastrously lacks, and second, some form of insurance against the day when the Soviet physicists invent their atom bomb. That day will surely come, probably by 1952, according to the best estimates, with the Soviet bomb being produced in effective numbers by 1957. If by that time western Europe is still defenseless, the men in the Kremlin will be faced with an almost over-powering temptation. If western Europe can be defended, an uneasy balance of power may at least be possible. That is about the best that can be hoped for.

But with the Congress in its present business-as-usual mood, even that hope is beginning to look dim.

Indians' Rights

Speaking for the Paiute Indians, we would very much like to get over our message of opposition to a bill by Senator McCarran which would force the Pyramid Lake Paiute Indians to transfer title of a part of their reservation to certain trespassers who have been using it illegally.

The Pyramid Lake Indian Reservation was set aside for the Paiutes by administrative direction in 1859. A short time later several families of white settlers moved on to a part of this area. In 1916 11 suits in ejectment were brought by the Government against certain of these "squatters." One of these suits went to trial and was settled in favor of the Indians. In 1917 a bill was introduced permitting the white settlers to obtain title to the land. No further actions in ejectment were prosecuted and several years later the bill became law and under its provisions most of the settlers secured patents.

However, some of the "squatters" refused to either move off the land or to legalize their possession of it. In 1938 the United States Government started proceedings to oust them. The District Court ruled against the Indians but the Circuit Court of Appeals reversed this judgment. On April 3, 1944, the United States Supreme Court made the judgment finally in favor of the Indians.

Senator McCarran has for many years been trying to push through a bill to give these trespassers still another chance to take this land away from the Indians without their consent. It seems to us that this is not an American way to treat the Indians, many of them being young men who fought for their country and depend upon their land for their very existence. These Indians need this land; due to increases in their population they are overcrowded on their reservation and are fast approaching the point of bare marginal subsistance.

Balanced Economy

We are gambling on high employment and prosperity. Not only our foreign policy but our enormously expanded production plant depends upon them.

"We still do not know," says Mr. Soule in his recent Introduction to Economic Science, "whether the kind of society we have is capable of making good use of the science of economics. Will those who must make decisions pay sufficient attention to the organized facts?"

It is too soon to answer Mr. Soule's question. But the immediate prospect of our getting economic education seems bleak when top level reporters on "Meet the Press" put such emphasis on prying out of Dr. Keyserling his guess on whether we are or are not entering a depression! What we must learn is how we can get cooperation enough to provide an effective balance wheel for our economy. What we must learn is that certain practices reduce purchasing power and throw our economy out of balance.

We need name only a few of these practices to realize that we are already far out on thin ice:

1. Millions of expensively educated specialists and white collar cohorts now "ride on" our economy instead of helping to pull it.

2. Incalculable material and spiritual strength is unused and perverted because of the resistance to change of many highly influential manufacturers in dealing with their unions; they generate distrust and mutual bitterness which not only bar improvement through teamwork but also foster restrictive practices in both camps.

3. Ignoring the large sectors which have established partial or complete monopolies, where competition still exerts force, it drives prices down only to the level asked by the most costly plants whose output is needed. All but those marginal plants get excess profits.

Do not ask, therefore, whether prices are rising or falling; ask whether there is a gap between what staples should cost and what they do cost. Do not ask whether we have inflation or deflation; ask whether we are acting in a way calculated to maintain high employment; ask whether we deserve a balanced economy. And ask whether, in addition to the economic talent now supplied by the Employment Act of 1946, we do not also need leadership which brings understanding of just what fiscal adjustment can do for us and what we should not expect of it.

"Academic Tyranny"

As a general rule, I can indorse your editorials, but not the one of March 1, defending academic freedom to the extent that you want to approve teachers who admit being members of the Communist Party.

Any man or woman so affiliated who teaches in our public institutions of learning is under oath to the Kremlin to literally follow the principles prescribed by communistic party leaders. They have received instructions in the party's program of indoctrinating pupils without exposing their objective. The teacher who fails to carry out this program violates his oath to the Kremlin. He is, therefore, disqualified as a teacher by dishonesty. He is also dishonest if he does not acknowledge his party membership. This logic is equally applicable to any public servant.

H. J. ARNETT.
Washington.

Editor's note: The editorial in question did not approve teachers who admit membership in the Communist Party. It conceded that possibly no harm would be done by the teaching of a Communist geologist, musician, or mathematician who did not take seriously his Communist vows. But the point of the editorial was that Communists in general are not free seekers after truth and are therefore not fit teachers in American colleges.

Nomination Of Mr. Wallgren

When President Truman nominated former Senator Mon C. Wallgren to be chairman of the National Security Resources Board, I assumed that the Senate would not hesitate in confirming a man of his experience and caliber. Four terms in the House of Representatives, one in the United States Senate and one as Governor of the State of Washington certainly present an unusual and striking record of experience in public affairs.

Accordingly, I did not think that it was at all necessary to stress to anyone the fact that Mon C. Wallgren, as a United States Senator, had been one of the leading, most active and most capable members of the Truman Senate Investigating Committee from its inception in 1941 until he became Governor of Washington in 1945.

As chief counsel of the Truman Committee from its inception until August, 1944, I particularly am familiar with the contribution of Mon Wallgren to the committee's work up to that time. It was Mon Wallgren who, from the very inception of the committee, stressed the necessity of obtaining a sufficient production of aluminum and magnesium to permit the Government to plan for the construction of tens of thousands of aircraft. Mon Wallgren refused to accept the reasoning of Stettinius and others that there would be plenty of materials because he knew that the War Department's plans were fragmentary and could not be relied upon and believed that we should get the materials so that they would be available when the War Department was able to make a good procurement program. The Truman Committee has been generally accorded credit for forcing upon the country a realization of the need for more production of aluminum and magnesium, and for compelling important changes in war production plans so that the United States could and did receive more of these vital metals quicker and at less cost. In all of this, I reiterate, Senator Wallgren was a key figure.

While serving as a member of the Truman Committee, Senator Wallgren was chairman of its subcommittee on aircraft and light metals and a leading member of its subcommittee on shipbuilding. In these capacities he had an important part in checking and rechecking the defense program to make sure that the plans for construction of aircraft and ships were well considered and were being carried out efficiently and economically.

The vituperative and venomous attack by Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) on Mon Wallgren during the past several weeks has been repeatedly punctuated with pious declarations that it was based on factual material which would be presented for the examination of the Senate. Yet, the major point in Senator Cain's speech was his attribution to Drew Pearson of a story that Mon Wallgren had won $50,000 "in a crap game" from Johnny Meyers, the Howard Hughes public relations man. Pearson immediately characterized the Senator's unverified repetition of this story as "malicious," "false" and as proving that Cain "is more interested in a cheap, personal vendetta than in the qualifications of (Senator Wallgren) for public service."

The Truman Committee investigated every major phase of our war activity, including such questions as the struggle between heads of Government agencies having to do with the war production program, the effect of the war effort on our civilian economy, the problem of manpower, and the problems incident to both conversion of civilian industries into war production and later war production into post-war civilian industry.

In short, in addition to an extensive legislative and executive experience in public affairs extending over a period of 16 years, Mon Wallgren had one of the greatest opportunities accorded anyone to obtain a full understanding of the problems facing a nation at war. He is undoubtedly one of the best qualified men to head the National Security Resources Board, which must translate the experience of World War II into an adequate and worthwhile plan for the achievement of effective military, industrial and civilian mobilization which could be put into immediate use if we should ever again be involved in a life-and-death struggle for the existence of the Nation.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Cold War In The Middle East

ON THE heels of the Atlantic Pact, which is about to be published, there must come decisions of great consequence affecting the eastern Mediterranean and the Middle East. There is no argument that the defense of this region against invasion is a vital interest of the United States and its Atlantic allies, as well as an obligation under the Charter.

LIPPMANN

But there is a question as to whether an attempt shall be made to incorporate Turkey, Iran, the Arab states, and Israel into an Anglo-American strategical system, as is planned for Norway, Iceland, and Portugal—or whether they will be permitted to be independent, as are Sweden, Switzerland, and Eire.

LAST WEEK Mr. Nehru, the Prime Minister of the largest and most influential state in Asia, took a position which may well be decisive in answering this question. Nehru, who has used Indian troops to suppress a railway strike fomented by Communists, has nevertheless declared that India "will not join any power or group." India, he added, "is centrally located and nothing can happen in this part of the world without India in it."

That was no idle boast. Without the support of Indian troops and Indian resources the British position in the Middle East might have been untenable in the recent war. In another war, given the weakness of the British and ourselves in land forces, the position would be even worse. It is, therefore, elementary prudence that we establish no military policy in the Middle East without consulting India, and recognizing her interests and her influence.

NEHRU'S position is, moreover, in harmony with the foreign policy of the state of Israel. Its policy must in the nature of things be one of political neutrality in the East-West conflict.

Israel can never be a Soviet satellite because it is a maritime state within the orbit of British-American sea power; and because it can draw only upon the Western industrial nations for the capital goods needed to develop its territory. But Israel cannot be the political enemy of the Soviet Union and of eastern Europe because from there must be drawn the people to populate the country; they can shut the gates to emigration.

Political neutrality, like that of Switzerland, is therefore the only course for Israel.

IT IS ALSO the natural and desirable course for the surrounding Arab states. They are in no condition to endure the strains of a more adventurous policy. We should offer them peace, not the preparation for war. Our aim should not be to use them strategically but to assist them, in accord with Point IV of the President's inaugural address, to lift themselves out of destitution, illiteracy, and disease.

"At present," says the Times of London (January 19), "the states of the Middle East are at widely different stages of development. At one extreme are primitive states, like Saudi Arabia . . . at the other are the few states who have already had their revolution and stand today as modern nations in the Western sense. In this class only Turkey and Israel can truly be counted—both, significantly, non-Arab. In between" are "countries, with their few big cities and backward agriculture, their wealthy merchants and poverty-stricken millions, their unstable and unrepresentative governments, which form the weak links in the Middle East, and unfortunately it is on these that British policy has largely been based."

As we form our policy in the Middle East, which should eventually be carried out in partnership with Britain, we must take good care that British policy has first been renovated and adjusted to the realities.

Russia Without B-36 Defense

augment its six 3500-horsepower piston engines. That will increase its take-off power and give extra speed when needed.

These factors convince the military that the superbomber, at this moment, is close to being invulnerable. They believe therefore that it will be a major item in any war during the next three to five years.

Some Air Force officers believe the superbomber's range—10,000 miles—not only means atomic bombs can be delivered without hindrance but that in wartime they would not have to be stored outside this country, where they would be exposed to attack.

The Air Force's data reportedly has been passed on to the White House.

The major issue before the Air Force now is to develop an interceptor to "combate the B-36. Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, pointed this up recently when he said:

"Our real problem is — how would we defend ourselves against an attack by an aircraft comparable to the B-36?"

The worth of present-day jet fighters was weighed by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, which does basic research for the Government. The NCA found that oxygen deficiencies at 40,000 feet are likely to cause the jet engine, which is essentially a raging fire in a can, to stop. The cool, thin air makes restarting the engine difficult if not impossible.

By the time other countries figure out the answer to these problems, Vandenberg says, "the Air Force will have in being a bomber of even greater performance and capability."

The Air Force tests show that there is an altitude barrier which ranks in importance with the so-called sonic speed barrier. High-speed jet bombers might outrun fighters but they lack range. So the high-altitude B-36 which has range is the alternative, the Air Force believes.

Two things happen to today's jet fighters at high altitudes:

1. Their power loss is so great that they have only an 80 to 100-mile speed advantage over the B-36.

2. Their small wings will not support them in maneuvers in thin air. Shallow turns require several miles radius. Tight turns cause them to "mush" or "stall" because they lose "lift." In either case their quarry eludes them, as demonstrated at Eglin Air Force Base.

The result, the Air Force has found, is that a jet, if it attacks a B-36 at all, must do so from the tail. With its immovable 50-caliber guns and their 600-yard effective range, the jet is hopelessly outmatched by the receding B-36 target and its automatically aimed 20-mm with their 800-yard range.

All this assumes that radar warning and guidance stations have been able to get the jet into position for an attack in time in the first place.

School Plan Job for Congress

District pay back the loan in annual installments of five million dollars. This would extend the burden of school building costs over a seven to eight year period.

During the 1949 fiscal year, Congress has appropriated $4,965,683 for school construction. The 1950 budget, as passed by the House, would allow $2,045,850 for school building next year and $320,170 for furniture and equipment.

1930 Act Is Precedent

As a precedent for the loan there is the Capper-Cramton Act of 1930, which authorized expenditure of Federal funds for park lands in the District. Some 11 million dollars worth of land has been purchased in this fashion with the District repaying out of annual appropriations.

Under the Strayer proposals the current dual administration of schools would be simplified by placing much control under five associate superintendents who would be responsible for both white and Negro schools.

At present there are six associate superintendents. Their functions are direction of white vocational and junior high schools; white elementary schools and curriculum planning; Negro elementary schools; educational research in the Negro schools; educational research in the white schools; and buildings and grounds. Business and finance is under an assistant to the superintendent.

New Act Essential

The Teachers' Salary Act of 1947 now designates administrative positions and sets salaries. A new act would be essential, redesignating such positions. Under pay raise legislation now before Congress teachers would receive a flat $330 increase in salaries, without redesignation of positions.

A separate bill would be required to provide annual paid sick leave for teachers. At present teachers who are ill must pay salaries of their substitutes.

Proposed legislation calls for 10 days of sick or emergency leave a year, cumulative to 60 days. Teachers already in the system would be granted one day of leave for each year of service up to 20 at the time the bill becomes law. Provision also is made for teachers to borrow 20 days of future leave in case of extended illness.

Dr. Strayer's proposal is substantially the same, except that it does not provide for borrowing on future leave.

The Strayer report urges additional expenditures over current appropriations to provide kindergarten training for all children, improved libraries, cafeteria service in all schools, more textbooks and instructional supplies and clerks for elementary schools.

More Money Every Year

Congress would have to appropriate more money every year to pay for these added services.

The Strayer report estimates it will take an annual expenditure of from $3,315,268 to $4,618,868 above the 1949 appropriation of $20,037,000 (of a total budget of $25,102,683) to operate the schools if salaries are raised, sick leave provided and services expanded.

Under the 1950 budget, as passed by the House, $20,652,818 is allowed for operating expenses out of a total budget of $23,018,838.

The survey report was extremely critical of the Board of Education for meddlnig in administrative functions that, it said, properly belong to the superintendent and members of his staff. In particular, the report singled out the board's preoccupation with personnel matters.

The school board approves all appointments, transfers and retirements of all employes, including clerks and janitors as well as teachers. Under the present arrangement the superintendent of schools cannot move a janitor from one school to another without board action.

The Organic Act of 1906 under which schools operate provides that the Board of Education shall appoint, promote, transfer and dismiss employes on recommendation of the superintendent.

Law Needed for Transfer

A law would be needed to transfer some of the board's responsibilities to the superintendent if the Strayer recommendation is approved.

Another modification would have to be made in the Organic Act to abandon the present method of selecting teachers on the basis of examinations prepared by the Board of Examiners of the public school system. The teachers now are appointed on the basis of scores they make on such examinations, which test their knowledge of factual matter only.

Dr. Strayer describes the examination method as "a perfect way of keeping teachers out of the system" and recommends recruitment of teachers, because of the shortage. He believes their appointment should be on the basis of their educational qualifications, rather than on the examination score method.

The Appropriation Act of 1930 established Miner and Wilson Teachers Colleges as four-year institutions granting bachelor degrees. A new law, as well as additional funds, would be required to expand the program to a fifth year to permit granting the master's degree.

Uranium Deposits Adequate, French Say

Limoges, France, March 13 (U.P.) France has enough uranium deposits to supply all French needs, it was officially disclosed today.

Raul Dautry, member of the French Atomic Energy Commission, said the deposits, although not completely explored, are rich enough to provide for "great scientific developments."

He said research is directed only towards "peaceful ends."

Decisions Reached In Rail Dispute

Chicago, March 13 (U.P.).—Three mediators today returned their binding decisions on issues holding up a wage-hour settlement between the Nation's railroads and 16 nonoperating unions representing one million workers. Details were not disclosed immediately.

Both sides have agreed to be bound by the findings, but union officials cautioned that this did not mean complete settlement of the 6-month-old dispute.

G. E. Leighty, chief negotiator for the unions, said two issues concerning monthly-rated workers and yardmasters were not submitted to the mediation board and must be cleared up before a final settlement is reached.

Leighty estimated the solving of the two issues may take another week.

It was understood, however, that the unions generally won their demand for two consecutive days off in a new 40-hour work week. This was one of the main issues submitted to the mediators, who were said to have agreed that two consecutive days off should be the "typical" working condition, wherever possible.

The mediators were former members of a presidential fact-finding board which recommended a seven-cent hourly wage raise for the non-operating rail workers and a reduction in the work week from 48 hours to 40 hours.

Both the railroads and unions have indicated acceptance of the seven-cent boost and the 40-hour week. The raise would be retroactive to last October 1 and the shorter week would take effect next September 1.

Issues submitted to the mediators for a binding decision last Thursday largely were concerned with putting the 40-hour week into effect.

Tobacco Firm Pension One Of Highest

Winston-Salem, N. C., March 13 (AP).—A union official believes the retirement plan offered employes by the Brown & Wililamson Tobacco Corp. is one of the highest yet proposed.

John C. Taylor, general representative of the Tobacco Workers International (AFL) Union, said however, the plan is not the first in the tobacco industry.

The company, with plants here and in Petersburg, Va., offered its employes a retirement plan providing $100 a month for men and $85 for women at the age of 65.

The company and the union are in the process of negotiating a new contract before the present agreement expires April 1.

Taylor said the company will bear the expense of the pension plan and that an employe "to be initially included must be at least 30 and have been with the company five years." The worker must have been in the firm's continuous employment for 20 years prior to retirement.

Taylor said the plan would become effective upon approval by the four local unions here and in Petersburg. He gave no statement regarding the union's reaction but added it was customary to take such proposals to the rank and file of membership before making a public statement.

The Brown and Williamson offer is higher than any other in the industry, Taylor said, but pointed out that it is not as broad a program as that of the American Tobacco Co.

The proposal at hand, Taylor said, is a straight retirement, while that of the American Tobacco Co., is based on earnings and has disability payment for sick or injured; has retirement provisions at an earlier age with payment on a pro rata basis, and includes death insurance and sick leave.

Fall Doesn't Faze Him...

GET WELL—Michael McPherson Deuel, 11, of 3026 Cambridge pl. nw., is pictured above in Georgetown Hospital recovering from injuries received March 1 when he fell nearly 30 feet from a two-story house to a concrete landing. Michael suffered concussion, a fractured elbow and a cracked vertebra. His injuries didn't keep Michael from working on his model plane while get-well cards poured in from friends at Jackson Elementary School. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wallace R. Deuel

2 Boys Rescued By Helicopter In Jamaica Bay

New York, March 13 (AP).—Two Brooklyn boys were rescued by a Coast Guard helicopter today after they had been stranded since yesterday on a sandbar in Jamaica Bay.

The youths, William Wentz and Alfred Frank, both 15, failed to return yesterday from a rowboat cruise.

A police launch searched the area unsuccessfully last night. The helicopter joining the search at daylight, spotted the boys, shivering on the sandbar.

It was the second helicopter rescue in 24 hours. Yesterday, a police helicopter rescued a man, mired neck deep in the soft mud of Jamaica Bay.

New York Woman Named to Head YWCA Nationally

San Francisco, March 13 (AP).—Mrs. Arthur Forrest Anderson, New York City, today was elected President of the Young Women's Christian Associations of the United States.

Under a new constitution adopted at the eighteenth national convention, which closes Monday, Mrs. Anderson will serve a three-year term both as president of the YWCA and of the national board.

Mrs. Henry E. Corner, Baltimore, Md., was elected as vice president.

Miss Margaret E. Burton, New York City was named national secretary.

Soldier Dies, Another Burned in Hotel Fire

Newark, N. J., March 13 (AP).—One soldier was killed and another burned seriously today in a fire which swept three seventh-floor rooms in the Rutledge Hotel.

The dead man was identified as William C. Trefz, 25, Lodi, Calif., stationed at nearby Camp Kilmer. Injured with him was Arnold Laison of Wenatchie, Wash.

European Jobs Plentiful Except in Italy and Germany

Paris, March 13 (AP).—Western Europe is going into its fourth postwar spring with jobs for almost everyone except Italians and Germans.

The Marshall Plan areas in this part of the world worry more about labor shortages than about unemployment, an Associated Press survey showed. With food conditions the best since the war, and United States aid assured, the average western European looks forward to a better life—as long as war can be avoided.

Between them, Italy and western Germany have almost three million jobless, officials say. Manpower experts see some hope that Germany will straighten itself out. Italy can do so only if a way is found for some 260,000 workingmen to leave the country every year.

Only about 300,000 Britons are out of work—a lgure that has run fairly steady for the past two years. Britain is even trying to import certain types of workers, particularly miners and textile hands.

Some 120,000 Frenchmen lack jobs, and the number is growing slightly, but it is still less than 1 per cent of the labor force. For the rest, there is almost unlimited food and some of the high prices are dropping.

France, too, needs miners and farm workers, and has asked the European Marshall Plan organization to find some 300,000 of them by 1952. The unemployed include many white collar workers with no liking or training for heavy jobs.

The current drought has brought some partial unemployment to France. The lack of water has slowed hydroelectric plants and enforced power cuts, especially in the textile industry. Germany and Spain also are seriously affected.

Belgium appears well on its way to solving an unemployment problem which appeared shortly after Christmas. The peak figure of 300,000 jobless — equivalent to about 6 million in the United States—was down to 228,000 by the end of February and was expected to keep dropping.

Austria, Denmark, Ireland, Holland and Switzerland reported fewer people in jobs at the end of 1948—but in each case the total of unemployed was considered nothing to worry about. Jobs always are relatively scarce in the winter.

Norway and Sweden report record highs in employment.

Experts found many causes for the 1,067,000 jobless in western Germany. There is a scarcity of the new German money, the Deutschemark, and almost none at all to invest in job-producing new industries. Thousands of refugees from behind the iron curtain are looking for something to do, while Allied authorities sternly keep production low in lines that might revive Germany's war power.

Nevertheless, the experts said, there is so much potential industry in Germany and so much reconstruction to do, that the job situation is expected to improve.

Italy has a much worse situation, and much less prospect of improvement. Experts doubt the official figure of 1,862,214 out of work on January 1. They agree, however, that the unemployed are plentiful and include many Italians still drawing wages because the law forbids them to be fired.

Before Mussolini started on his war adventures, Italy's fast-increasing population was siphoned off by emigration. Hundreds of thousands went to South America. Now the war jobs have disappeared, but the surplus Italians find it harder to go to South America.

425,000 Miners Stay at Home in the coal fields to protest the appointment of Dr. James Boyd as director of mines," Byrd said in a statement. "As the nomination of Dr. Boyd is now before the Senate for confirmation, the strike order is nothing less than an attempt to coerce and intimidate the Senate of the United States.

"As a reply the Senate should promptly confirm Dr. Boyd, who has made an excellent record."

President George H. Love of the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., regarded as the world's largest commercial coal producer, described the shutdown as:

"Just an ordinary strike with a little black ribbon tied on it. Mr. Lewis not only wants to run the coal mines, but also to take over the appointment of important Government officials."

News of the stoppage caught the miners by surprise. Many did not even know who Boyd was. Most regretted losing the two weeks' pay. But virtually all were willing to "go along with John L."

One operator said some "producers frankly will welcome a shutdown." A mild winter has made inroads on domestic sales. Loss of export markets have cut further into revenues.

For many miners, the holiday will be an empty gesture. They have been working reduced weeks anyhow.

Railroads that announced furloughs for workers included the Pennsylvania (20,000 furloughed), Chesapeake & Ohio (15,000), Baltimore & Ohio (8500), New York Central (3375), Norfolk & Western (4500), Louisville & Nashville (1500), Reading (2300), Erie (400), Illinois Central (1050). The Central of Pennsylvania, Lehigh Valley and the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western added a total of 800 more to the furlough list.

49,000 Jobless Peak Reported For Maryland

Annapolis, Md., March 13 (AP).—Unemployment in Maryland hit a postwar peak of 49,000 in February, Russell L. Davis, director of the State Department of Employment Security, reported tonight.

The figure, he said, was 96 per cent higher than that for February, 1948.

"It is time," Davis commented, "to stop talking about current high employment levels compared with prewar figures. An expanded labor force is also a higher potential for expanded unemployment."

He said the high jobless rate was due to more than mere seasonal layoffs which occurred in construction, beverage production, shipyards and the metal industries.

Former Convict To Die Tuesday For Raping Child

Theodore M. Holmes, 22-year-old North Carolina convict, is scheduled to die Tuesday in the electric chair at the District Jail for the rape of a 9-year-old girl last March.

Holmes was convicted of carnal knowledge last May in District Court by a jury that recommended the death penalty.

He had been arrested less than six hours after the girl was found unconscious in a ravine a few hundred feet from her home in the 2600 block of Morris pl. ne. She remained in critical condition for days at Gallinger Hospital.

Trade Board to Discuss Low Income Housing in Meeting on Wednesday

Housing for low income groups will be discussed at a membership meeting of the Washington Board of Trade to be held Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Statler Hotel.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), who was vice chairman of a Joint Congressional Committee on Housing in 1947-48, and Edward R. Carr, local real estate dealer and former president of the National Association of Home Builders, will discuss the topic.

Certificates of merit will be presented to the owners, builders and architects of 12 structures and one community planning site in the Greater Washington area who submitted entries in the Board of Trade's biennial architectural review.

A manufacturer's exhibit, featuring products manufactured in the Washington area by organization firm members, will be on display.

The general membership will also hear remarks on the Red Cross campaign fund drive, highlights of the survey report on District public schools by Dr. George D. Strayer and a progress report on the 1949 Cherry Blossom Festival.

Fair Skins Found Subject to Cancer

"I wish you'd go on a diet, Mom. You're squashing up!"

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Persons with fair or ruddy complexions are much more likely to have lip or skin cancer than those with medium or dark complexions.

This preliminary finding from a survey by the Army Institute of Pathology was revealed yesterday by Lieut. Col. Joseph Bernier, Army Institute tissue pathologist.

The finding, he pointed out, would indicate the possibility that such cancer is hereditary, and also that it is not primarily due to the influence of sunlight as has been believed by some authorities.

Speaker at Forum

Colonel Bernier, a speaker yesterday in a forum that opened the Postgraduate Clinic of the District of Columbia Dental Society, told a reporter afterward that the Army Institute had studied about 1000 cases of lip and skin cancer, the majority of them soldiers.

Only 9 per cent had medium or dark complexions, he said.

While about 70 per cent of the patients were classified as outdoor workers, thus receiving more sunlight; more than 90 per cent of both outdoor and indoor workers included in the survey had fair or ruddy complexions.

The high incidence among those of light complexions was found even when they were grouped by geographical sections of the country, he pointed out.

92 Per Cent Are Smokers

Other figures from the Army survey showed that 92 per cent of the lip cancer patients studied were tobacco smokers. Of these, about 80 per cent smoked cigarettes only. Less than 6 per cent reported they used no tobacco.

The role of smoking in lip cancer is questionable, however, since millions of habitual smokers never develop this type of cancer, the Colonel said.

Dr. Oliver Moore of the Head and Mouth Section of Memorial Hospital in New York, main speaker at yesterday's forum, told more than 300 dentists present they must check for signs of cancer when their patients have sores or lumps in the mouth.

Despite the importance of treating cancer in an early stage, he said, many dentists fail to recognize its symptoms, thus making it more difficult to cure their patients because treatment is delayed.

Dr. Moore cited the case of one dentist with a mouth disease who treated himself for 10 months with penicillin and mouthwashes without thinking of the possibility of cancer, which he had.

Not only lumps or sores in the mouth, but also growths in the neck must be "thought of as cancer until proved otherwise," said Dr. Moore.

More than 3000 dentists, assistants and technicians from various parts of the country are expected to gather at the Hotel Shoreham by the time the Postgraduate Clinic gets in full swing today.

Besides table clinics and visual education programs to be conducted most of the day, the opening luncheon is set for 12:30 p. m. today. Speakers are Clyde E. Minges, president of the American Dental Association; Harold Hillenbrand, ADA general secretary, and Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.), who is a dentist.

The clinic will continue through Wednesday.

Hoover Plan 'Savings' Hit

To stress the idea that adoption of the Hoover Commission recommendations will result in huge savings is a mistake, Federal Communications Commissioner Wayne Coy said yesterday.

Coy served as chairman of a panel discussion on improvement and reorganization of the Federal Government at the closing session of the annual conference of the American Society for Public Administration in the Hotel Statler.

The Hover Commission's recommendations should be supported on the grounds that they will lead to greater efficiency in administration, he said, "which means more services from your Government for each dollar spent."

"You can only save money by doing away with services and benefits," he said, "such as veterans' benefits and agricultural benefits."

Don K. Price of the Public Administration Clearing House said, "I think you do get savings, but the way they come about makes them hard to measure."

"As we have developed a great civil service, protected from political influence, there is a corollary responsibility: to give loyal support to the duly elected political chiefs of Government."

John D. Millett of Columbia University said most management improvements "to be effective have got to be done at the departmental level. The departmental people are going to have to do the job with constant assistance from above, from the Budget Bureau."

More than 600 persons attended the three-day meeting, which was adjourned by retiring President John J. Corson, circulation manager of The Washington Post. The meeting will be held in Washington at a date as yet undecided. The new president is Roscoe Martin, chairman of the University of Alabama's political science department.

Foe Puts Fair Deal Cost at $50 Billion

By the United Press

Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) said yesterday that President Truman's legislative program would cost the Nation some $49,300,000,000 in taxes and other forms of revenue during the 12 months beginning July 1.

President Truman submitted a $41,900,000,000 spending program to Congress. He said that would leave a deficit of $800,000,000 under present tax laws, and proposed a $4,000,000,000 rise in corporation and income taxes plus nearly $2,000,000,000 in increased social security taxes.

But Byrd estimated the Administration's expanded social security program would cost $4,250,000,000 in added payroll taxes This, plus the requested $4,000,000,000 general tax increase, would raise the Federal "take" to nearly $50,000,000,000, he said.

"You can't take nearly $50,000,000,000 out of the economy in this country without affecting a great many people," he said. "Greatly increased taxes on American business easily may be felt around the world in these days."

How Jay Tompkins of Milwaukee, Wisconsin gave up a snug job to be on his own

AMERICAN FAMILY CLOSE-UP
As they go, so goes the nation!

A business of his own! This was the ambition Jay and Kay Tompkins shared from the time their campus romance began. But when they were married in 1938 they lacked the money to start one—and later they found themselves in another dilemma! For after nine years of building up a backlog to start his own firm, Jay saw that the new venture would earn far less than his well-paying salesman's job.

With a growing family and an uncertain world, could Jay and Kay risk a new business? Could they live on income cut by half? They'd planned and saved so long! What if they managed their money carefully, went without "extras" for a while . . . and took the big step?

"We dreamed together, planned together," Jay and Kay recall, "for the day Jay could go to work for himself."

His business is a bookkeeping and tax service for other small businesses! To get it started, Jay and his wife put in all of their savings, borrowed $1000 on their life insurance. At first Kay helped out at the office, too. "Without her help we would have been lost," Jay says. He employs only veterans.

School bus was a civic project of Jay's. Active in community affairs, though not so much as he'd like, he helped arrange service. Now daughters Ann, 7, and Sally, 4, are able to ride to school in safety!

For golf and other recreation Jay and Kay spend only $15 a month, even now that the business is on its feet. The Tompkinses keep a "family ledger," know where their money goes. Home costs $61.57 a month; life insurance comes to $78.44; food, $94.

Today, Jay and Kay are finding their sacrifices well worth while. By such things as holding neighborhood "swap parties" for children's outgrown clothes, Kay is saving money for a much-wanted freezer, and a clothes-dryer.

To keep the independence they've won, Jay and his life insurance agent figured out what it would cost the family to live if Jay died, and arranged life insurance program accordingly. "I'm proud of Jay," his wife says, "he expects to get no more from the world than he puts in."

Daughters of a Senator? Could be, if Jay's dream of doing more in public service comes true! It's part of his family's tradition. His great-great-grandfather was U. S. vice-president under Monroe.

THE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES AND THEIR AGENTS

The Tompkinses, like other American families, prove to all of us that the only way we really solve our problems is by our own efforts!

These stories of real families much like yours also show how much more success, how much more happiness is possible when you have peace of mind . . . the sort of peace of mind that comes from wise management of money now, and from knowing that future security has been adequately provided for.

The Life Insurance Companies and their Agents bring you these American family close-ups because what this country amounts to depends upon what happens to its homes!

Good Pitching, Good Hitting Bring Nats 6-2 Win

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

WEST PALM BEACH, FLA., March 13.—Al Simmons grabbed a bat in the A's camp and took a few solid whacks at some pitching just for the fun of it and a bystander asked him if he was planning a comeback.

POVICH

"If I was smart, I'd come back with this club as a pitcher," said Simmons. "Anybody ought to be able to pitch in front of our infield. Cleveland didn't have the best infield in the league last year. We did."

There's an obvious pride in the A's camp when the topic is the league's infield. They think Eddie Joost at shortstop and Ferris Fain at first base are very special, and any shortcomings of Hank Majeski at third base are easily suffered in the light of his massive run-production, and Peter Suder at second is underrated, they claim.

Connie Mack is so enthused that he has clammed up in his previous predictions that Boston and Cleveland would win the pennant. The best he will say of them these days is 'they have very good teams. So have we." He refuses to count the A's out of it.

JOOST AND FAIN took the A's into fourth place last season, Simmons says. "They were just what we needed. Joost gave us a terrific job at shortstop, and Fain woke up our sleepy ball club with his chatter and fancy first-basing. I don't know which was the most valuable. Maybe it was Fain."

Simmons is no blushing violet himself as the third base coach and with Jimmy Dykes as his opposite number at first base the A's are taking new stature as a holler club. But that off-the-diamond noise doesn't satisfy Simmons. "A club needs that fire on the field, not on the coaching lines or in the manager's seat. The old A's had it when we won three pennants in a row in 1929-30-31, and the guy who made us move was Mickey Cochrane. He charged us full of dash, and with all respect to Mr. Mack, it was an easy club to manage."

AS LONG AS COCHRANE WAS playing manager of the Tigers they won pennants, Simmons pointed out. "When Cochrane was beaned and had to manage from the bench, the Tigers tailed off. They didn't have that same hustle on the field. It will be a sad day for Cleveland, if Boudreau ever gets out of the lineup and tries his hand at bench-managing."

The rise of the A's dated from Fain's appearance with the club, Simmons says. "He was wonderful—a tonic to this outfit from the first day he reported. He heard some of our guys talking about last place and got furious and said he wouldn't play on a last place club, and they damn sight better perk up or he'd knock a few heads in.

"He meant it, too. He'd throw that ball around the bases, and if your guys weren't looking it was their fault. He made 'em come alive after almost conking a couple of 'em. They know they had better pay attention all the time, because Fain throws the ball all the time. I don't know where he gets all his energy, but it's wonderful."

AND IT'S SMALL WONDER that Simmons and Connie Mack and the rest of the A's are fond of Jooost who grabs everything on the left side of the infield and insinuates a lot of home runs into the A's attack. The bespectacled shortstop who came from the Braves with a reputation as something of a clubhouse lawyer hasn't raised the hackles of anybody except the A's opposition.

"We were thinking we might win the pennant last season until August 8," Simmons pointed out. "That was the day Jooost jammed his throwing hand sliding into third base at St. Louis. We were only two games out of the lead. With Joost out, we lost eight in a row, and skidded out of it. When he did return to the lineup, he couldn't grip a bat tightly. He hit 16 home runs before August 8, none after that. See how it hurt?"

The A's are taking practically the same club into the 1949 race. The reserves are better they think, and Phil Marchildon is over his case of prison-camp nerves and the pitching will be better. And their management is a bit more seasoned. Connie Mack is 86 now.

Williams Hits First Pitch For Homer, Bosox Win

Tampa, Fla., March 13 (U.P.).—Ted Williams slammed a long home run on the first pitch served to him today to start the Boston Red Sox on their way to a 7-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds before a crowd of 5341 fans.

The pitch to Williams was made by Howard Fox, who yielded five of Boston's runs during the three innings he worked. However, Ted's homer was the only earned run off Fox, because of three Red infield errors. Rookie First Baseman Walt Dropo backed up Williams with three singles, driving in two runs.

The Reds were saved from a shutout when Ray Mueller homered off the pitching of Rookie Southpaw John McCall in the fifth inning.

Lakeland, Fla., March 13 (U.P.).—The Philadelphia Phils whipped the Detroit Tigers for the second straight time today, 3 to 0, as three Phil hurlers held the Tigers to a total of three singles.

Veteran Hank Borowy, the ex-Cub righthander, allowed the Tigers two singles in four innings while youngsters Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons yielded only one safety the rest of the way.

The Phillies made only five hits but bunched four of them in the seventh inning against gray-haired rookie Marlin Stuart to score all of their runs.

Pirates Win, 3-1, Over Chicago Cubs

Los Angeles, March 13 (AP).—Backed by three-hit pitching, the Pittsburgh Pirates downed the Chicago Cubs for the second successive time today by winning 3-1.

Phil Cavarretta singled off the Bucs' Elmer Riddle in the first inning and Roy Smalley rapped a homer off Riddle in the third. Emil Verban tapped a double off Vic Lombardi in the fourth.

The Pirates tied the score in the seventh on doubles by Ralph Kiner and Les Fleming off Don Carlsen. In the eighth two more doubles by Stan Rojek and Walt Judnich led to the Bucs' two-run victory margin.

Wynn, Feller Pounded as Indians Lose

Phoenix, Ariz., March 13 (AP).—Before a record attendance of 9025 in municipal stadium today, the New York Giants evened their series with the Cleveland Indians, winning 7 to 4.

Sheldon Jones, who started on the mound for the Giants, was belted for a home run by Dale Mitchell and doubles by Artie Wilson and Larry Doby before he settled down and held the Tribe scoreless during the remainder of his three-inning stint.

The Polo Grounders walloped Bob Feller for four runs in the fourth after Monte Kennedy had yielded a run in the Indians' half of the fourth.

Early Wynn, who replaced Feller, found the going rough, too, giving up two runs in the fifth.

Manager Lou Boudreau stepped in as a pinch-hitter to drive in an Indian run in the eighth, but the Giants came back in their half of that stanza with a tally on a single and an outfield fly.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 13 (AP).—The missing Mike Guerra, Philadelphia Athletics' Cuban-speaking catcher, is finally at spring training camp—and he blamed two eggs for the two-week delay.

"Five o'clock in morning I eat two eggs," Mike explained to Manager Connie Mack. "He made me sick."

Guerra piloted Almendares to the Cuban League pennant this winter.

Middlecoff and Ferrier Win Miami 4-Ball Golf, 9 and 8

By Frank Eidge, Jr.

Miami, Fla., March 13 (U.P.).—Dr. Cary Middlecoff, youthful Memphis dentist, and Jim Ferrier of San Francisco today blazed a new course record of 11-under par for successful defense of their title in the Miami International four-ball golf tournament.

Middlecoff and Ferrier defeated Skip Alexander of Southern Pines, N. C., and Pete Cooper of Ponte Verda, Fla., 9 and 8, for another record for onesidedness in the finish in the 24-year history of the four-ball tournament.

The champions tourned the Miami Springs 18 in the morning with a best ball 23-30—50, 11-under par, breaking the four-ball record of 61 strokes for 18 holes set in 1937 by Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta.

Worth $1250 to Each

Middlecoff and Ferrier teamed for nine birdies and an eagle on the morning round and added another five birdies on the 10 holes played in the afternoon.

Only such spectacular golf could make the team of Alexander and Cooper look so bad. They were the twosome which eliminated the powerful combination of Sam Snead and Llyd Mangrum and the team of Herman Keiser and Johnny Palmer from the contest.

As the grinning Middlecoff put it after the victory: "Pulling teeth is easier than playing in this tournament."

The victory, worth $1250 each, belonged to both of the champions. During the final day, it seemed that neither could miss with a putter. If Middlecoff couldn't make the birdie, Ferrier was right up close to collect it.

Middlecoff sank seven long putts ranging from six to 30 feet. The longest netted him an eagle three on the 500-yard, par five, fifth hole.

Ferrier Sinks 40-Foot Putt

Ferrier was just as hot. He won the eighth hole for the team by chipping into the cup from 50 feet away. Onthe fourteenth hole, he recaptured the six-up lead at that point with an unswerving 40-foot putt from the far edge of the green.

It took the wind out of Alexander who had just dropped a 35-foot putt on the previous hole.

The end came on the twenty-eighth hole with Alexander missing a 3-foot putt for a birdie three and Middlecoff winning the hole with a birdie, 6-foot green stroke.

After giving all credit to the victors, quiet-spoken little Pete Cooper could only shake his head and say: "It was just one of those days for me."

Cooper, on four successive holes of the final nine, missed two putts and a chip shot, each of which would have won the hole, by the width of a grass blade. They flipped over the cup, rimmed it and stopped a hair's width away.

Sid Hudson In Top Form; Macks Held To Four Hits

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

West Palm Beach, March 13.—The Nats suddenly discovered a Sunday punch and some elegant pitching to blend with it today, and they slapped down the Athletics with great enthusiasm, 6 to 2.

Connie Mack had High Commissioner Chandler as his guest, along with 2268 paying customers of the Florida East Coast, but his hired help let him down badly. The A's hitters were brushed off lightly with four hits.

Sid Hudson, whipping the ball in lively-like, and Milo Candini and Dick Welteroth shared in the four-hit pitching job. Hudson's scoreless one-hit performance for three innings elicited special huzzahs from Manager Joe Kuhel, who is banking heavily on a comeback by his sore-armed right-hander of last season.

It was a somewhat refreshing scene for Kuhel on a couple of other counts. Gil Coan whacked out three of the Nats' 10 hits, all of them vicious singles, and stole a base; and Buddy Lewis smote the ball hard for two solid singles.

Only against Candini did the Athletics score, and the two runs they wrenched out of his turn on the mound in the sixth inning were no great fault of Candini's. The A's didn't get a hit against him in their run-making inning, but had the help of two surprising fumbles by Second Baseman Al Kozar.

Candini, like Hudson, pitched one-hit ball for three innings. Young Welteroth gave up two hits on his three-inning effort, but with a man on base in the ninth Mark Christman grabbed Pinch-Hitter Tom Davis' grounder to start a double play that was the crusher.

Coan greeted Dick Fowler, one of the A's important pitchers, with a two-bagger to open the game but the Nats had no great success until the third when Coan singled to right with two out. He stole second and Lewis promptly moved him home with a single to right.

The Nats made it 2-0 temporarily in the sixth when Lewis singled with one out and romped to third when Southpaw Alex Kellner, in an attempt to pick him off first, threw the ball wild. Ed Stewart's hefty fly to center got him home.

A spell of wildness by Candini put two on base in the sixth, but he would have escaped trouble save for Kozar's two errors in succession. Kozar fumbled Coleman's grounder with a double play in sight, to fill the bases, and on Majeski's grounder he dropped a

Bill Rigney Stricken With Heart Attack

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 13 (U.P.).—Bill Rigney, second baseman of the New York Giants, left an exhibition game today after complaining of a fast heart beat and collapsed in the dressing room of a heart attack.

Dr. Anthony Palermo, physician of the New York Giants, said that Rigney was resting comfortably in the St. Monica Hospital here and his condition was good.

"X-rays that will be taken tomorrow will tell a definite story about Rigney, but I don't believe his condition is serious," Palermo said.

"He may be able to leave the hospital in two or three days, and probably will be laid up for a week," the physician added. "The chances are he will be ok."

THIS was the first heart attack suffered by the 29-year-old Rigney. During the exhibition game with the Cleveland Indians here this afternoon, Rigney came in from the field in the sixth inning to complain of an extremely fast heart beat.

He told Manager Leo Durocher, as the Giants came in to bat, that he felt very weak. Manager Durocher ordered Rigney to go to the dressing room and Dr. Palermo was summoned.

Soon after Rigney reached the dressing room, he collapsed.

At that time, Rigney's pulse was "almost imperceptible," and Dr. Palermo ordered him taken to St. Monica's hospital.

Rigney's home is at Oakland, Calif.

Rigney, broke in with the Giants in 1946 after being acquired from Oakland of the Pacific Coast League. Rigney and Shortstop Buddy Kerr currently are regarded one of the finest double-play combinations in the majors.

Yanks Win Again, Lindell Hits Homer

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 13 (U.P.).—Johnny Lindell's home run into St. Petersburg bay with Tommy Henrich on base in the second inning gave the New York Yankees their second straight exhibition triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 1, today.

Don Johnson and Tommy Byrne allowed the Cardinals only four hits

Jackie Collum, 23-year-old southpaw up from St. Joseph in the Western Association, fanned pinch-hitter Joe Di Maggio in the fourth inning with the bases loaded for the third out.

Marion Favors Arbitration for Player Disputes

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 13 (AP).—Marty Marion, St. Louis Cardinal player representative, said today the Cards favored establishment of a three-man arbitration committee of neutrals to settle disputes.

Marion said the Cardinal players' views were set forth in a letter he would mail today to Dixie Walker of Pittsburgh, National League player representative

"We feel that the players should have some recourse in case of a salary dispute," he said. "As it is now, the club sets the pay and the player takes it or else. We think some sort of neutral committee, probably three-man, should be set up.

"We have been given a lot of things in the last few years like the pension fund, the minimum salary and $25 weekly for spring training expenses. To us, this salary thing is the main objection."

St. Adalbert's Beats 4-Man Team In AAU Opener

Oklahoma City, March 13 (U.P.).—St. Adalbert's College of Elizabeth, N. J., running wild in a second overtime period when their rivals had only four men on the floor, defeated the Des Moines, Iowa, Milliners, 70 to 60, today in the opening game of the week-long national A.A.U. basketball tournament.

St. Adalbert's had to come from 20 points behind to win the opener after trailing 26-6 midway in the first half. The margin was narrowed to 33-23 at halftime and finally tied at 59 to 59 at the end of regulation time. When the second overtime period rolled around, the Milliners, who brought only six players, had lost two on personal fouls and St. Adalbert's romped home.

Mikan Hopes to Top 48-Point Effort Against Caps Here

Scoring Wizard George Mikan gets another chance at the Caps Wednesday night.

In the past they've been pretty easy for him. Last time he faced them, back on January 30, in Minneapolis, he scored 48 points to set a new record in the Basketball Association of America.

Wednesday night 6 foot 10 inch George and his Minneapolis Lakers invade Uline Arena to do business with our boys again, and this time George has a real record to shoot at.

He'll be aiming at that 63-point mark that Philadelphia's Joe Fulks hung up since the last Minneapolis-Washington meeting. The last game, incidentally, was won by the Lakers, 84-79.

Mikan already has beaten Fulks' best regular season scoring performance with a total of 1470 in 52 games, an average of 28.3 per contest.

He's now driving at the all-time BAA scoring mark of 1611 points marked by Fulks in 1946-47 when he fired 1389 points in regualar season and 222 in the playoffs.

Coach Red Auerbach, who last night departed for New York to take in the National Invitation Tournament, said prior to his departure that he intends to handle George a little different this time.

"We let Mikan run wild and concentrated on the other players last time, but feel we can do a better job Wednesday, Auerbach said. "Bones McKinney, for one, feels that George can be held down to a much lower point total than he has scored against us thus far, and others of us agree with him."

The Lakers currently are running second in a hot Western Division race with Rochester, but have a substantially stronger record than have the Caps, who clinched eastern honors last February 28.

The Minneapolis team is also represented by outstanding scorers in Jim Pollard and Herman Schaefer, who have averaged 15.7 and 10.8 respectively. Don Carlson, Tony Jaros, Jack Dwan, Arnie Ferrin, Don Forman, Ed Kachan, John Jorgenson and Earl Gardner complete the squad.

Dodgers Land On Sain, 6-0

Miami, March 13 (U.P.).—Led by Cal Abrams, Brooklyn rookie outfielder, the Dodgers spoiled Johnny Sain's first start and belted the Braves for the second straight day, 6 to 0, before the largest crowd that ever saw a baseball game in Miami today.

Abrams' four hits, including a three-run homer off Sain the leading National League pitcher, partly appeased the 9675 spectators who were disappointed when Jackie Robinson failed to play. The Negro star complained of a stiff neck following his collision with Sibby Sisti, Boston second baseman, in yesterday's game.

Sain worked five innings, yielding five runs, six hits and three walks in addition to hitting a batter. Three were collected by Abrams who reached first base eight consecutive times over two days on six hits and two walks before he was struck out by rookie Bob Hall in the eighth.

Mikan Racks Up 51 Points As Lakers Top Knicks, 100-90

Minneapolis, March 13 (AP).—Dropping 22 out of 40 shots, George Mikan racked up 51 points as his Minneapolis Lakers edged New York, 100 to 90 in a Basketball Association of America game tonight before 6332.

In a game enlivened by fisticuffs between Tony Jaros of Minneapolis and Lee Knorek of New York, Mikan added to his record as the league's leading scorer but remained 12 points from the individual game record of 63 held by Joe Fulks of Philadelphia.

It was Minneapolis' sixth game with a score in the 100's and broke New York's winning streak at seven.

Cooper Gets Another Chance At Cardenas in Bout Tonight

Jimmy Cooper, started on another win streak, will be out to avenge an earlier loss tonight at Turner's Arena when he faces Jose Cardenas in the 10-round feature. A win tonight will put Cooper in line for some lucrative outdoor bouts this summer.

Jose Cardenas

Cooper, local featherweight, lost a split decision to Cardenas last year in an eight-rounder. Tonight's longer distance is regarded as a definite advantage to Cooper who seems to improve as the fight progresses. Billy Banks, Cooper's manager, has been trying ever since the loss last year to arrange this return match.

Cardenas is managed by Charlie Johnson who also handles the Harlem Sandman, Sandy Saddler, recently deposed featherweight king.

Cooper who lost a split decision to Leo LeBron two months ago has since decisioned Art Llanos, ending the Puerto Rican's win string at 74 straight, and decisioned Tony Longo last week in Baltimore.

Despite the fact that Cardenas won the first meeting, the fast moving U Streeter will enter the ring a favorite. Reasoning behind this is Cooper's impressive win over Llanos as well as the fact that this bout is over a longer route.

In five-rounders, Gene Harley takes on Charlie Bennett in a middle scrap, Johnny Holt faces Harvey Jones in the lightweight division and Roy Wirt fights Miles Jones in a welter bout. Fours pit Little Dynamite against Steve Jackson and Kenny Leech against Speedy Robinson.

Annapolis Pair Win Bowling

An Annapolis team composed of Marie Anderson and Earl Campbell yesterday won the St. Patrick's Mixed Doubles Bowling at the Clarendon Bowling Alleys. Top prize of $150 was awarded to them for their 2510 score.

Forty-two teams, drawn from all over the South, competed. A Washington team, Toni Rowe and Frank Micalizzi, had 2498 for second prize of $60, Elizabeth Barger and Clarence Miller of Baltimore, third with 2409 for $40 and another Washington team, fourth. Bing Moen and Lindsay Scott 2488, received $25.

Toms Even Series

Toms Auto defeated Grotto Grill, 46-43, in overtime yesterday to tie up the championship playoffs in the Montgomery County Park basketball league. Final game in the two-out-of-three series will be played next Sunday.

New Gagdet Makes Crew Drills Cheap

Lexington, Va., March 13 (AP). Don't be too surprised if college crew racing becomes as popular someday as the nickel cup of coffee.

For a Washington and Lee University student has come up with a crew "gadet" which may revolutionize the off-season routine and enable the smallest of colleges to train a crew.

The student is Francis Thomas Glasgow 2d. The guy's been a typical crew "bug" for years, having first become interested in the sport at 13, when he was coxswain at Avon School, Avon, Conn.

"Some schools like Pennsylvania, Yale and Harvard have indoor rowing tanks," Glasgow said today. "But these things cost thousands and thousands of dollars—maybe $100,000 or more. What about the schools which can't afford these streamlined tanks?"

Then Glasgow put what he calls "my pride and joy" on display.

"There is the answer," he said. "This machine does the same thing for the man that those expensive rowing tanks do—it gives the novice every sensation of being in a boat with the exception of balance and forward motion."

Economical Contrivance

Anchored to the side of Washington and Lee's swimming pool was one of Glasgow's "gadgets." It's an assemblage of crate slats, a sliding seat, a few strands of wire and a pair of old shoes.

"That's all you need," Glasgow explained. "To end the budget worries of schools interested in crew. The practice gained in this contraption is identical to that obtained from rowing in an expensive shell which cannot be taken out on the river during wintertime."

After Glasgow's machine is hooked onto the side of the pool, the crewman takes his place in the small wooden frame. He grasps the oar—which has a perforated blade—and begins to row under the instruction of the crew coach.

Where did Glasgow, known around here as "Wink," get the idea for his invention?

"I just got to thinking about some way for a small school to take advantage of the winter months for training," Glasgow answered. "So I took some pieces of boats, an old crate and an old car, put them all together. And the thing actually worked."

Applies for Patent

Glasgow has applied for a patent for his machine.

"They haven't found anything like it in the patent files," said Glasgow, whose father rowed for this same university in 1907, 1908 and 1909. "I'm just sweating out the waiting time now."

Glasgow himself isn't on the Washington and Lee squad. The guy is too heavy to serve as coxswain and too short to row. So he had to get an idea of his own to "remain close to college crew racing."

Priory Wins Tourney Title

Priory School won the Priory invitational basketball tournament yesterday by defeating St. Anthony's High, 36-30, at the Priory gym. Priory received the trophy and St. Anthony's received the Priory Cup for the runner-up position.

Woodward Prep received the award for the most sportsmanlike team in the tournament.

Priory also led the all-tournament team with two places. Jack Duchesne and Jack Cahill of Priory were named to the team as well as Lou Pennini of St. Anthony's, John Cassidy of St. Paul's and Ed Latch of Woodward Prep.

The final game gave Priory an over-all season record of 29-7 and was their twentieth win in a row. Joe Hayden was high scorer with 10 points.

Wildcats Are Seeking Double Slam

By Murray Rose

New York, March 13 (AP).—Kentucky's great Wildcats start firing tomorrow afternoon in quest of an unprecedented basketball double slam.

No team ever has won both the National Invitation Tournament and the NCAA championship in the same year although several quintets have tried

But Adolph Rupp's Olympic-tested quintet stand a fine chance to make good in its bold bid for basketball immortality.

Today's NIT Schedule

3:30—Western Kentucky vs. Bradley.
5:15—Kentucky vs. Loyola.
8:00—Utah vs. San Francisco.
9:45—St. Louis vs. Bowling Green.

In the path of the Wildcats, No. 1 team of the nation, are 7 other quintets who rate within the country's first 10, and several more from the 11 to 20 bracket. The confident lads from the Blue Grass State must face 6 of them in a 13-day period.

Loyola of Chicago, led by the talented Jack Kerris, is Kentucky's first obstacle. The Windy City lads walloped City College of New York, 62-47, in Madison Square Garden last night to complete a one-day cleanup of all four New York teams in the tourney.

26,907 Watched Games

Knocked out earlier were New York U. (by Bradley, 89-67), Manhattan College (by San Francisco, 68-43), and St. John's (by Bowling Green, 77-64).

A total of 26,907 paid admissions was collected for the day—8751 for the matinee and 18,156 for the night affair.

All four New York fives were underdogs and the formful sweep vindicated the critics who clamored against the admittance of any of the local teams.

The eight visiting teams will go at each other tomorrow afternoon and night in a double session which will cut the field down to semifinal size. The semis will be held Thursday and the finals Saturday.

In all four of tomorrow's tilts, the opponents will be facing each other for the first time this season.

The seeded teams all will be favored. Kentucky is rated first, St. Louis, the defending NIT king, second; Utah third and Western Kentucky fourth.

While the NIT was moving along, the NCAA was making slow progress in its endeavors to fill out its eight district field.

Sooners Tie for Title

Six District berths have been settled. But the battling still is going on for the right to represent District Five and District Eight.

Oklahoma downed Colorado, 55-44, to tie Nebraska for the Big Seven championship. Oklahoma and Nebraska will meet tomorrow night in Kansas City for the privilege of tangling with Oklahoma A. & M., the Missouri Valley champs, in a Wednesday playoff for the District Five place.

UCLA whipped Oregon State, 46-39, to deadlock their best of three playoff for the Pacific Coast Conference title and the District Eight nomination. They will face each other again Monday night.

The other district representatives are Yale, No. 1, which won the Ivy League title last night by walloping Harvard, 87-57; Villanova, Eastern champions, No. 2; Kentucky, No. 3; Illinois' Big Nine Kings, No. 4; Arkansas' Southwest Conference co-champions, No. 6, and Wyoming's Big Six pennant winners, No. 7.

New Regulation Against Doping

New York, March 13 (AP).—The Jockey Club added a powerful new rule today in racing's war against "doping" and stimulating of race horses.

The rule forbids the possession in quarters or on the person of anybody within race track grounds of any instrument which might be used for administering drugs or stimulants to horses, unless written permission has been obtained from the stewards.

Lost in Finals Last Year

Eddie Kennet Makes Another Try Tomorrow In Quest of Elusive D. C. AAU Boxing Title

That old saying, "Always a bridesmaid, but never a bride," might well apply to lanky Eddie Kennett, Southwest Barney Neighborhood House middleweight.

Eddie starts another drive toward a District AAU senior ring championship tomorrow night at Turner's Arena in the second card of the D. C. AAU boxing championships.

The 19-year-old, son of John "Dodo" Kennett, Barney House boxing coach, has come within hailing distance of a title several times, only to have it elude him.

This year he is set on representing Washington in the national amateur championships in Boston next month. And he plans to impress this fact on Joe Hill, Andrews Field athlete, who is Kennett's foe tomorrow night.

Due to his father's interest in the ring, Eddie has been familiar with the inside of a gym almost since he was a toddler. In 1945 he made his first start as a novice welterweight in the District AAU championships, doing very well for a beginner. The next two tournaments saw him move steadily closer to the pay-off matches.

Then last year, campaigning as a senior middleweight, he almost made it. Possessor of a potent punch and well-grounded in fistic fundamentals, Kennett won two decisions and scored a TKO in the three preliminary fights that brought him to the championship round.

In the finals he met Holly Mims, now a coming young District pro. The battle was close through the two early rounds, but in the final round Mims pulled slightly ahead by virtue of his power punching to win the decision—and the title.

When he climbed through the ropes in bitter disappointment after that fight Eddie immediately started looking ahead. This year will be different, he says.

Art Houtteman 'InThere Pitching', Roomate Reports

Lakeland, Fla., March 13 (AP).—Two teammates visited young Art Houtteman today in Morrell Memorial Hospital where the Detroit pitcher is recovering from a skull fracture and said afterward the big righthander is in there pitching."

Ted Gary, Houtteman's training camp roommate, said the 21-year-old hurler who was hurt Thursday night in an automobile collision, "will be out there pitching this summer."

"He looks better than I expected, but he's awfully beaten up about the face and head and doesn't look like himself," Gray said. "He talked to me but appeared to be a little loggy. He must have suffered quite a bit form shock."

Virgil Trucks, who hurled three innings of hitless ball today against the Philadelphia Phils, was with Gray when he visited Houtteman.

2 Americans Win Figure Skating

Ardmore, Pa., March 13 (AP).—Two American skaters—Olympic Champion Dick Button and Yvonne Sherman—won the major titles in the North American Figure Skating Championship.

Button, 19-year-old Harvard freshman from Englewood, N. J., retained the men's crown last night, while the attractive Yvonne, 18, of New York, captured the ladies' singles. She is the first American woman to win the title since 1939.

Oregon State, UCLA in Title Tilt

Corvallis, Oreg., March 13 (AP).—The UCLA Bruins will meet the Oregon State Beavers tomorrow night in the deciding game for the Pacific Coast Conference basketball championship. The Bruins defeated the Beavers, 46-39, Saturday night. Oregon State won the first game, 53-41.

Hamline Wins NAIB Crown

Kansas City, March 13 (AP).—Hamline University of St. Paul won its second National Intercollegiate (NAIB) Basketball championship by beating Regis College of Denver, 57 to 46, last night. A crowd of slightly under 10,000, largest ever to witness a basketball game here, saw the finals. The paid attendance was 9600.

Lions End Season With Ramblers Tuesday

The Washington Lions end their American Hockey League season tomorrow night when they face the New Haven Ramblers at Uline Arena. The Ramblers are in a battle with Springfield for third place in the Eastern Division, and consider the game an important one to win.

Armless Veterans To Use Gadget in Bowling Tourney

For what is believed to be the first time in the history of the American Bowling Congress, arm amputees from Walter Reed General Hospital will compete.

Five men will leave Tuesday, for Atlantic City where they will bowl in the ABC.

The amputees will employ a special mechanical device, the operation of which is centered around the action of a rubber suction cup. The appliance was designed at Walter Reed last year.

Representing Walter Reed will be Sgt. Walter S. Sullivan, Sgt. George J. Barthel, Capt. Paul H. Ripley, and Private First Class John Wilson and Harold A. Carlson.

OSIA Takes Soccer Lead

The Order of the Sons of Italy in America soccer team displaced the Sugar Radio team from first place in the Washington Suburban Soccer League by receiving a forfeit game from Columbia yesterday while Sugar Radio had no game scheduled. This is the first time this year that Sugar Radio has been out of first place.

In other games yesterday, Maryland Sports Club hung on to third place by defeating Pan American, 4-1. Lou Tierney and Bill McHale both scored two goals for M. S. C. Martin's Bakery defeated Rockville, 3-0, and Marlboro forfeited to Glasva.

Team Match Set In Uline Wrestling

The popular combination of Art Brady and Mike Clancy will meet Jim Wallis and Pat Welsh in a two of three falls Australian tag team match at Uline Arena tonight. Brady and Clancy have won their last two appearances on the Uline mat.

Opening tonight's show will be a 30-minute match between Joe Montana and George Welcheski, following is another 30-minute bout pitting Jack Bloomfield against Joe Ludlum. In the semi-final Rough Red Kirkpatrick will tackle Standley Sitkowski.

Rivers Asks Hearing on Links Plan

Representative L. Mendel Rivers (D., S. C.) took another step yesterday in his determined effort to have Congress conduct a thorough investigation of the operation of municipal golf courses in the District.

Rivers made a formal written request to Representative Adolph Sabath (D., Ill.), chairman of the Rules Committee, asking for a prompt hearing on the resolution he introduced last Wednesday suggesting the investigation by the Public Lands Committee.

Calling the matter of "inestimable importance to some 60,000 citizen golfers of the District of Columbia and nearby Virginia and Maryland," Rivers said he could assure the committee of the need to favorably report out the measure.

Courses Run Poorly

Procedure then would be for the entire membership of the House to vote on the question.

Rivers said yesterday, "Every talent I have will be utilized to see that this thing is brought up. These courses are run as poorly as any in the country and I think you'll see that many members of Congress are just as interested as I in trying to do something about it."

In his original resolution, Rivers made some biting comment about the lack of supervision and lax auditing of the figures of the present concessionaire.

He wound up with this statement, which is in the Congressional Record, "It looks like the right to operate golf courses in the District is more valuable than an interstate license to steal."

Isn't Taking Sides

Rivers claims he has no interest in either side now fighting for the contract to operate the courses for the Department of Interior.

Severine G. Leoffler, sr., concessionaire since 1921, had "no comment" on any of Congressman Rivers' charges. Leoffler's last five-year contract expired December 31 but the Interior Department has granted him permission to operate the courses on a contingent basis until a new pact is awarded.

Leoffler is confident that his contract will be renewed and recently started yhat he called a $20,000 improvement program.

Now You'll Know

Meanwhile Ray Alvis, local representative of the Cleveland Concession Co. which is trying to wrest the business from the firmly-entrenched Leoffler, welcomes the investigation.

Said Alvis, "It will show the biased people in the Interior Department and also will show the public where their money went."

Alvis claims the pending bid his company submitted would have netted the government at least $104,000 on the $520,000 gross figure mentioned for last year.

Stengel Pleased, But . . .

One Heel—DiMag's—Casts Shadow on Yank Flag Hopes

(This is another in a series of stories on prospects of major league teams for the coming season.)

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 13 (AP).—The New York Yankees are worried. They have plenty of reason to be.

Joe DiMaggio is in anything but good shape, and it is not certain he will be in the opening day line-up.

It's an old saying "as DiMaggio goes, so go the Yankees."

Joe's right heel, which flared up after the first day of training, is giving him and the Yankees more concern then they've let on.

Joe thinks perhaps a second operation is necessary. There is a strong possibility that another spur is growing where the original was removed last November. DiMag, who did a heroic job last year despite untold pain, doesn't think he would play another season under similar circumstances. He'd rather retire.

Of course, the scarce may be unfounded. The diathermy and whirlpool treatments described by his physician might dissolve the thickening and bring the heel around.

In the meantime, Casey Stengel, who took over the managerial reins last October, is slowly getting a line on his charges. He's seen enough to make two observations:

1—The Yankees' strongest department is the outfield, which he considers the best in baseball.

2—He is knee deep in starting pitchers, and he thinks they can make or break the team.

"I won't venture to hazard a guess as to where we will finish," he said, "for two reasons. The first is that I still am not familiar with my personnel. With one or two exceptions, I've never seen any of the players before.

Looks Good So Far

"The other is that I'm new to the American League and don't know a thing about the relative strength of the other clubs except what I've read in the papers.

Casey said his biggest problem would be to cut down his outfield to five flychasers.

"In DiMaggio, Charley Keller and Tommy Henrich, we have the best outfield in baseball. The doctors say Keller, who was out nearly all of 1947 with that spine trouble, should be as good as ever. Johnny Lindell, who hit .317 last year, is available as Keller's replacement.

"Then we have Hank Bauer, the best outfielder in the American Association last year; Gene Woodling, a good-looking kid who led the Pacific Coast in batting; and Cliff Mapes, who was with us last year."

Stengel regards righthanders Allie Reynolds, Spec Shea, Vic Raschi, Bob Porterfield, Fred Sanford, and southpaws Ed Lopat and Tommy Byrne as his regular starters. He is banking upon Joe Page to turn in another fine season in relief as in 1947. Sanford, acquired from the St. Louis Browns for $100,000 and three players is counted upon to help.

Yankee catching is in good hands, especially if Yogi Berra improves in his fielding. There is no doubt about his hitting. Behind Berra there are Gus Niarhos, Ralph Houk and Charley Silvera.

Babe Young, former National Leaguer, appears to have the inside track at first base. George Stirnweiss at second, Phil Rizzuto at shortstop, and either Bobby Brown or Bill Johnson at third, present the same infield as last year with the exception at first.

Wheel-Chair Hunter Bags Moose and Bear
A football tackle cost Lewis Warrenfelt, of Indianapolis, the lifetime use of left arm and legs, but failed to spoil his enjoyment of the outdoors. He relates: "Sitting in my wheel-chair in a boat on Lake Oba, Ontario, I saw a bull moose on shore and got him with one shot from my Marlin 30/30. Also bagged a big black bear with a single shot from this dependable rifle."
Mr. Warrenfelt's wholesale firm has handled Marlin Blades for years. "Marlin quality is absolutely dependable, both in guns and blades," adds this intrepid hunter and businessman. Single or Double Edge—12 for 25¢; Economy Packs 25 for 50¢, 60 for $1.

Area Horse Fanciers Face Busy Schedule

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

A busy schedule faces the metropolitan area's horse fanciers with the season's official opening only three weeks away.

Hunt racing and hunter trials already under way will gradually fade out of the picture in late April to give way to upward to 50 horse shows, comprising over 80 days of exhibitions for nearby Maryland, Virginia and the District, on an average of two and one half a week for the season running from April through October.

The North End Stables, Silver Spring, Md., once again will stage the season's inaugural show April 3.

Shows tentatively listed for the first three months are as follows:

APRIL

MAY

1—Indian Head Lions Club, Indian Head, Md.; 7—University of Maryland, College Park, Md., and Loudoun Hunt Club Show, Leesburg, Va.; 8—Charles County Fair Show, La Plata, Md.; 9—Foxcroft School, Middleburg, Va.; 14-15—Washington Bridle Trails-Rotary Club, Chevy Chase, Md.; 21—Middleburg Hunter Show, Middleburg, Va.; 22—Animal Welfare League of Arlington, Manassas, Va.; 28-29—Deep Run Hunt Club Show, Richmond, Va.; 30—Iron Bridge Hunt, Burtonsville, Md.

JUNE

4—Blue Ridge Hunt, Millwood, Va.; 10-11, Upperville Colt and Horse Show, Upperville, Va.; 11—Maryland Pony Show, Worthington Valley, Md.; 18—Forestville Horse Show, Herndon, Va.; 19—Hyattsville Lions Club, Hyattsville, Md.; 25—Arlington Lions Club, Ballston, Va.; 25-26—Warrenton Pony Show, Warrenton, Va.; 26—Potomac Hunt Show, Potomac, Md.

Reports from nearby stables of the large number of young newcomers being readied may add a great deal of interest.

From Stanley Jones' Chopmist Stables, Potomac, Md., Sally Blauner's Threes A Crowd and Jones' recently acquired fiery jumper, Donald Duck, are reported ready for the open jumping ranks.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Burns have great hopes for their new 3-year-old chestnut gelding, Irish Champ by Irish Luck, being trained by Robert C. Lee for green and young hunter competition.

Cheerie McKee's Cracker Jack, a gray youngster by Bon Nuit—Lady Jack, is doing nicely for Trainer Gardner Hallman, as is Sir Pennard, being prepared for open jumping events.

Mr. and Mrs. Hallman's versatile Gray Lark and Robert C. Lee's well-known Bonne Fille have been returned to training after a long rest since last year's National and will probably continue to garner open laurels.

Cheerie McKee's Sen Satin, Ethel Kerr's Amigo and Carol Barber's Snap Shot are also being primed for a busy show season at the North End Stables.

Charles Carrico will return to the spotlight with his well-mannerred Refrain and her stablemate Sopy-Popy, a good-looking 4-year-old chestnut gelding by Handy Tom. Also from the Carrico barn Avon Shockey's Red Night is being readied by his owner.

What's a Weimaraner?

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

TWICE AS MANY—There are now twice as many Weimaraners in North Carolina. The total is 20 since Grafmar's Lark (above) dropped a litter of 10 at the home of E. W. Oliver, Greensboro, N. C. The pups were all born with their silver taupe coats striped with black, like zebras. Without stripes they die within three days (if you see it in The Post its positively so!). Pronounced Vime-are-honors, there are fewer than 500 in the United States, less than 1000 in the world. They are short-tailed, long-eared hunting dogs throw from Christman to avert another double play. Eventually the A's got two runs out of their hitless inning.

The 2-2 tie didn't last long. Eddie Yost bounced a two-bagger off Joost's chest in the seventh and scored on Christman's single to right. In the eighth, against Rookie Jim Wilson, Coan, Sherry Robertson and Stewart singled in succession and Kozar singled a bit later for three more runs.

Sam Dente was out of action with a jammed finger suffered yesterday. He says the A's are his jinx club. The three times he has been hurt in his major league career were while he was playing against the A's. Rookie Len Okrie got a dirty look from Shortstop Stewart of the A's after they collided at second base on Okrie's slide. Hudson didn't bear down in the first inning but after that he was showing the A's some mid-season stuff. "He isn't supposed to be curving 'em this early," the A's complained. Tomorrow the Nats play the Phillies back at Orlando.

D. C. Girls Title Play

Eastern will meet St. Joseph's and F.B.I. will play Raleigh Athletic Goods in the opening games of the week-long District of Columbia girls basketball championships. The games will be played at Merritt Club starting at 7:15 p. m.

Junior Wooten Takes Job as Athletic Director

Greenville, S. C., March 13 (AP).—Outfielder Earl (Junior) Wooten, shipped by the Washington Senators to the Southern Association Chattanooga Lookouts, has signed up for a job outside baseball.

He is slated to become year-round director of athletics and recreation for the Piedmont manufacturing company as soon as the current diamond season ends.

The textile firm's personnel director, John R. Mullikin, announced yesterday the "contract has been signed, sealed and delivered."

His Senator contract, which was transferred to Chattanooga, reported to call for $8500.

Off season, Junior took up basketball in a big way at nearby Pelzer, S. C., his home town. This activity found little favor with the Washington and Chattanooga managements.

Gardella Ready To Ask Injunction Today in New York

New York, March 13 (U.P.).—Frederick A. Johnson, attorney for Danny Gardella, said tonight he had completed preparations for filing in Federal Court tomorrow a request for a mandatory injunction against organized baseball on behalf of Gardella.

Johnson said he hoped that Judge Edward A. Conger of the United States District Court, who probably will receive the proposed order, would make it returnable either Tuesday or Friday.

The injunction, Johnson explained, will ask that Gardella either be reinstated to Organized Baseball "without prejudice," or that officials of Organized Baseball issue an order that no independent club with whom Gardella might play, or clubs that oppose Gardella's team, be discriminated against.

Gardella has charged that Organized Baseball has deprived him of a livelihood by discriminating against independent clubs for whom he has played, as well as barring him from Organized Baseball.

Sunday School Interest Low, Thomas Circle Study Reveals

Only 4 per cent of the persons living in the Thomas Circle area attend Sunday church schools, a survey conducted by two churches and the Washington Federation of Churches reveals.

John Halko, director of the department of research and church planning of the federation, told of the study at the opening session of a "School for Christian Living" at National City Christian Church last night.

The study was made by members of National City and Luther Place Memorial Churches, both on Thomas Circle, in cooperation with Halko. The area studied was from 11th st. nw. to 14th st. nw. and from L st. nw. to P st. nw.

1463 Persons Questioned

Halko said 1463 persons, or about 40 per cent of the white population of the area, were questioned.

The survey showed that in the area:

1. Fifty-nine per cent of those questioned attend church, and 46 per cent are church members. Of those who attend church, more go regularly than rarely.

2. The heaviest concentration of church attendants is in the age groups from 20 to 34 and from 35 to 59, which account for 64 per cent of the total. (The grtatest proportion of the population in this area also falls in this group, with school and infant population in the area well below the city average, Halko said.)

3. Of the total reporting, only 57, or 4 per cent, attend Sunday school. Those in the 20-59 age group account for 46 per cent of the total number of those who report Sunday school attendance.

Permanent Residents

4. Most of the persons who live in the area are permanent residents of Washington. The majority of them live in apartments or large housing units, rather than single dwellings.

Halko called for greater emphasis in church programs on activities for young adults and persons in the 35-59 age group.

He pointed out that the Sunday school attendance record in the area was particularly low, and urged new classes for young adults and older persons. In one Washington church, he said, two new adult classes have added 200 formerly unchurched persons to their rolls since they were launched in January.

The church is not reaching the large numbers of single women who live in the Thomas Circle area, Halko said. He suggested that a program at which young persons could meet socially should be a part of the work of the churches.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Order Drafted by CSC Covers Those Named Prior to March 15, '42

A proposed executive order which would cover into regular Civil Service those Federal employes who were appointed prior to March 15, 1942, is at the White House. It was drafted by the Civil Service Commission.

The White House apparently has abandoned the many other proposals to cover in war service employes—plans which would have affected many more employes. The opposition of veterans and other groups was too much to overcome. However, there can be little valid opposition to the proposed March 15, order.

QUALIFIED: An applicant for a Civil Service job recently filed his application. Under the heading "Description of Your Work" his total comment was:

Alas! I've never worked before
Except at farming's lowly chore.
Or dig the ditch, or paint the chair,
Or work with coal dust in my hair.

I've plied the spade till muscles ached,
I've cut and staked tomato stakes,
I've swept and scrubbed in every school,
While others roamed the campus cool.

I worked one summer teaching fools,
Obeying institution rules,
And once I hired myself to type,
And that today is my chief gripe.

For six long years I went to lab,
And learned the scientific gab,
And now I fain would do research,
And meet a "no experience" curse.

I'm hoping you will heed my plea,
A good researcher make of me.

ARMY: Things appear to be getting back to normal at the Pentagon. The military brass have ordered the closing of the barber shop there to civilians. As one civilian official sarcastically commented: "We aren't forced yet to bring our own lunches; we're grateful to share the use of the cafeterias."

OVERSEAS employes would be able to take Civil Service exams under a proposal indorsed by the Federal Personnel Council. It's not now necessary for overseas civilians to have Civil Service status. However, it's argued that these employes (the Americans) should be given the opportunity to gain regular status through tests now being given. Civil Service will try to work out a system for giving its departmental exams at key overseas points.

AIR FORCE: Audrey Y. Kent and Eleanor Gessford are among the Air Force employes who have been given the exceptional civilian service awards . . . Air Force employes made 2095 economy suggestions in January. Two hundred were accepted which will save Uncle Sam about $440,000 a year. The employes who made them will get a total of $7061.

RECLASSIFICATION: The Administration is again overhauling its plan to revise and streamline the salary-fixing Classification Act. The proposed salaries of top-level jobs is being scaled down to dovetail with the Lucas-O'Conor executive salary bill.

The top salary in the rerevised classification schedule will be $15,000. It was $17,500. But a redraft was necessary when the Senate Civil Service Committee cut back salaries in the Lucas-O'Conor bill to a minimum of $16,000 instead of $18,000 as proposed by the President. Also, there will be either two or three new grades between the present $10,330 ceiling and the proposed $15,000 top.

The average increase for the rank-and-file employe won't be changed to any extent. It will average about $60 a year. Meantime, several classification bills are being drawn up by members of Congress. One of them would give classified employes a minimum increase of $150 a year.

NFFE: The executive council of the Independent National Federation of Federal Employes will meet here today to map a legislative program. President Luther C. Steward will preside. Other members are: Gertrude M. McNally and Henry G. Nolds of this city; Walter P. Taylor of Stillwater, Okla.; George L. Evans of Denver; Vaux Owen of Atlanta; L. J. Wall of Springfield, Ill.; Walter H. Fleet of Klamath Falls, Oreg.; John J. Royle of Watertown, Mass.; Louis J. Kjer of Milwaukee, and Frederick Fowler of San Francisco.

FEDERAL RESERVE: A beauty salon has been set up in the basement of the Federal Reserve Building for the convenience of Government girls in the vicinity of 20th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

BLS: The Bureau of Labor Statistics will revamp its wholesale price index which hasn't been changed since 1931 . . . The agency makes cost of living studies for the Atomic Energy Commission at Oak Ridge and Los Alamos. AEC uses the information on which to base salaries . . .

WAGE AND HOUR: Its inspectors in grades CAF 6, 7 and 8 will be placed into two grades, CAF 7 and 9, on July 1. Incidentally, Wage and Hour will ask for funds to more than double its 1000-man inspection staff if the 75-cent minimum wage bill is enacted into law. It's estimated that more than 1½ million employes are paid less than 75 cents an hour, mainly in lumber, tobacco and cotton garment industries.

Maryland Procedure On Paroles Draws Fire

C. B. McDivitt Labels System 'Backward' and Risk to Society

Maryland's parole procedure was labeled "backward" and a risk to society yesterday by the head of Baltimore's Prisoners Aid Association.

C. Boyd McDivitt described Maryland as "one of the most backward States in the country in affording its citizens the protection they have a right to expect from prison parole."

"Maryland still dumps a great majority of its prisoners without regard to their plight" or to the risk to society, he added.

McDivitt made the charge in answer to a report made Saturday in Baltimore by F. Murray Benson, director of the State Division of Parole and Probation.

Benson said that in the last 5 years the number of convicts paroled from Maryland's 5 main penal institutions has increased more than 100 per cent over the previous 5 years.

At issue are three bills, drafted by a special legislative commission, overhauling present parole procedure, removing parole power from the Governor and placing it in the hands of a parole board.

McDivitt said that Benson's comparison of parole figures was "meaningless."

"It is like saying that John Smith with four hairs on his head has 100 per cent more hair than John Doe who has two," he said.

"The fact is that both are baldheaded for all practical purposes. Maryland is today still baldheaded as far as parole is concerned."

McDivitt termed the Benson report "misleading," because it infers the parole system is functioning well.

"Actually," the association head said, "45 States release a greater proportion of their prisoners under regulation and supervision than does Maryland."

In 1948, McDivitt said, Maryland paroled 355 convicts, but released more than 1800 others without regulation or supervision. These prisoners are being released day after day into "crime-provoking" situations, he said, and Maryland is doing nothing about them.

The Prisoners Aid Association, with a dozen other civic groups, has indorsed the bills reorganizing the State parole system.

Under the bills, the selection of parolees and granting of parole, plus greatly expanded post-parole supervision, would be functions of a parole board.

Youth Week Observed by Baptist Church

Oldsters took a back seat yesterday when Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., observed its annual youth week.

Mr. Edmunds

Young laymen not only planned all the details of the day's three services, but were Sunday School teachers, ministers of music, and members of the Board of Trustees. Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of the church, sat in a pew with his family during the services.

Stephen Edmunds, 29, of 3129 9th rd. North, Arlington, gave the sermon at both morning services and assisted in the evening service. Edmunds, construction engineer and veteran of four years service in the Pacific, urged the congregation to attend worship services regularly, to listen for God's voice and to give themselves in service.

Horace McManus, 22, 5711 Jamestown rd., Hyattsville, assistant minister for the day, participated in the morning service and preached in the evening.

Today the young people will continue with their church work when they gather with mops and brooms to clean up the building.

Sign of Spring

Bock Beer Begins to Flow Today

. . . ah, bock!

Bock beer, long a boon to brewers, beer drinkers and editorial writers, starts flowing in Washington today.

Bock is the heavier, darker and stronger beer which vies with the robin and the crocus as one of spring's more reliable harbingers.

Traditionally, bock is advertised with pictures of stern goats, since bock means "goat" in German.

It's Wrong Animal

According to Zoo Director William Mann, however, the beast which should be used to advertise bock today is the aoudad from Africa, not a goat. The aoudad has curling horns on a stern face rather than the more prosaic features of the garden or tin can variety of goat.

Bock beer is generally said to appear in the spring because it is the first brew made after brewers' vats are cleaned.

"This is pure myth," according to no less an authority than Chris Heurich, president of Washington's only brewery, the Heurich Brewing Co.

"Brewers could make bock all year round, if they wanted to," Heurich said yesterday, "but it is made for spring delivery today to conform to tradition."

Because of its greater substance and strength bock beer requires longer aging than other beers, Heurich said.

Beer Aged in Winter

In the olden days when there was no refrigeration, this extra aging could only be done during the normally cold winter months, and thus the bock beer was released in the spring, after winter aging and before summer heat.

Some say the beer is called bock because it was first brewed in 1203, in the German town of Einbock.

Another theory concerns a beer drinking contest during one March in the middle sixteenth century between two rival brewers.

Each man was to drink the beer manufactured by the other, with the winner the last man on his feet, since his beer, drunk by the loser, would be the more potent.

Legend has it one brewer walked out for a breath of air and was knocked off his feet by a goat which sauntered by.

"I win," one cried.

"No you don't," replied the other, "It was the bock."

Postlude

C. U. Chorus Sings With Symphony

By Paul Hume

Before a large audience in Catholic University's gymnasium, Howard Mitchell yesterday conducted the National Symphony Orchestra's second concert on that campus.

Sole novelty of the afternoon was Johannes Brahms' Alto Rhapsody, with Hazel Arth as soloist, assisted by the men's glee club of the university. Given for the first time in Washington with the assistance of the full symphony, the Rhapsody is a uniquely warm piece of writing.

Its text, drawn from a longer work of Goethe, is divided into two sections. In the final half of the score, the chorus, orchestra, and Miss Arth created a profound effect. The early moments of the music were easily handled by the soloist, while Mitchell presented the music with proper dramatic accent.

The chorus, making its debut with orchestra, was trained by the Rev. Russel Woolleen. It showed professional polish in every way. It is an excellent thing for Washington's larger schools to join with and support the National Symphony in such artistic ways.

Mitchell surrounded the Rhapsody with Cesar Franck's sole symphony, Beethoven's Egmont Overture, and Rimsky-Korsakoff's Spanish Caprice. It was good to hear the thrice familiar symphony moved along at a proper pace. In each movement Mitchell succeeded in reviving flagging interest through the correct process of adapting the proper tone and tempo. The overture drew brilliant and unwonted fire from the orchestra.

Sole excuse for the Spanish Caprice is to show off an orchestra's virtuosity, both in solo and ensemble passages. The National Symphony has good reason to boast of its solo players, and Mitchell accounts for finer ensemble work each time he leads the players. The concert was enthusiastically received at every point, with particular attention for Miss Arth and the conductor.

Applause continued so long Mitchell was forced to add Bach's noted Air as an encore.

71 New Jobs Involved In Sales Tax

D. C. Government Also Would Need 7000 Square Feet Of Office Space

Adoption of a District sales tax will require the addition of 71 employes and at least 7000 square feet of office space, District officials said last night.

As the first step toward planning for such expansion, the District government's space committee, headed by Assistant Engineer Commissioner L. E. Cox, will meet at 10 a. m. today to discuss how to handle the possible space problem.

The largest expansion would be in Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent's office, where 51 workers would be added and 5000 square feet of office space required. A unit similar to the present income tax division is planned, Dent said.

This would include an administrator, assistant administrator, senior and junior examiners, clerks and stenographers.

Dent disclosed the division, if created, will check business franchise tax reports of gross sales by firms against sales tax returns to determine if proper collections were made on the sales tax.

Tax Collector Guy W. Pearson indicated his staff would be expanded by 15 persons requiring an additional 1000 square feet of space.

Auditor A. R. Pilkerton said five would be added to his staff to work as examiners, checking collections, setting up control accounts and going into the field if discrepancies are discovered in audits. He has not yet made an estimate of space required.

The space problem is a serious one, according to Colonel Cox. Department heads have urged that space be assigned in the District Building so that the unit may "tie in" with other divisions now located there.

The committee will first consider "tightening up" units in the Municipal Center through consolidation of various offices, but this is not expected to result in enough space for the expansions. The next study will be of old, abandoned school buildings and will probably involve removal of some present District Building unit to such structures, Colonel Cox said.

Merchant, Ill, Ends Life With Rifle Bullet

Owner of a Southeast hardware store was found fatally shot in the mouth with a .22 caliber rifle yesterday.

Mr. Stevens

He was George B. Stevens, 62, of 3017 7th st. se., who was found unconscious in the boiler room of his store at 2759 Nichols ave. se. about 3:30 p. m. Taken to the Casualty Hospital, he was pronounced dead a half hour later.

Police said Stevens was found by his step-sons, William V. Mayhew, of 3208 12th st. se., and Frank Mayhew, of 631 Alabama ave. se., who had stopped by the store to check the boiler. The rifle, with one discharged shell, was found by Stevens' side.

A note addressed to his family, stating the storekeeper was despondent over ill health, was lying on the desk in the store office, according to police. They said Stevens had gone to the store during the morning to work on accounts. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

The family said Stevens was born in Jersey City, N. J., and came to Washington in 1913. He had owned the hardware store for almost 30 years.

He was a member of the Board of Directors of the Anacostia National Bank, a Shriner, a 32d degree Mason and a member of the Lions Club.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nellie C. Stevens, and a son, Ernest Stevens, who lives in New York City.

Parking Areas For 700 Cars Ne: Armory Planned

Plans for addition of 700 car spaces in parking areas around the District National Guard Armory are being drafted by the District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency, it was learned last night.

At the request of the Armory board, Parking Agency employes are preparing plans to end "the parking headache" created by Armory events, Arthur J. (Dutch) Bergman, Armory manager, said.

The present tar-covered area in front of the Armory has a capacity of 800 vehicles and plans now under consideration call for adding paved areas behind two neighboring Immigration and Naturalization Service buildings for parking, raising the total car capacity to 1500, Bergman said.

Driver Sought In Probe of Man's Death

Police yesterday broadcast a lookout for a black Chevrolet sedan with expired District tags, the driver of which, they said, may be able to shed light on the death of Charles J. Carr, 40, of 529 26th st. nw.

Carr was found unconscious at 26th st. and Virginia ave. nw. Saturday, and died at Gallinger Hospital that night. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said death was due to a fractured skull and broken leg.

Police said Carr apparently was the victim of a hit-and-run driver, but withheld listing his death as a traffic fatality pending further investigation. The driver of the black sedan may have witnessed how Carr was injured, police said, since the motorist was reported to be near the scene at that time.

An Eleventh Precinct scout car, in another case, was struck by an auto yesterday while the policemen were talking to a motorist in the 600 block of Alabama ave. se.

Pvt. Harry A. Dunn, driver of the police car, said he had stopped the car to talk to the motorist when it was struck by an auto operated by Henry J. Rothenberg, 46, of 302 E st. nw. Rothenberg was charged with failing to give full time and attention to driving.

Respect Urged For Officials By Sparkman

Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), said last night that people may be playing with fire when they heap too much ridicule on Congressmen and other public officials.

"I do wonder sometimes if we are not playing with fire in heaping ridicule as we are prone to do upon men of Congress and others who hold high positions," he said at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.

He emphasized, however, that "if they are due the ridicule, they should not be free from it."

The veteran Senator, also a prominent Methodist layman, addressed the sessions of Young Adult School of Christian Living on "The Church and Legislature," in the course on "The Church and Public Life."

"If we ever create in our people a lack of respect for our government, we will have reached a dangerous position," the Alabaman declared. "It is the duty of church people to build up a wholesome respect for law and laws."

Senator Sparkman teaches the Sparkman Men's Bible Class at Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw., and is active in the Senate Breakfast Prayer Group of the National Committee for Christian Leadership.

Don't Look Now!

Vanished Republican Elephant Paged Here in Hushed Dither

A far-reaching dragnet has been quietly cast around the District for a Republican elephant whose unexplained disappearance from a party two months ago is still keeping some GOP battle wounds burning.

Intelligence culled from an atmosphere of pained embarassment describes the delinquent pachyderm as about $1000 worth of carved mahogany, in size, about knee-high to a 5-foot 3-inch young lady (or man, if you will) and not dangerous—except to the abductor who's caught with it.

The last time it was seen, so drawing room whispers say, it was playing straight man to a donkey in a skit put on January 21 during a post-inaugural ball at the Officers' Service Club of the United Nations, Inc., 1644 R st., nw.

The club is for officers, past and present. Hostesses under the wing of Mrs. Clyde B. Parker, 2115 P st. nw., were daughters of officers of the services. No strangers were reported. All was right and proper. Yet . . .

Mrs. Parker borrowed the elephant for the skit which she wrote herself. The statue is the favorite pet of a mighty pillar of the Grand Old Party, whose name is a secret, so far.

Form letters have been addressed to gentlemen and ladies present to please give it back. No questions will be asked, the letter says. Just give it back.

Colleges and fraternities in Washington, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia with a flair for petnapping have also received pleas for information leading to the capture, etc. . . .

Dances and other affairs at the club since the night of the deed have been interrupted by solemn reminders about conduct unbecoming officers and gentlemen—and look sharp for kidnap-looking strangers.

But still, to date, the trail is cold. The pachyderm seems to be as lost as the GOP battle of recent memory.

Ad Club to Hear Wachtell

W. W. Wachtell, president of Calvert Distillers Corp. and originator of the "Men of Distinction" advertisements, will discuss "Men Make Markets" at an Advertising Club of Washington luncheon at 12:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Statler Hotel.

2000 Face Realty Tax Penalties in Montgomery

Unpaid Bills Will Cost Delinquents In County $5.50, Diamond Says

Penalties of $5.50 will be applied today to the real estate tax bills of an estimated 2000 Montgomery County delinquents—the highest number in recent years.

These Marylanders also face possible loss of their property through public auction.

County Treasurer John B. Diamond said the $5.50 charge will be added to all bills marked unpaid as of the 1948 deadline, which was Saturday. To meet the deadline, bills must be postmarked before midnight of that day. The fee, he said, represents a flat $1.00 penalty, plus a $4.50 charge for advertising each delinquent property for sale.

The public auction of delinquent properties will be advertised in local newspapers for April 11, Diamond said, but taxpayers can avert loss of their property by paying the taxes, plus interest and penalty, at any time before that date.

Although the exact number of delinquents will not be known for several days, according to the treasurer, it definitely will top those of recent years. He said it probably would be "several times" last year's total of 700.

The treasurer said he believed the increase in delinquency was due primarily to a scarcity of money. Another factor, however, is the fact that tax bills were mailed out later than usual this year because of institution of a new recording system, combined with inadequate personnel.

Hospital Drive Group Headed By Capossela

James G. Capossela, administrator of Emergency Hospital here, has been named to head a committee of local hospital officials to help raise funds to improve standards of hospital administration throughout the Nation.

Other committee members include Sister Marie Daly, director, Providence Hospital; Van C. Adams, administrator, Alexandria Hospital; John J. Anderson, administrator, Arlington Hospital; Arthur B. Solon, administrator, Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, Md.; Robert D. Southwick, assistant administrator, Gallinger Hospital, and Leo G. Schmelzer, former administrator at George Washington University Hospital and now with United States Public Health Service.

Nationally, the American College of Hospital Administrators is seeking to raise $425,000 for a five-year educational program to increase efficiency in hospital administration and raise the level of public health. No local quota has been set, and contributions will be solicited from selected groups rather than on a public drive basis, Capossela said.

C. H. Small Dies; Retired Contractor

Clarence H. Small, 69, retired building contractor, died Saturday at his home at the Manor Club, near Norbeck, Md., after a lengthy illness.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the Barber funeral home, Laytonsville, Md. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Small was born in Montgomery County and was in the building business for more than 25 years. He did extensive building in Northeast Washington before retiring about five years ago.

He had been active in politics in Montgomery County and was identified with the anti-organization wing of the Democratic Party. In 1942 he was defeated as a candidate for State Senator on a progressive ticket and in 1940 led in a movement to support Senator Tydings for the Democratic presidential nomination.

For several years he was a member of the Montgomery County Police Trial Board.

Mr. Small, whose wife, Mrs. Lillian Small, died last year, is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mildred McAllister of Manor Club and Mrs. Isabel Cross, West Lanham Hills, Md., and an adopted daughter, Miss Charlotte Y. Smith, Manor Club.

He also is survived by three sisters, Mrs. George U. Small, 634 A st. ne., Mrs. Addie Howard and Mrs. Ada Higgins, both of Gaithersburg, Md., and three brothers, Charles U. Small, Gaithersburg, William R. Small, Baltimore, and Harvey H. Small, Petersburg, Va.

To Install Officers

Maj. George Fletcher, State commanding officer of the Marine Corps League of Virginia, will install auxiliary officers of the league in ceremonies at 8 p. m. Wednesday, in Gadsby's Tavern, Alexandria.

Air Hitchhike Travel Booms Under Bolling 'Playlift' Plan

The Washington Post

GOING PLACES—Service personnel are shown waiting for air transportation at Bolling Air Base. Those on emergency orders get preference, the rest await their turn. This is a view of the ready room. In the front row are Pfc. Ruben Longoria, USMC; Pfc. Robert Cinnamon, Army, and Seaman 2d Class Gene Burry, Navy

Scarcely 30 minutes after Marine Corpl. Marie Carbonare took off from Bolling Air Force Base, she winged into New York aboard a twin P-51 fighter plane.

And less than 12 hours after leaving the District, 18-year-old Pfc. Reuben Longoria, jumped out of a veteran C-47 to greet his parents in San Diego.

Multiply these flights by a couple of thousand each month and you have an idea of what is going on at Bolling Air Force Base these days since its commanding officer gave "thumbs up" to an all-out plan to provide air transportation for as many servicemen as possible.

Col. Sidney D. Grubbs, tired of seeing giant transport planes lumber out of the field with one or two passengers, has set up a smoothly working system of registering, processing and assigning his temporary "guests" to every type of air transportation.

Growing Fraternity

The result—a steadily growing fraternity of high-flying GIs who wing their way daily to every part of the country in an airborne movement that threatens to swamp the busy field.

The "bucket seat brigade" already has reached a peak of more than 3000 servicemen and women a month who are perfectly willing to hitchhike along the airways in anything that can get off the ground.

The "backseat pilots" are quick to point out that it is not only the fastest way to travel, but it costs them nothing. And the fact that military regulations require a parachute for each passenger eases their minds and cushions their anatomy when they ride the bucket seats of "crates" that significantly lack the comforts of commercial airlines.

No Money, No Choice

For Corporal Carbonare the lack of comfort is O.K. with her. "You pay no money," she says, "so you get no choice." If it has wings and is going her way, she's ready to get aboard. In the two months she's been stationed in Washington she hasn't missed a weekend at home.

The story was little different for Marine Private Longoria. After a world cruise aboard the USS Tarawa he wanted to spend much of his short leave at home. A "hotshot" run to the West Coast in any plane suited him fine.

The only time a preference in transportation was shown was when an 80-year-old Spanish American War veteran, who sported a long beard and carried a guitar, allowed as how he'd like to go west in one of "them fast fighting-type planes."

There are no scheduled flights out of the field and every serviceman wanting a ride has to come to the base and "sweat out" a hop to his neck of the woods. This sweating-out period can range from five minutes for well traveled runs such as New York or Columbus, Ohio, to five days for San Diego or Seattle.

In addition, a rigid system of priorities has been set up that has no respect for rank, rating or branch of service.

Servicemen on emergency leave are first on the list, next are service personnel traveling on orders. GIs on regular leave get third nod—they form the bulk of the travelers. Last are reservists of any military branch and retired servicemen.

Arlington Chest X-Ray To Open on March 29

A mass chest X-ray survey will be conducted in Arlington County from March 29 to April 9 under joint sponsorship of the county health department, the State health department and the Arlington Tuberculosis Association, it was announced yesterday.

Three portable X-ray units will be used in the program, making chest examinations available to all residents without cost.

Teacher Forum Tuesday

A discussion of "What the Teacher Expects of the Parent" will be presented by a panel of Montgomery County teachers before the Richard Montgomery High School Parent-Teacher Association Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the school at Rockville. The forum is the first in a series of discussions of parent-teacher relations sponsored by the group.

Frank Morrison

Funeral services for Frank Morrison, 89, secretary emeritus of the American Federation of Labor, who died Saturday at his home, 1216 Decatur st. nw., will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m.

A member of his family said last night, however, the place of services remains indefinite. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Morrison had been ill since January 21. He had been secretary of the AFL for 43 years when he retired in 1939.

Miss Janet MacWilliams, Teacher, Dies

Miss Janet MacWilliams, 87, a teacher, principal and supervisor in the Washington schools for 50 years, died yesterday at the home of relatives in Decatur, Ill.

A native Washingtonian, Miss MacWilliams was educated in the public schools here, and attended Wilson Teachers' College and George Washington University.

She began teaching here long before the turn of the century and retired 15 years ago.

She became a principal in 1921 at the Force School. Later she was appointed divisional director of the Sixth Division, and at the time of her retirement held a similar position in the Third Division.

An expert mathmetician, Miss MacWilliams performed computations for the Naval Observatory for several years in her after-school hours. She belonged to the Columbian Women of George Washington University and the National Education Association.

For several years after her retirement, Miss MacWilliams passed her winters in Washington and summers at Gull Lake, Minn. Six years ago she left Washington to make her winter residence in Minneapolis.

She leaves no close survivors. The funeral will be in Washington, but arrangements have not been completed.

Gen. Cheney Dies; Aide To Coolidge

Manchester, Conn., March 13 (AP). Brig. Gen. Sherwood A. Cheney, 75, who was a military aide to President Coolidge and served for 40 years in the Army, died today.

Among other medals, he had won the French Legion of Honor, the Croix de Guerre and the Distinguished Service Medal. General Cheney served in Mexico, Cuba, France, the Baltic States and in China during his military career.

He leaves his widow, a daughter, two sisters, and a sister-in-law.

Mrs. Lilla H. Hall

Graveside funeral services for Mrs. Lilla H. Hall, widow of Col. John Dean Hall, former assistant Surgeon General of the Army, will be held today at 3 p. m. at Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Hall died March 9 at the home of her son, Maj. Dean Hall, in New Rochelle, N. Y. A native of Dayton, Ohio, Mrs. Hall had lived in Washington for several years when her husband was stationed here. She is survived by her son, a brother, and five granddaughters.

Kirkpatrick Dies, Former Shipping Aide

Col. Charles C. Kirkpatrick, 84, an outstanding transportation authority and former consultant of the Department of Commerce, died Saturday in New Bern, N. C.

Until last May, when he suffered a stroke, Col. Kirkpatrick lived at the University Club here.

A graduate of Oberlin College, he came to Washington in 1927 and conducted a series of surveys for the Department of Commerce until 1933 when he completed an economic study of the proposed Trans-Florida ship canal. He served in the Intelligence Section of the War Shipping Administration from 1942 to 1945.

Colonel Kirkpatrick gained national prominence in the shipping field for his studies in connection with the establishment of free ports at Seattle, San Francisco, and Mobile, Ala., sponsored by the Chambers of Commerce of those cities.

At the time he was stricken, Col. Kirkpatrick was making a similar survey of Canaveral, Fla.

He was a member of the Masons here and of the New Bern Shrine. The title of honorary colonel was bestowed upon him by Gov. Ruby Lafoon of Kentucky.

He is survived by a sister in Chicago and a brother in Texas.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today in New Bern.

Will J. Morgan Funeral Rites Set Tuesday

Funeral services for Will J. Morgan, 68, a Department of Agriculture chemist for 39 years who died in Homeopathic Hospital Saturday will be held at 11 a. m. Tuesday at S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Morgan migrated to Sibley, Iowa from his native Wales at the age of 15. He was awarded a Bachelor of Science Degree at Morningside College in Iowa in 1904, and took his Master's Degree at Iowa State University in 1907.

He came to Washington in 1910, taking a job with the Department of Agriculture which he kept until his death. His last position was that of analytical chemist at the Agricultural Research Center in Beltsville.

Mr. Morgan was a member of the Woodbridge Chapter, No. 15, Royal Arch Masons and of the Eastgate Lodge, No. 34, F. A. A. M. He also belonged to the Episcopal Church of Our Savior.

He lived with his wife, the former Myrtle Bradley of Iowa, at 1725 Jackson st. ne.

In Memoriam

PARKER. ELWOOD H. In sad but loving remembrance of our darling son and brother, ELWOOD H. PARKER, who departed this life 6 years ago today, March 14, 1943.

Sorrow has filled this home of ours,
The sunlight is never so bright.
The days are long and seem never to end
Since God called him to Him one night.
MOTHER, DAD AND SISTER.

STOKES, ANNA MAE (nee Henley), who passed away one year ago, March 14, 1948.

Sweet to remember her who once was here
And though absent, is just as dear.
And while she lies in peaceful sleep
Her memory I will always keep.
Her sister-in-law,
MRS. MABEL J. HICKS.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man Identifies Himself as One of the Sow's Ears Who, Supposedly, Can't Understand This Column's Language; He Has Something to Say

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am one of the sow's ears your student advisor cautioned you about, remember? He says your advice is sound; that the professor and students of psychology at his university approve it 95 per cent; but can the majority of your readers digest your language? Especially if they haven't finished grade school or high school?

My education was picked up along the skid rows of America. I am one of the underprivileged. So naturally your healthy advice insults my ego. But, unfortunately, I can't find anything in it to kick about. I don't follow it but I don't blame fate any more. I just set the jug down slowly at my feet and grin, a little sadly, and try again tomorrow.

I do not discuss your column with the boys at the corner soda fountain nor burn the midnight oil trying to unravel the mystical secrets of your abstractions. I just absorb what I can of it, and if I am too unregenerate for redemption, I can settle for the enjoyment you afford, anyway.

Tell the kid to join the Army. They will teach him in words of one syllable. They might even teach his professor a little psychology. Tell him to try Market Street. You learn about human abstractions there, too. I learned one thing there—on the Baltimore water front: "Never judge a man until you have walked in his shoes for about two years." Amen. R. D.

People Can Drink Without a Nipple

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My wife and I think that too many people specializing in psychology get the idea that we "average minds" who have only a high school education or less, aren't able to grasp things in print. Do they think we can't drink without a nipple?

We fix our cars, paint and paper our houses, do our own upholstering, lay brick,—name me anything the American people can't do. And we can all easily understand you. If 90 per cent of us like your style, that means you're "good."

I am 43, have two daughters and, thanks to your articles, I have stored up a world of knowledge to use in answering their questions. That's all. T. M.

She Hasn't Time for Extra Study

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I think the college student is right!—at least partly. I have only a high school education and most of the time I get the thought you are trying to put across; but I think you use too many big words in one paragraph sometimes. I think most readers will agree with me on that.

You may say, "Look up the words and find out their meaning,"—but with three sons to look after, a house to keep, and a husband of course, I hardly have time to study a dictionary. I don't think you appreciate constructive, well meaning criticism. Now go ahead and bawl me out, too! H. B.

How Many Possess "Gift of Tongues?"

DEAR READERS: I've had enough mail on the subject of "style" to fill a month's columns; so herewith a second (and final) cross-section sampling. Those "in favor" are still in the lead; and even the critics aren't too unkind for the most part, and some indeed apologize for griping.

I don't mind pertinent criticism; but neither am I a straw in the wind of every critical blast. You know the old saying, "Try to please everybody and you won't please anybody."

Any writer worth his salt tells the truth as he sees it, in the clearest words at his command; but if he falls short of the inspired "gift of tongues" in the Biblical sense, whereby he might speak every man's language—well, that's human. And now, thanks to all for their spirited views—which have brought me much closer to the audience, I feel. M. H.

Egg Timbales Is Luncheon Treat

EVERYDAY LUNCHES are apt to get into a monotonous rut because Mother just manages to squeeze them in between the morning housecleaning and the afternoon ironing. Try perking up lunch menus with new foods occasionally—for example, egg timbales, topped with a creamy cheese sauce. To complete the lunch, add buttered green beans, carrot sticks, bread and butter, and an easy fruit dessert.

Egg Timbales with Creamy Cheese Sauce

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2½ cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup finely diced celery
6 eggs, slightly beaten

Melt butter, add flour and blend. Gradually add milk and cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. And seasonings and celery, and slowly pour mixture into slightly beaten eggs. Mix thoroughly. Pour into 6 medium custard cups, set in pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for 45 minutes, until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Serve with cheese sauce, made as follows:

3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk, scalded
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup grated American cheese

Suggestions for Bridal Shower

Please give me suggestions for a miscellaneous surprise bridal shower to be given in a few weeks, menu and decorations. The shower is to be given at night for about 40 ladies and is to be served buffet style. An excellent suggestion which I have already received is those bread loaves, with fillings and iced with cream cheese. I have also decided to have ice cream molds of hearts, flowers and cupids. I would like to have a menu of very colorful and dainty foods. Something other than the usual cold cuts.

The loaf you describe is a sandwich loaf and would be lovely if the refreshments are to be served later in the evening rather than for the evening meal. With the sandwich loaf, serve a pretty salad. An extra special salad for this special occasion would be an avocado ring centered with cut-up fruit. The ring is a delicate green and with colorful fruits in the center, is truly an attractive salad.

Avocado Ring Mold

Take one envelope of unflavored gelatin, soften it in a little cold water and dissolve it in ½ cup of boiling water. Add to this ¼ cup of lemon juice, 2 tablespoons of sugar and ½ teaspoon of salt. Mash an avocado which is large enough to give you 1 cup of pulp. Stir this into the gelatin mixture. Cool until it begins to thicken, then beat in ½ cup of mayonnaise and ½ cup of cream, whipped stiff. Blend all well and fill ring molds which have been rinsed in cold water so the mold will slip out easily. Chill. When ready to serve, unmold on lettuce and pile colorful fruit in the center. One recipe serves eight.

When you make the sandwich loaf, concentrate on chicken, egg and (or) cheese fillings for it.

With your ice cream molds you could serve dainty Bridesmaid Cup Cakes. To make them, frost cup cakes with white icing then decorate them with dainty pastel colored frosting flowers to resemble a nosegay. These could be put on with a pastry tube or you can buy candy decorating flowers at specialty shops.

Use yellow, pink and blue or any color scheme you wish to carry out. Just before serving, set each cup cake in the center of a lace paper doily and tie the doily onto the cake with colored baby ribbon to resemble a nosegay. There should be a frill of "lace" around the top of the cake and the ribbon should be tied in such a way as to give several hanging streamers. These streamers should repeat the colors used in the flower frosting.

The decorations could be centered at the buffet table. On the table use a large gairly covered umbrella with the gifts under it or you could place the Bridesmaid Cup Cakes on a handsome plate, with streamers extending away from plate and use that for your center piece.

To Ponder Women's Progress

Women Leaders Gathering In Lebanon for U. N. Parley

By Genevieve Reynolds

A group of distinguished North and Latin American women leaders will enplane today and Tuesday for Beirut, Lebanon. They will be among the official delegates, observers and advisers from 15 countries to the third Conference of the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women, which will open March 21 in that city of ancient and modern contrasts.

Five District residents—Senorita Minerva Bernardino, Mrs. Rachel Nason, Mrs. Lydia Van Zandt, Miss Virginia Arnold and Miss Ruth Woodsmall, Chief of the Women's Section, Office of Military Government in Germany—will attend the three-week international conclave.

Former New York City Municipal Court Judge Dorothy Kenyon will be the official United States delegate. In addition, she will serve as a representative of the American Association of University Women of which she is currently vice president. With her she will carry reams of data on women's status in the United States to offer to the women of the Middle East who still lack the right to vote.

Mrs. Nason Is Adviser

Mrs. Nason, specialist on International Organization Affairs, U. N. Affairs, Department of State, will go as an adviser, as will Miss Arnold, Nurse Officer of the United States Public Health Service and Miss Woodsmall.

Mrs. Van Zandt will be an observer for several women's organizations. Observing for the International Federation of Business and Professional Women will be Miss Margaret Hickey, past president of the National Federation of BPW and for the past two years Public Affairs Editor of the Ladies Home Journal. Mrs. Lloyd Sprague of Corning, N. Y., will go as an observer for the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Miss Bernardino, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, will represent the commission as an official observer and adviser to the world meeting. She will present a resume of recent activities of the commisison on behalf of women's rights in the 21 American republics. The commisison is sponsored by the Organization of American States. Trygve Lie, Secretary General of the U. N., issued a special invitation to the commission to send a non-voting representative to the Beirut session of the U. N. Commission to further the U. N. Commission's aim to coordinate regional and world activities of the specialized agencies.

The Dominican Republic's delegate to the Inter-American Commission of Women says, "the 20 years of experience we have had in the Americas promoting government action to improve the political, civil, economic and social rights of women has been recognized as valuable pioneer work by the more recent U. N. Commission which must consider these problems on a world scale. There is still much to be done and learning from each other, we should be able to reach our goal without necessary trial and error."

It will be recalled that Miss Bernardino has represented her country at all the conferences of the U. N. since it orginated in San Francisco. She was the only woman delegate with full voting powers at the Chapultepec Conference in Mexico. And it was she who lead the fight at the Paris Assembly to have the word women instead of person included in the Declaration of Human Rights. In addition to being known throughout the hemisphere as a champion of women's rights, she represented the Dominican Republic as plenipotentiary delegate to last year's Conference of American States in Bogota as well as U. N. Assembly meetings in London, New York and Paris.

Following the Beirut meeting, she expects to stop off in Paris, Rome, Athens and Cairo to confer with women leaders in those countries. In Athens she will be the guest of the United States Ambassador and Mrs. Henry F. Grady.

Balance Is Basic

Use Muscles for Alignment And Let Your Bones Support You

By Ida Jean Kain

A good figure depends on counteracting gravity—otherwise you settle for the slump. The center of gravity as far as the balanced lineup of the figure goes, is in the pelvic girdle. To be exact, it lies toward the front of the lowest bone of the spinal column which directly connects with the pelvis. All that sounds a bit anatomical, but it's basic to making posture self-supporting with no straining at the connections.

The well-known instructions to pull the hips down and under and pull the front muscles up and in, are meant to get the center of gravity where it belongs. Hip muscles are not just for sitting. They have the important role of keeping the pelvic girdle in proper alignment. However, it's easy to get off center with that down-and-under pull. A better rule to go by is to contract the hip muscles strongly, as you pull up snugly with the front muscles. And remember—it's the midriff muscles themselves that must be the uplifters, not the shoulders and chest. The middle muscles are capable of two actions—they pull in and they pull up. The up-pull comes first.

In the right lineup, the whole body seems free, with shoulders relaxed and arms easy. Being balanced gives a feeling of buoyancy. See for yourself . . .

Put two straight-backed chairs fairly close together, back to back. Now edge through the narrow space. Hips must be contracted, abdominals pulled up and in, while shoulders ride free and easy.

POSITION: Stand against the wall, back and head touching wall, heels a couple of inches away from wall.

MOVEMENT: Slowly bend knees—go about half-way down—trying to make all parts of the spine touch the wall. Now slowly straighten knees, keeping entire spine against the wall. This calls for a strong up-pull with the girdle muscles—the trying is exercise. Go through this one 3 to 6 times.

In poised posture, your bones give rugged support—streamlining isn't all left up to the muscles. But, of course, the muscles need starch in them, too. The following exercise tones stomach and hip muscles . . .

POSITION: Lie on side on floor, head pillowed on under arm, legs straight down.

MOVEMENT: Raise legs slightly off floor for clearance and shuttle into action—move the legs like a pair of shears and keep a firm grip on the middle muscles. Repeat 12 times, later 25, on each side.

The posture session is over. But don't slump . . . or gravity wins. The best exercise of all is still the habit of good posture.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Good Intentions Are Most Important

Suzanne, barely three, has been suspiciously quiet in the bathroom. When her mother looks in to see what is happening, a full tube of toothpaste has been smeared on mirror, wash basin, walls and floor. What would you do were you in the mother's place?

Probably one's first inclination is to punish, to make clear that this is 'bad." But what were Suzanne's intentions? It is more likely than not that she was trying to clean up as she had seen mother do. Added to this possibility is the probability that the squeezing was fun and the "work" in spreading the paste around very satisfying.

To be sure, Suzanne must be helped to learn what is appropriate in cleaning up. But should she be punished for her attempt? It would seem wise immediately to take advantage of her interest and begin the first step of teaching her how to do the job properly.

You may feel that there is too much trouble involved in such an approach and that the simpler way of scolding or spanking would be a better method. But if we want children to get satisfaction out of helping, if we want them to feel that they can expect fair treatment from others, a positive approach, such as the one suggested, would seem to be indicated.

"Cross me off your list . . . but don't forget the other guys!"

"There was a time when I thought I'd be a Case History for keeps. A time when a dry laugh caught in my throat at the thought that I'd ever hold a job again.

"That was the time when a smile, a friendly word from a Red Cross worker was worth more than all the money in the world. The Red Cross believed I'd come through O. K. And finally they made me believe it, too.

"So I'd like to say—thanks, folks! I know it was you who made the work of the Red Cross possible.

"Now I'm doing fine. But plenty of guys haven't been so lucky . . . yet. Let them know, won't you, that you haven't forgotten them? They're still counting on the Red Cross. And the Red Cross is still counting on you!"

Pictures Review Stage of Past Era

The Washington Post

WILLIAM B. ADAMS AND THEATRICAL PHOTOS

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Ghosts of such stage notables as Sarah Bernhardt, David Belasco, and the Barrymores—half a ton of them—haunt the basement of a Takoma Park, Md., book collector.

Their pictures lie in piles of bound volumes and scrapbooks, stacked shoulder high in the basement of William B. Adams, 52, of 3 Valley View ave.

The collection pictures the theater's great and near-great for perhaps the last 70 years.

Adams estimates he has 300,000 separate pictures of actors, many of them in costume or against a stage setting, in the 127 books in his collection.

Half of Collection

The former Reconstruction Finance Corporation official picked up the collection about three years ago, browsing in the Salvation Army bookstores at 1st and F sts. nw.

Several of the scrapbooks caught his eye. He asked store officials if there were more. Indeed there were, they told him—half a ton more. But of the orginial collection, half already had been run through a paper baler and destroyed.

Adams bought the half-ton of theatrical lore for a small sum. He knew he had a treasure.

Pictures of Marie Dressler, David Warfield, Weber and Fields, stared out from the yellowed pages of the scrapbooks.

Or William S. Hart, without the cowboy suit; William F. Cody, in full regalia; John Barrymore, not in profile; his sister Ethel, strikingly beautiful as a young actress.

Picture of Paderewski

Or Paderewski as a youthful pianist, and thousands of other figures, including John Drew, Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, Maxine Elliott, Maude Adams, and David Frohman.

None of the actors, Gay 90s chorus girls, and figures connected with theater, opera, vaudeville and the movies is identified by name. But each picture is clearly numbered.

"Trouble is," Adams says, "that the code to the numbering on the pictures is lost. It was apparently in the half that was destroyed."

Pictures were cut out of current publications. One copyright on a picture margin was dated 1880, and the collection apparently was kept up to date as late as 1940.

Whose labor painstakingly built up the remarkable collection over the years? Adams doesn't know. Perhaps an actor or someone who just loved the stage. The albums don't tell.

Collector For 30 Years

A book collector himself for 30 years, Adams said that both the Library of Congress and the New York Public Library are eager to acquire the collection—free. But he hasn't decided whether to sell the collection or give it away.

"It's a shame to let it go to waste," he says. "Surely the television industry or the movies, theatrical costume designers, or at least a home for retired actors would like to have it."

As for himself, Adams has "only skimmed through" the collection. Says he: "It would take you a month to look through the whole thing."

Templar Chief To Attend Service

ON EASTER—John Temple Rice (above), of El Paso, Tex., grand commander of the Grand Encampment, Knights' Templar of the United States, yesterday advised Richard E. Titlow, Alta Vista, Md., director of the Easter Sunrise services at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, that he would be here for the ceremony. Titlow, past grand commander of Grand Commandery, Knights Templar for the District, estimated that more than 20,000 uniformed Templars would march in the parade April 9.

Shrine Circus To Feature 38 Acts, 24 Displays

Thirty-eight acts and 24 displays will feature the Eighth Annual Shrine Circus, scheduled for 13 performances at the Uline Arena, 3d and M sts. ne., from March 28 through April 3.

Included among the acts will be firing Victoria and Gloria Zacchini from two huge cannons placed at opposite ends of the arena. The Aerial Royals, a new comedy bar act; the Loof trio, a Danish importation, performing 70 feet in the air on an anchor, and the Great Athos, a Swedish performer who balances himself on his forefinger, are among those scheduled to appear for the circus.

Tickets from $1.20 to $3.00 are on sale at Almas Temple, 1315 K st. nw., Uline's Arena, and at Stabler's ticket Mart, 13th and G sts. nw. Night and week end performances are reserved.

Paris Chef Spurns U. S. Cooking

Paris, March 13 (U.P.).—One of France's greatest chefs today sampled American cooking for the first time, and commented that a French restaurant which served such food "would be forced to close within two days."

Bernard Barus, a leading Paris chef for 25 years, tried a typical New England meal: baked beans, Boston brown bread, a canned pineapple and cream cheese salad, a cup of coffee and a pack of American cigarettes.

Beans Made Him Swallow Hard

Barus started with the beans, gingerly picking up a few in his fork, chewing slowly and swallowing hard.

"For one thing," he said. "The tomato sauce is undercooked."

He mashed a few beans with his fork and examined them closely.

"Very good quality, indeed," he decided. "But where is the lamb? In France, we always serve meat with beans."

Prodding the bread with his fork, he asked: "What's that?"

After the uses of brown bread and butter had been explained, Barus tried some but was unimpressed.

"This can hardly be termed 'bread,'" the famed chef commented. "It's too sweet."

Horrified by Coffee, Cigarettes

He was horrified by the idea of drinking coffee and smoking cigarettes with meals, saying that "coffee and milk have a strong taste in themselves, and kill the subtlety of other flavors. Smoking ruins the palate."

But Barus reserved his greatest scorn for the pineapple and cheese salad.

"What role does this play in the meal?" he asked.

After the theory of American salads had been explained, Barus declared: "If you served this in a French restaurant, it would be forced to close in two days."

League Lists Job Forums

The Washington Urban League will participate in the 17th annual Vocational Opportunity Campaign of the National Urban League with a series of student assemblies, job clinics and forums in Divisions 10-13 of the District public schools this week.

The campaign wil lopen today at noon at the Phelps Vocational High School, where Samuel B. Danley, of the Bureau of Labor Standards, Labor Department, and John R. Pinkett, head of a real estate and insurance firm, will speak.

Victor Daly, chief of the fiscal and personnel division of the local United States Employment Service, will talk at Armstrong High School Wednesday, and Dr. Paul F. Lawrence of Howard University's Counseling Service, and Miss Mary Titus, of the National Education Association, will speak at Dunbar High School Friday.

Speakers at the Margaret Murray Washington Vocational High School Friday will be Gardner Pinkett of the Meenehan Hardware Co., and Charles C. Beckett, executive secretary of the Washington Urban League.

Mrs. McNerny to Speak

Mrs. Charlotte McNerny, local representative of International General Electric, will speak at a dinner meeting of the women's division, Purchasing Agents Association of Washington, Tuesday at 6 p. m. at the Lee Sheraton Hotel.

Russia Claims 'Lake of Life' In the Urals

Moscow, March 13 (AP).—Ponce de Leon looked in the wrong place. The Fountain of Youth is not in Florida; it's in Russia.

The journal Ogonek reported today that a "lake of life" has been discovered in the Ural Mountains.

It's no joke, either, says the magazine. The lake bottom is made up of a miraculous medical mud which is used to heal patients who have been bedridden for years with ailments of the joints and nerves. After only two or three series of treatments, says Ogonek, patients get up and walk out of hospitals.

The lake, near Samosvet on the Sverdlovsk railroad, was said to contain decaying organic ooze deposited for centuries.

Ogonek said that out of 248 patients ill with diseases of the joints, muscles, nervous system, blood vessels and alimentary tract who took treatments at the "Lake of Life," 200 recovered completely or significantly.

Discovery of Penicillin Credited to 3 Russians

Moscow, March 13 (U.P.).—A Russian newspaper asserted today that "everybody knows that the discovery of one of the most potent modern drugs, penicillin, was the contribution of three remarkable Russian scientists, Polotebnov, Manassein and Gukovsky." The newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda made the assertion in attacking "homeless cosmopolitan" S. Altschuler who, among other things, eroneously asserted that British scientist Sir Alexander Fleming discovered penicillin.

One on the Aisle—

Three Marriages A Cat's Meeouw

By Richard L. Coe

"A LETTER TO THREE WIVES," at the Palace, is a wry little comedy, though it suffers from an overdose of soap opera suds.

There are some thoroughly enjoyable moments in this yarn which gets a deal of its spice from the fact that you never see the central character and the end may leave you wondering. Since both characters and endings of most movies leave no room for doubt of any sort, this is welcome novelty.

The story tells of three suburban ladies—Ann Sothern, Linda Darnell and Jeanne Crain—who receive a letter from the town's most glamorous female proclaiming that she's run off with one of their husbands. Which one and how he fares is the "Lady or the Tiger" twist of the plot.

To give you some idea of the ladies' individual reactions to their predatory neighbor, we get the story of their marriages by flashback. Miss Darnell's marriage to Paul Douglas is the most amusing of these, but like the other two romances, it suffers from the tired air of a radio serial. Nor can you avoid suspecting that the comedy in this strayed into three pseudo-serious romantic stories.

Least likely and dullest of the marriages is Jeanne Crain's to Jeffrey Lynn. We're told that Jeanne was a farm girl who became a WAVE officer, so stunning an officer that she attracted rich, handsome Lynn. But Jeanne in civilian clothes is a terrible frump and she fears her farm ways will lose her Jeffrey. Not having been a WAVE officer, or even an officer of any kind, I don't know whether the Mainbocher uniforms had this effect. But I do know it struck me as a very silly marriage indeed.

Ann Sothern's husband is a school teacher, Kirk Douglas. Ann wants more money, takes to writing a radio serial. I don't think there's anything sillier than a movie with a plot like this to poke fun at poor old radio. Ann does so well at composing soap operas that she doesn't see why Kirk doesn't try his hand at radio. But he's got his ideals, thank you, and that's why Ann fears the mysterious letter means her husband.

Linda's marriage is more spectacular in that she's worked her way up from a shanty right on the railroad tracks and spends most of her time insulting her burly, uncouth husband, Paul Douglas. A good deal of footage is spent clarifying the fact that while Linda may sound like a tramp, she's a sweet thing at heart. Is it, then, Linda's Paul who's jumped the coop?

The performances are cheerful, forceful and I hope we'll have some of Paul Douglas on the screen. The guy's a big relief from the dewy-eyed masks that pass as movie heroes.

The insinuating voice of "Addie," which you hear but whose physical chic you never see, is the wordly, feline articulation of Celeste Holm.

From Miss Caspary's "adaptation," Joseph L. Mankiewicz wrote the screen play and directed.

THE DUPONT also presented a new bill over the weekend, after that phenomenal run of "The Red Shoes," 14 minutes of which found this reporter enthusiastic, the rest of which left him restless.

At the top of the new Dupont bill is "Dulcimer Street," a British import of omniverous length. The best thing about it is the presence of the always resourceful Alastair Sim, that sly, bald-pated chap who always plays either good or evil.

This time Sim is a scoundrel, one of many who turn up in a boarding house at 10 Dulcimer Street. This is a pretty shoddy hideaway, housing all manner of unhappy folk, including an owner who leans toward spiritualism, a boy who's accidentally killed a girl, a girl in love with the policeman who comes to arrest the boy, her father who's using his life savings to keep the boy from the gallows, a faded blonde with delusions of grandeur.

The stories of all are woven together, but neither wisely nor well. Ultimately things bog down into a marching protest for justice. The whole thing might have been rather fun in one of those enormous tomes that pass for novels, but as a movie it's rather formless and ultimately tiresome.

Briefer and vastly more charming is "Bush Christmas," a pleasing Australian film about children, Christmas and the vast spaces of Down Under. Genially presented. "Bush Christmas" is a good bet for youngsters as well as pacific adults.

LEO BRADY is the center of our town's happiest weekend news . . . The Catholic University speech and drama department professor whose byline graced reviews on this page to win him many new admirers, has just sold his as-yet unpublished novel, "The Edge of Doom," to the judicious Sam Goldwyn . . . The price is estimated anywhere from $150,000 to $200,000, depending which press sources you believe from Hollywood . . . "The Edge of Doom" will be published by Dutton next fall and the movie, with a gilt-edged cast, will follow the next year . . . Somehow the Bradys were overdue a taste of fortune and those of us who know them are genuinely thrilled at such worldly encouragement . . . Don't call it luck, though; Leo worked long and hard for this and one prays that the Brady family won't be plagued by people trying to sell them the Washington Monument . . . After all, Eleanor has Brigid and Peter to look after . . . Wonderful, kids!

"A LETTER TO THREE WIVES," 20th Century-Fox release produced by Sol. C. Siegel. Screen play and direction by Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Adapted by Vera Caspary from a novel by John Klempner. Music by Alfred Newman. Photographed by Arthur Miller. Directed by Mankiewicz. At the Palace.

Audition Prizes

Canadian, Girl, 23, Win 'Met' Jobs

New York, March 13 (AP).—A young Canadian lawyer and a Pennsylvania girl who once wanted to be a dental hygienist today became the latest singing additions to the Metropolitan Opera Company.

The girl is Miss Lois Hunt, 23, a pretty, brown-eyed, brown-haired lyric soprano.

The attorney is Denis Harbour, 28, a graduate of the University of Montreal. He is a bass-baritone.

Both received their "Met" contracts after being declared the winners of this season's Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air.

In addition to the contracts, each received a check for $1000—the Capehart scholarships presented by the sponsors of the contest, the Farnsworth Television and Radio Corp.

Photographers' Dinner to Truman Lists Film Stars

An impressive array of Hollywood stars will entertain at the annual dinner of the White House News-Photographers Association, which will be held for President Truman, as honored guest, in Washington's hotel Statler, March 19.

Among the stars coming from Hollywood are Jack Carson, MC for the dinner, Red Skelton, Dick Haymes, Betty Hutton, Billy Dewolfe, Gertrude Niesen, Liberace, Marina Koshetz and her mother, Nina, accompanist.

Mr. Truman will return from Key West, Florida, where he is vacationing, in time to attend the annual function.

In addition to Mr. Truman, cabinet members and high ranking military and government officials will attend.

ZONING COMMISSION, WASHINGTON, February 28, 1949. ORDERED: That after public notice and hearing as prescribed by law, the following changes in the Zoning Regulations are adopted, and the districts heretofore established by the Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia, as shown in the official height, area, and use atlases, are hereby modified and amended as follows: Paragraph 1, Part 2, Section XXIII is amended to read: "1. Permit, in a residential district, a college, a university or a private school, and in the 'A', 'B', 'C' and 'D' area districts a kindergarten or pre-school group, if (a) its operation would be impaired by location on a business street, (b) it has no articles of commerce for sale, and (c) it is not likely to become objectionable in a residential district because of noise, traffic, and number of students. The Board may permit a kindergarten or a pre-school group in the 'A' Restricted, 'A' Semi-restricted, and 'B' Restricted Area Districts, subject to the conditions above, and provided further; that there shall be provided on the same lot with such use not less than 100 square feet of play area for each child; that the activities to be conducted in the proposed establishment shall be so located with respect to adjoining and nearby property as not to create undue noise or otherwise objectionable conditions; and the Board shall find the use to be reasonably necessary or convenient to the neighborhood in which located. The Board may also permit any building in the 'C' and 'D' area districts to be used by a non-profit organization if (a) the city plan or the present character or future development of the neighborhood will not be affected adversely, (b) the organization has had a continuous corporate existence for at least one year immediately preceding appeal to the Board, (c) not less than one-half of the total annual cost of operating the buildings, including such costs as amortization, interest, rent, maintenance, taxes, heat, etc., and paying the salaries and expenses of persons employed therein, shall be directly allocated to financing the following activities: the providing of instructors or lecturers in schools, the preparing of school textbooks, the conducting of research in or for schools, and the financing of scholarships or fellowships in schools or universities, (d) the institution does not engage in the carrying on of propaganda to influence legislation, (e) no articles of commerce are sold on the premises, and (f) the use is not likely to become objectionable in a residential district because of noise or traffic. At the time of filing any appeal under this paragraph the appellant shall also file, as a part of the record to be considered by the Board, a certified copy of its charter and by-laws and any amendments thereto since the issuance or adoption thereof, and detailed financial statements of the organization, prepared and certified by a certified public accountant, for the calendar month and fiscal year of the organization ending immediately prior to the date of appeal, such statements to be in such form and detail as to permit the Board to readily ascertain compliance with the requirements of sub-paragraph (c) thereof." The last sentence of Section XX.—Certificates of occupancy, is amended to read: "A fee of $4 shall be charged for each original certificate and $1 for each copy thereof." The following map amendments in the area known as "Foggy Bottom" bounded by K, 24th and E Streets and the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway, N. W., are made: From Residential and First Commercial, 60' "C" Area to Residential, 90' "C" Area all property zoned in the 60' Height District in squares 1, 5, 16 and 28 From Industrial, Second Commercial, First Commercial and Residential, 60' and 90' "D" Area to Residential, 90' "C" Area squares 9 and 19 entire, all of squares 2, 3, 7, 8, 32, 6, 17, 18 and 31 except parts of the said squares which are changed to First Commercial, 90' "C" Area as follows: a strip 100 feet in depth paralleling the south side of Virginia Avenue in squares 2, 7, 8 and 18; squares South of 17 and 10 entire; all lots having frontage on Virginia Avenue and including lot 37 in square 6, all lots having frontage on the north side of Virginia Avenue and the north side of H Street and including lots 800, 801, 802, 25 and 26, in square 17; the frontage on the north side of Virginia Avenue and G Street to a depth of 100 feet therefrom in square 31; and all lots abutting the south side of Virginia Avenue and the south side of G Street in square 32, not including the south 129 feet of lot 31, square 32, are changed to First Commercial, 90' "C" Area. Lots 2, 800, 31, 10, 26, 801, 802, 20, 805, 806, 25 and 30, square 136, lots 145, 800, 139, 141, 72 and 71, square 134, lots 802, 54, 53, 803, 141, 223, 814, 144 to 148 both inclusive, square 155, lots 21, 22, 39, 23 and 26, square 154, and lots 21, 20, 19, 136, 135, 74, 804, 803, 70, 69, 68, 67, 133, 807 and 134, square 153 said property located on the northeast side of Dupont Circle from P Street to New Hampshire Avenue, N. W., the east side of New Hampshire Avenue from Dupont Circle to premises 1711 New Hampshire Avenue, N. W., the west side of New Hampshire Avenue from Que to Corcoran Streets, N. W., the north side of R Street between 18th Street and New Hampshire Avenue, N. W., the west side of New Hampshire Avenue between R and S Streets, N. W., and premises 1740 P Street, N. W., and 1722 S Street, N. W., are changed from Residential, 60' "B" Restricted Area to Residential, 60' "C" Area. That part of Shepherd Road closed, lying west of the extension of the existing boundary line between the Residential and Commercial districts in square 2988 is changed from unzoned to First Commercial, 60' "C" Area and the remainder of said closed road is changed from unzoned to Residential, 40' "B" Area. The above street was closed by order of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and recorded in Book 126, page 164, Records of the Surveyor, District of Columbia. GORDON R. YOUNG, JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG, GUY MASON, DAVID LYNN, A. E. DEMARAY (Acting), Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia. Mar. 14.

MEN
Would you like to get into the specialty selling of a new appliance that is taking the country by storm; which is being sold faster than can be manufactured; that a demand can be created for in every office, home and public building? Our successful men are making upward of $1000 per month from coast to coast. Men who have never sold anything before. We train you and you make money while learning; we set you up as a dealer; pay you a full dealers discount. We do all the financing and servicing; you are your own boss and the sky is the limit; you must have a car, look well, be willing to work and have real honest ambition to go places and be ready to go to work immediately. These are our only requirements. We supply the rest.

The Song I Sing

I sing this song with all my heart . . . And every word is true . . . But it is just a little part . . . Of all my love for you . . . It does not say how sweet you are . . . And what you mean to me . . . Or why it seems that every star . . . Is like a memory . . . It does not hold or even touch . . . The magic of your charms . . . Or ever tell the world how much . . . I want you in my arms . . . The song I sing is old as time . . . And therefore nothing new . . . But every line and every rhyme . . . Is one to honor you . . . And every note of every bar . . . Throughout the melody . . . Is like another silver star . . . To bring you close to me.

Trucks Allowed to Park Double 'Momentarily' But Stay 20 Minutes

It was about two minutes to 4, and the sign said "No Parking Between 4 and 6:30 p. m." The motorist wanted to move his car, but couldn't, because he was hemmed in by double-parked trucks.

For several minutes he looked anxiously up and down the street; then he got desperate, and went into a nearby store to make inquiry. It availed him nought. The truck drivers were not to be found.

I'll never know how he made out, because I couldn't wait to find out. But I have checked on the law which covers such situations.

When loading or unloading, commercial vehicles are permitted to park abreast (double park) if there is no space available within a reasonable distance.

The driver must either remain within sight of his vehicle, or be gone from it "only momentarily, on business." So says the traffic department's Inspector Arthur E. Miller.

Inspector Miller concedes that in many instances drivers double park even if space is available at the curb a few feet away, but he adds that unless an officer catches them in the act, it's hard to make a case.

He admits, too, that many truck drivers take advantage of their special privileges, and double park for unreasonable lengths of time, or while taking care of personal errands. Once again, it's hard to prove.

Inspector Miller recalls the case of the laundryman who was cited for double parking for 20 minutes. The driver was acquitted when he convinced the judge that he'd spent all that time in an apartment house, on business.

That was some time ago, and the courts are now much more strict on such violations, because traffic conditions are worse. But some truck drivers don't seem to care.

IT'S BETTER THAT WAY

Nate Leiderman of 1508 41st st. se. wonders about those ads which say: "CBS is where 99 million people gather every week." Nate wonders whether a crowd like that doesn't tax our facilities.

As a matter of fact, it has been getting a bit crowded lately, and we've been hoping that some of those people would get radios, so that they could listen at home.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Jim Wilfong, jr., of 1541 Montana ave. ne., reports that his wife has been wondering lately what has happened to those nylon stockings that used to wear for months and months and survive hundreds of washings.

SUGGESTION

The approaches to the 14th st. bridge are usually well policed during week-day rush hours, but they could certainly stand some extra attention on busy Sunday afternoons. A minor fender-scraping ties this busy traffic artery into knots on Sundays.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I work in the Department of State office which is in an apartment building at 22d st. and Virginia ave. nw. There is a GSI canteen in the basement.

I got a hot chocolate the other day, and asked the attendant to put a bit of cream in it. She said, "Oh, I can't do that—it's against the rules and regulations."

That seems to be a rather strange set of rules and regulations. If you can get cream in your coffee, why can't you get cream in your hot chocolate?

Helen M. Mackey,
815 Taylor st. nw.

Dear Helen:

I think it's part of the same set of "rules and regulations" that prohibits certain stores from giving you a pad of matches with your cigarettes, and decrees that no coin smaller than a quarter shall ever be displayed in the hat-check girl's tip dish. Bill.

DO THEY MEAN WITH OR WITHOUT PAKISTAN?

Mrs. L. Bridge of 2325 N. Jackson st., Arlington, Va., says that her 9-year-old Regina was working a crossword puzzle the other day, and came to the definition: "weight of India."

Frowning mightily, Regina muttered "How on earth am I expected to know how much India weighs."

NEW YORK.—There is a rule at Schenley's that no employe who has been there longer than 10 years can be fired unless the President of the company approves. This week John Leban, president of Schenley's approved the firing of a district manager who had worked for the company more than 10 years . . . That night Leban saw the play, "Death of a Salesman." And after the show he was haunted by the scene in which the salesman, after long years of service, is fired by the young president. At 8 a. m. the next day he rushed to his office, in time to recall his firing-order and issue a substitute directive: "Get another job for him."

Mary Garden, who is emerging from her retirement to make a lecture tour in this country, will start in Detroit on October 5.

Anna May Wong, who returns to the films in United Artists' "Impact," plays the role of a Chinese maid. When she was asked about the wisdom of returning in such a humble role, she said: "I never objected to playing lowly persons of high caliber, only to playing Oriental characters of low instincts."

On Saturday night Jean Dalrymple's production of Sartre's play, "Red Gloves," ended its run. Only the presence of Charles Boyer in the starring role—a performance unanimously acclaimed by the drama critics—saved the show from losing more money than it did. At the Woman Pays Club last week Miss Dalrymple told of the day in Paris when she was to see Jean Paul Sartre about getting the American rights to his play. Jose Iturbi asked her: "Why do you want to do any business with this Existentialist?" Miss Dalrymple asked him to define existentialists, and Iturbi said: "They believe that life is only a series of disasters." . . . "And this play," sighed Miss Dalrymple, "proved he was right."

Russell E. Havenstrite, the oil man who is president of the Beverly Hills Polo Association, is bringing the Argentine polo team to this country for a series of matches to decide the world championship.

Lewis Gives Assist to T-H Law

By Drew Pearson

John L. Lewis' cease work call has won some votes in favor of keeping one of the Taft-Hartley provisions which labor dislikes most—the right of injunction to halt strikes against the public interests.

Dr. Boyd

The National Association of Manufacturers backed by George Sokolsky and a battery of propagandists couldn't have been half as effective as John L. Lewis. For Lewis' lieutenant, John Owens, hinted before a Senate committee that the miners would strike if the Senate confirmed Dr. James Boyd as director of the Bureau of Mines. Then he actually did call a two-week work stoppage to show that he meant it.

Several Senators who have been on the fence regarding injunctions now believe that injunctions may be the only way to deal with a labor leader who threatens a strike if Congress exercises its constitutional right to confirm a presidential appointment.

Inside fact is that previously John L. Lewis used to dominate the Bureau of Mines. He had a brother-in-law working there and also helped pick the bureau's director, Dr. R. R. Sayers. Eventually it developed that Lewis knew as much about what was going on inside the bureau as its top boss, Secretary of the Interior Krug. Shortly after Krug discovered this, Sayers stepped out to take a job with the United Mine Workers while Krug appointed Dr. Boyd, then dean of the Colorado School of Mines, to take his place. Lewis has held up Boyd's appointment ever since, chiefly through GOP Senator Eugene Millikin of Colorado.

Now Truman has called for a showdown between himself and Lewis as to which controls Senate confirmations.

Bloom's Overwork

One thing that contributed to the death of much-loved Congressman Sol Bloom was overwork. And his work load was increased by the fact that many Democratic members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee brazenly loafed on the job, leaving most of the work to Sol and the Republicans.

While the 11 Republican members of the committee usually are present, sometimes as few as three Democrats have turned up.

So far statesmanlike Congressman Charles Eaton of New Jersey, leader of the Republicans, hasn't taken advantage of this. But he could easily turn the tables on the Democrats and put the Republicans in the position of running American foreign policy.

As a result the first act of new Democratic Chairman John Kee, of West Virginia, when he took over following Sol Bloom's death, was to warn Democratic Congressmen it was time for them to quit playing hookey.

Plumps for Peron

No newspaper in the United States has fought Harry Truman more vitriolically, vehemently and vigorously than the Chicago Tribune. These attacks have also been centered on Truman's military aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan. Nevertheless, Tribune publisher Colonel McCormick has now found something in common with Harry Truman and Harry Vaughan. He is an admirer of Dictator Peron of Argentina.

Colonel McCormick has been traveling through Latin America spending an average of 30 hours in each of four capitals. But he spent more time in Buenos Aires where President Peron pinned a medal on his breast—the same kind of medal given to General Vaughan.

After lunching with Peron, McCormick informed the press that he and the dictator were in complete accord on Western Hemisphere affairs.

Other things about the colonel's trip were interesting. One was the way American Ambassadors kowtowed to McCormick, giving the impression that the publisher's views were sympathetically received in Washington. Wherever he stopped McCormick was wined and dined by the United States envoy, with top government officials of each country invited.

Another interesting fact was McCormick's rabid attitude toward Europe which became so violently manifest that even his own interpreter toned down his remarks. In Quito, Ecuador, for instance, McCormick told local newsmen if the Red army invades western Europe, the only thing it can accomplish is to destroy western Europe. And he made a gesture indicating his indifference to such an outcome. But Jack Dubois, the Tribune's roving correspondent in Latin America, in interpreting, gave no indication of how little his publisher thought of western Europe. So in translating he changed the sentence to "destroy eastern Europe.

Jap Premier Forms New Activities Unit

Tokyo, March 13 (AP).—The newspaper Yomiuri said today the cabinet of Premier Shigeru Yoshida had decided to form an un-Japanese activities committee under cabinet jurisdiction.

It would not be a Diet committee, for Communists in the Diet would be able to demand at least one place on it. Yomiuri said the cabinet felt this would make it meaningless.

60 Hurt by Tear Bombs

Berlin, March 13 (U.P.).—The British-licensed newspaper Telegraf reported today that more than 60 persons were hospitalized when tear gas bombs thrown by unidentified persons broke up a Communist rally at Dresden yesterday.

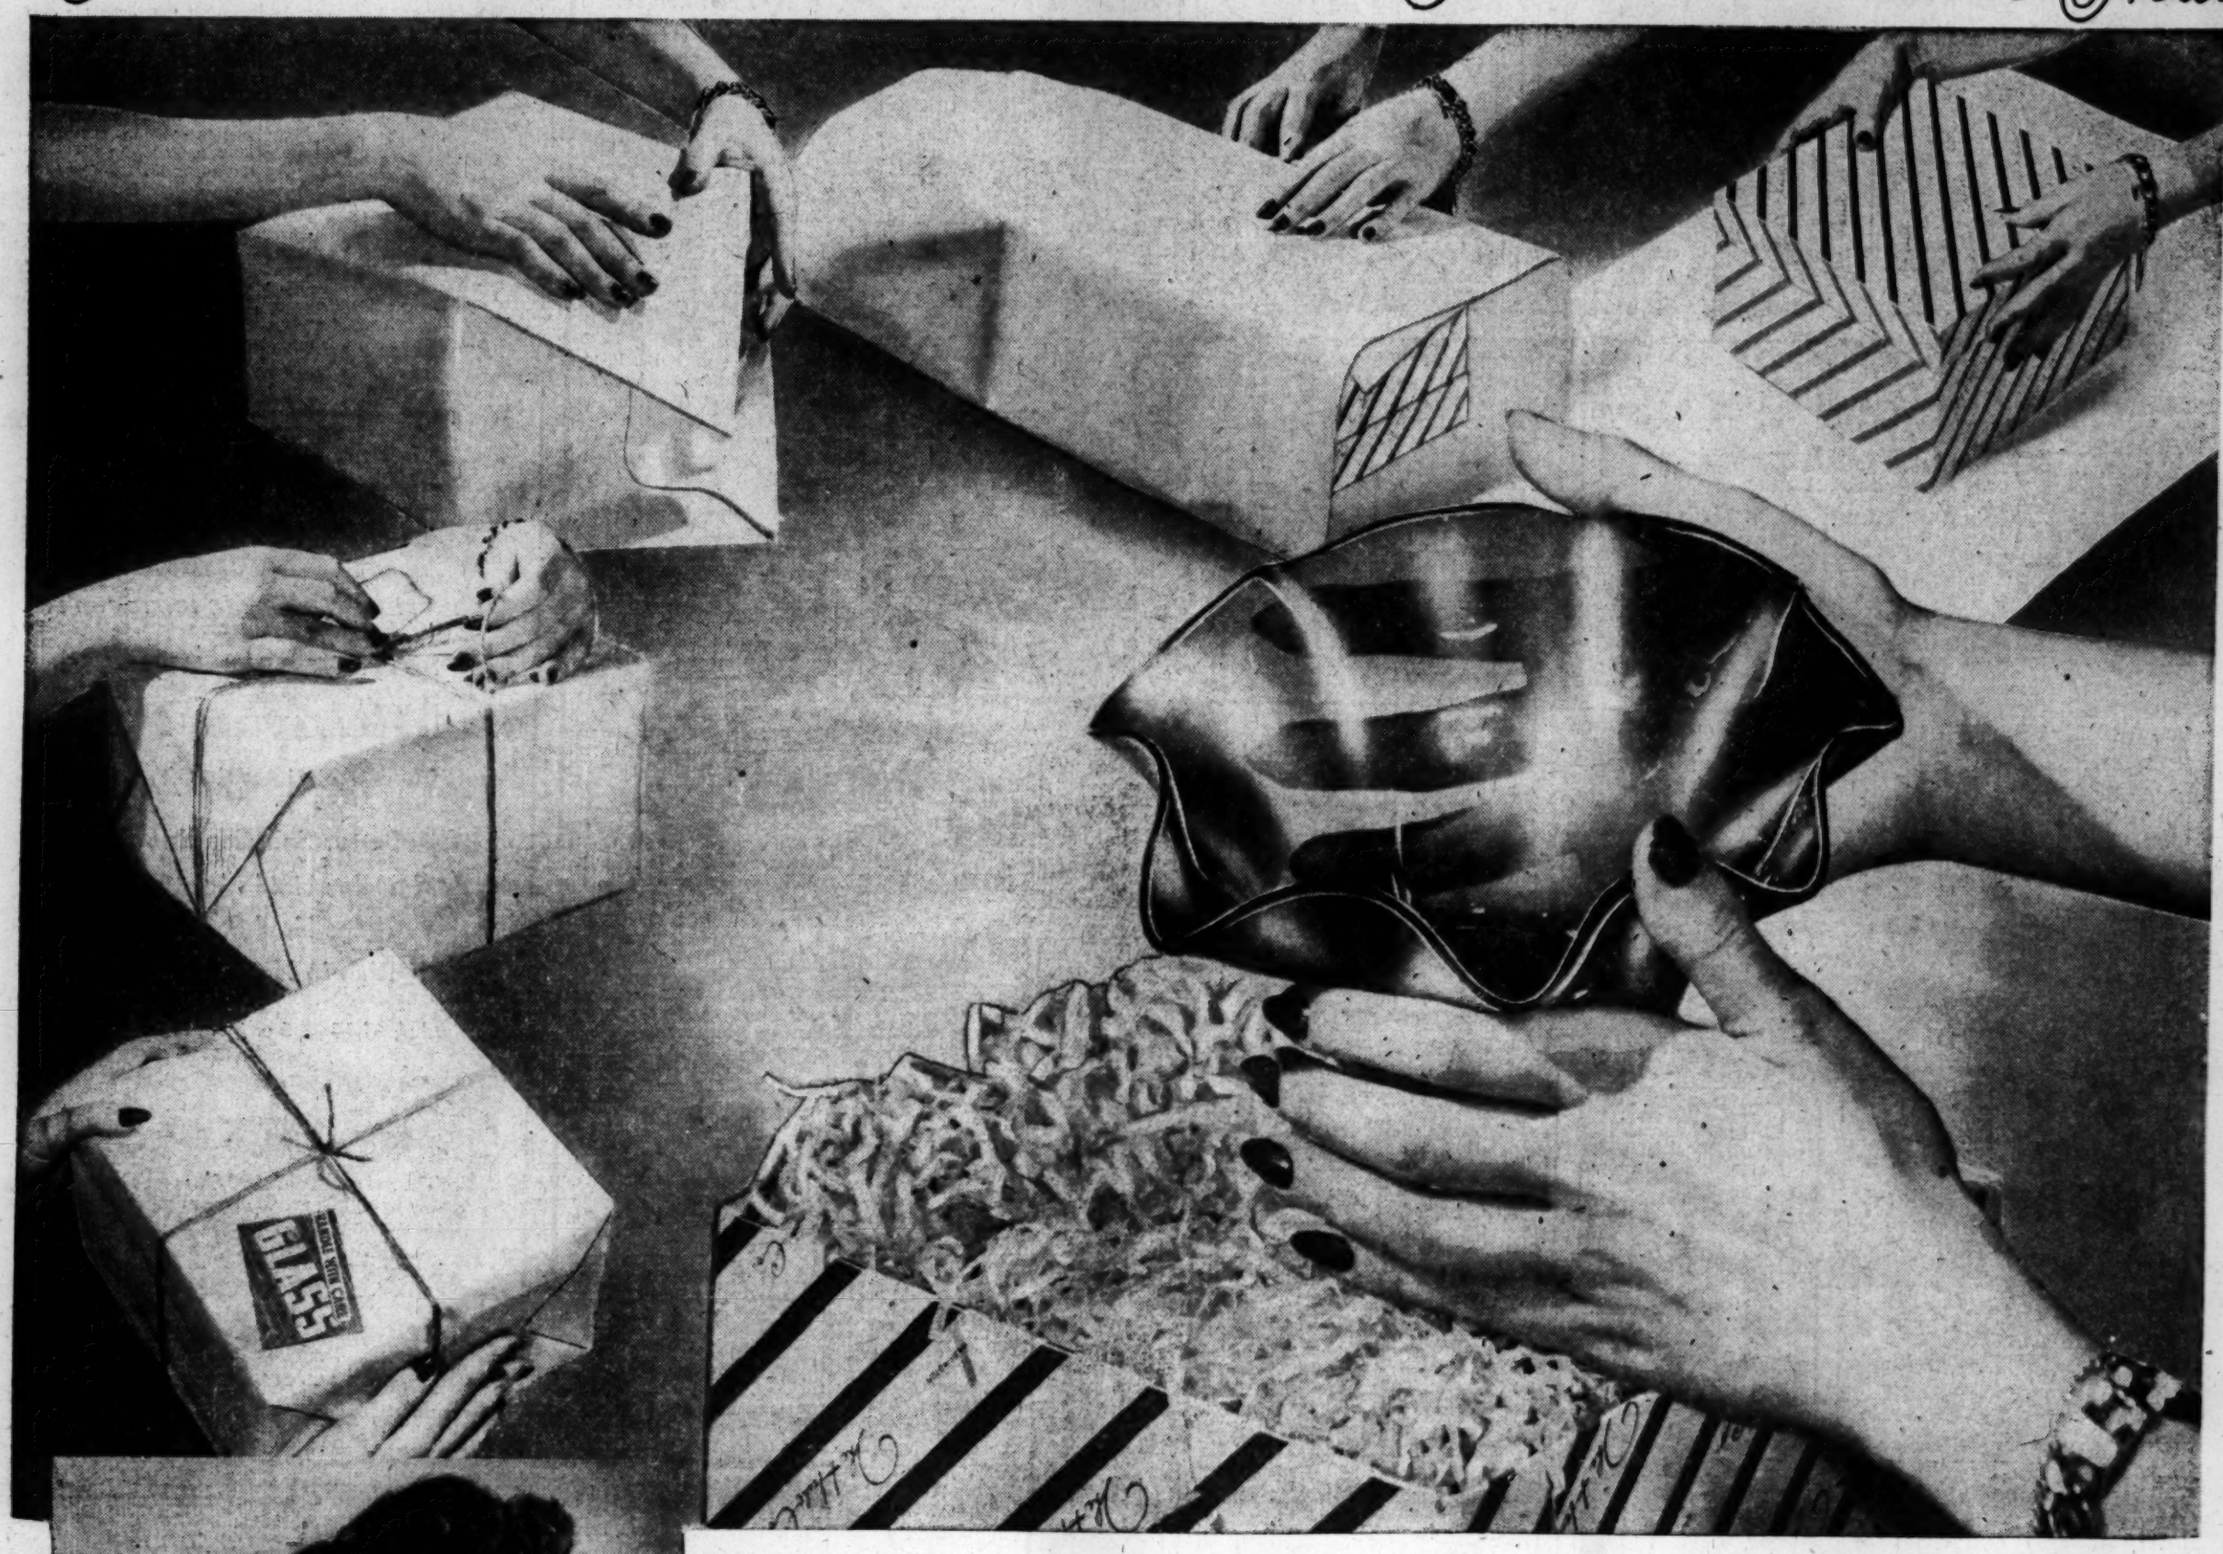
Number 7 in a Series... Hecht Co. Personalities in the News



I'm all wrapped up in my work...

SAYS ANGIE DOLAN HOWELL, SUPERVISOR OF THE WRAPPING DIVISION, THE HECHT CO.

Scissors . . . Tape . . . Excelsior! It's an operation . . . a wrapping operation . . . at The Hecht Co. and it takes place thousands of times a day . . . over 2 million times a year. In an average year The Hecht Co. uses over 7,000,000 feet of twine . . . 3 freight carloads of wrapping paper . . . 12,250,000 feet of gummed tape . . . 62,000 pounds of excelsior (light, protective stuffing used in packaging) . . . and 355,000 gummed labels such as "fragile" . . . "glass" . . . "handle with care." These are the tools deftly used by our skilled wrappers. These are the components of a science in modern day retailing. And a science it is! That piece of fine china Mrs. Jones bought needs more than just wrapping paper for it to arrive at her home in one piece. That gift Mr. Smith got for his grandmother requires special handling to reach Kalamazoo on time and in first class condition. That's why The Hecht Co. has spent thousands of dollars . . . years and years of research . . . to develop the ten standard wrapping methods used for the many thousands of items we sell. And, of course, we are still going ahead with new experiments . . . seeking out new wrap ideas every day. Recently one of our men flew to Cleveland, Ohio, to investigate a new method of wrapping lamps. He liked it . . . we liked it . . . today it is standard procedure at The Hecht Co. We are constantly striving for perfection in our wrapping division . . . but careful as we are . . . occasionally a package is given unusual punishment in handling with consequent headaches for you . . . and us. These are problems we try to anticipate and correct. But when you consider the thousands of purchases each day requiring the skills of specially trained wrappers . . . ours is no easy job. Angie regards wrapping as a pretty important part of retail business . . . and we agree . . . that's why our goal is to find the methods of serving you . . . The Hecht Co. patrons . . . the best and fastest way we can.

ANGIE DOLAN HOWELL found her way to The Hecht Co. from Baltimore, Maryland, 19 years ago. As the fates would have it then, Angie moved right into the wrapping division and has been moving around in there ever since. First as a wrapper, then to training wrapping personnel, now her present job of supervising the entire wrapping operation for The Hecht Co. She's proud of the work her division is doing and goes all out to share with her 90 associates the praises she receives for a job well done.
